Our "Family Healthcare" is a major medical policy that provides high maximum benefit amounts for medical care and contains deductible and co-insurance features.

Briefly, here is how this plan works: once you have paid a selected deductible for any one covered illness or injury, you pay only 20% of the next $500 of expenses. American Family pays the remaining 80% of that $500 PLUS 100% of the expense up to the benefit limit you choose — $10,000, $20,000, $50,000, $100,000 or $250,000. The maximum amount payable and the premium payment depend on the plan you select.

Foreign Land Ownership

While concern has been expressed by some people about the amount of farm land in Minnesota owned by residents of foreign countries, a recent report from the economics and statistics service of the U.S. department of agriculture indicates that the amount is insignificant.

As of December 31 of last year, foreign ownership totaled 28,031 acres — less than one-tenth of one per cent of Minnesota's 30 million acres of arm land. The USDA report notes that the small foreign investment is due "... in large part to strict legislation regarding foreign ownership of land in the state".

In fact, during the period from Feb. 2, 1979 through Dec. 30, 1980, Minnesota was one of two states where the acres of farmland sold by foreign owners was greater than the acreage sold to foreigners. There were 721 acres sold and only 480 acres purchased.

What about the U.S.? By the end of 1980, foreign entities and individuals owned 7.8 million acres — or 0.6 per cent of U.S. farmland. This acreage is too small to measure any impact on agriculture at the national level. In areas of heaviest concentration, however, some communities could be affected.

Where is foreign ownership concentrated? Except for Maine, foreign holdings and acquisitions are concentrated in the South and West. In the South, Alabama, Florida, Georgia, North and South Carolina, Tennessee and Texas reported 32 per cent of all holdings and acquisitions; in the West, Arizona, California, Colorado, Montana, Nevada, new Mexico and Utah reported 29 per cent.

Who owns foreign land? Foreign nationals from Canada, Luxembourg, the Netherlands, Netherlands Antilles, United Kingdom, and West Germany account for 76 per cent of U.S. holdings and acquisitions.

Welfare Monopoly

Columnist Al Johnson in the ABC Newspapers (Anoka, Blaine and Coon Rapids) describes the new game he has created. It has unlimited potential as an up-dated version of an old favorite:

After years of development I am now ready to release a crackerjack of a new game, one that will assure my financial independence for life.

With apologies to Parker Brothers my game is called "Welfare Monopoly". I think you will agree that the changes made from the original will eliminate any pattern or trademark problems.

First of all, "the bank" is replaced by "the government". Instead of a "banker", one player is designated as "chief bureaucrat" to handle the money.

In the American tradition of homesteading all property is free. You land on it and it's yours. However, there will not be any houses or hotels. That way we rule out investment and keep the rent to a minimum. I also figured that after a couple of games of Welfare Monopoly the buildings would no longer be usable.

Instead of collecting a $200 salary each time a player passes "Go", he or she will collect $300 in welfare funds. The "Community Chest" and "Chance" cards also include a generous supply of cards reading, "You have had another baby — collect an additional $100 each time you pass Go." We really get the cash in circulation in this game!

With the railroads being phased out, I've converted those four squares to day-care centers. If you land on one of these it costs $50 per child. Don't worry though. The owner just reaches over and takes the money out of the government funds. The same is true for any medical-expense card you may draw from the Chance pile.

No need to worry either about landing on a utility. Ignore paying them. They can't shut off your water or electricity — not in my game anyhow.

You can have a little problem if you land on "Go to jail." The game has a new stack of cards identified as "Legal Aid". You get to draw one card. Most cards release you on a legal technicality, but should you have to go to jail, you need only roll anything higher than "snake-eyes" to get out free.

There is also an affirmative-action program. Swedes and Norwegians get two consecutive rolls of the dice each turn. That's my way of evening things up for us Scandinavians.

As all money involved is from welfare funds the need for that nasty "Pay Income Tax" square disappears. I converted the square to the "Chrysler Corporation". Land on this one and you get $50,000 from the dispenser of government funds!

I should mention a new card in the Community Chest pile. It's called the "National Endowment for the Arts" card. If after drawing it you can hum "Yankee-Doodle" or recite "Mary Had A Little Lamb" you receive a $400 grant.

The doubters will criticize my game on the basis that the government funds will be drained so rapidly a game couldn't last 30 minutes. They are overlooking the fact that each Welfare Monopoly carton includes a miniature printing press. When the funds run dry the players take a short break and watch with shining-eyes as the person in charge cranks out a fresh supply of money. Incidentally I got this ingenious idea from observing some of our politicians in action.

The only stumbling block ahead is getting the game on the market before President Reagan and David Stockman make it obsolete.

Tribute To Retiring Board Members

The following poem by Collette Winfield, the wife of a Ripon, WI, school board member, was published in the "Wisconsin School News", published by the Wisconsin association of school boards:

We honor soldiers, scouts, and jocks,
And boast they've made us proud.
We ticker tape our hostages;
For Presidents, we crowd.

We even honor horses
Who win a triple crown,
And for "syntaxless" governors
We'd don a tux or gown.

We tend to think that heroes
Live in someone else's town.
We're always looking elsewhere
For the guy of some renown.

And while we're poised with noses high
For those elsewhere to laud,
We miss the hometown hero
To whom we ought to give the nod.

He's the guy who'll run for school board
When others say, "Oh, gee!
I'd like to serve, but not right now.
I've got no time, you see."

He's the guy who takes the criticism
When football teams don't win,
And roofs all leak, and buses squeak,
And kids are drinking gin.

When halls are messy, money's tight,
And Central's walls are crumbling;
When students are all skipping class
And dads and moms are grumbling,

He works to build the future
Through the classroom, stage, and horn;
Through the shop, the gym, the lab, the swim,
A child's soul to adorn.

He guards each special program
With an eye toward what is right.
And needs that funds will not support
Vex him deep into the night.

He has no badge of honor.
No laurel wreath he wears.
His "head is bloody, but unbowed."
While some will scoff, he cares.

Regardless of adversity
He firmly advocates;
Defending teachers, staff and kids
He studies, thinks, creates.

He pleases some, he angers some,
Some think he's really great.
His body thins; his cheeks cave in,
And bald spots grace his pate.

When hero's medals are passed out,
And plaques are all inscribed,
The guy who takes a school board seat
Should not be all deprived.

For he has done what some would not.
He's given all that's best;
That youth may take into their lives
Skills equal to the test.

Look not about for strangers bold
Who seem so strong in nerve.
The school board guy's a hero, too.
He's humbly proud to serve.

Borrowed Nonsense:

A man charged with murder bribed one of the jurors to hold out for a verdict of manslaughter. When the manslaughter verdict came in after a long deliberation, the juror confided to the defendant: "That was one of the toughest arguments I ever had. All the rest of them wanted to acquit you."

New definitions: Debate — what fishermen use to attract fish; accoustic — a rod used to shoot pool; denial — a river in Egypt; drydock — a thirsty physician; stagnation — a country without any women.

LIKE OCEAN WAVES is the swaying movement demanded of the audience by this member of the cast of the Commedia Theater company which appeared in Thief River Falls Friday as part of the art in the park program. In addition to making the ocean waves roll, the audience was called upon to act as ghosts in a later part of the play. A good crowd was in attendance for the play which followed a pork barbecue supper.

Fair To Open Thursday; Carnival Runs On Wed.

Carnival atmosphere to get people in the mood for opening of the Pennington county fair Thursday will be created Wednesday when the Matt Armstrong shows will be in operation at the Pennington county fairgrounds. The carnival will observe the first of three kiddies days Wednesday although entry day for the four-day fair will be a day later.

Kiddies days will be observed Wednesday, Friday and Sunday from 1 to 6 p.m., during which time children who purchase $7 ride bracelets will be able to ride as many carnival rides as they like.

Entries are to be made Thursday in both open class and 4-H club divisions with exhibits to be accepted from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. In the 4-H club department there will be conference judging used, whereby the judges will visit with each entrant about the items exhibited and give comments on the entries. Clothing construction and dress revue judging were conducted Thursday at the Thief River Falls city auditorium with the public dress revue scheduled for Sunday at 2:30 p.m. in the sports arena.

Entries are still being received for the amateur talent contest to be held on the first night of the fair Thursday. Eligible to participate are individuals or groups of any age who are amateur performers. Cash prizes are being offered and entry forms are available from Larson Music company in Thief River Falls.

Chairman Jim Hallamek is also seeking additional entries for a new event at the fair this year — mud wrestling. There will be three weight classes for men and two for women with two-minute matches scheduled and modified professional wrestling rules used, Hallamek said. Wins will be decided by pins and winners will advance within the weight classes. Cash prizes of $60 for first and $40 for second are offered in each weight class.

Entry fee will be $5 per person but will be refunded after the entrant wrestles, Hallamek said. The event is sponsored by the Thief River Falls evening Lions club and is scheduled for 2 p.m. in front of the grandstand at the fairgrounds.

Weight classes for men will be under 130 pounds, 131 to 180 pounds and 181 pounds and over. Classes for women will be under 130 pounds and 131 pounds and over. An 18-foot "ring" will be used with six to eight inches of mud forming the base. Entries may be made at Vacuum Headquarters in the Falls Mall. All proceeds will go to community projects sponsored by the evening Lions club.

In addition to the opening night talent show and the Sunday afternoon mud wrestling program, other entertainment events will include the always popular demolition derby Friday at 7 p.m., 4-H club horse show Saturday at 9 a.m., open class dog show at 1 p.m., horse racing including chariots and chuck wagons at 7 p.m. and the Sunday finale at 7:30 p.m. featuring Margo Smith and her country western music show.

FLOWER GARDENING and working in the farm yard to keep it trimmed and neat are summer pastimes for Lynne Krohn of Viking. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Duane Krohn, Lynne will be a sophomore at the University of North Dakota this fall. She was Region One dairy princess in 1980-81.

Lynne Krohn In Queen Pageant

(Editor's Note: This is the fifth in a series of interviews with candidates for the Miss Thief River Falls title at the annual Jaycee Aquacade pageant. The official Miss America preliminary event will be held Saturday, August 1, at 8 p.m. at the Lincoln high school auditorium.)

Among several Miss Thief River Falls candidates who hold or have held titles of royalty is Lynne Krohn of Viking, who reigned during 1980 and 1981 as Northwest Dairy Princess, representing Region One at the Minnesota state fair.

Lynne, 19, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Duane Krohn of Viking, a graduate of Marshall county central high school at Newfolden in 1980 and will be a sophomore at the University of North Dakota this fall. She is five feet six inches tall, weighs 125 pounds, has blond hair and blue eyes. Her pageant talent number will be a musical act.

Interested in teaching young children, Lynne is working on a degree in elementary education and special education. While in high school she was a homecoming queen attendant, honor roll student, participant in plays and musicals and an officer of the Future Homemakers of America. She received a leadership award for four years of membership in the school drill team and was also the recipient of the key award for junior leadership in the Marshall county 4-H club program.

Lynne has a brother, Ken, and three sisters, Becky, Marge and Karen. She enjoys traveling and has been to London and Paris as well as a number of eastern states in this country and several places in Canada. Her hobbies include swimming, dancing, sewing, wetbike riding, basketball and racquetball.

Welfare Board To Meet Tues.

Pennington county welfare board will meet Tuesday in the Pennington county court house in Thief River Falls at 7 p.m.

Puppet Drama Program At Library Wed.

All area children are invited to participate in puppet theater-creative dramatics program at the Northwest regional library, 101 East First Street, Thief River Falls at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday. Program will last one hour.

Recommended age level for students participating in the class is seven to 12. The class will first concentrate on creative movement and pantomime and then move on to exercises in sensitivity, characterization, dialogue, and dramatic form through the use of puppets. Instructor for the class is Heidi Bornholdt.

Bornholdt, a 1973 Lincoln high school graduate, is currently the head librarian at Elbow Lake — Wendell public schools and library consultant for the Barrett public schools as well as Elbow Lake-Wendell musical director, children's theater director, puppet play director, and head forensics coach. She also is the local education association secretary and the faculty liason to the local parent-teacher organization.

Bornholdt received her M.A. in library science from the University of Minnesota and her B.S. ed. in Speech-Theater Arts from University of North Dakota.

Farmers May Rotate Reserve Grain Stocks

Leo Orpen, chairman, Marshall County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) committee wishes to announce that 1976 thru 1980 crop grain in the three year reserve program may be rotated.

With the tight storage situation on many farms and the prospects of an excellent grain crop, many farmers may wish to rotate their old crop in storage and replace it with 1981 crop grain, he said. This is possible with written permission from the local ASCS committee, he added.

There are three options under which the grain may be rotated. Option 1: the producer may move the grain to an approved warehouse and place it under storage. He would then deposit the warehouse receipt with the county ASCS office until he has the grain replaced on the farm. At that time his warehouse receipt would be returned and he could market the grain;

Option 2: the producer would sell the grain for cash and deposit the proceeds from the sale grain with the county office. When the grain is replaced on the farm the cash proceeds would then be returned to the producers by the local ASCS office;

Option 3: the producer may market the grain under a price later contract for cash and not be required to deposit the money with the local ASCS office.

Orpen stated that the reserve stocks may be released to the producer 30 days before the producer intends to have the replacement stocks back in the farm storage.

Also he stated that each producer must receive written permission from the local ASCS committee before moving any reserve grain. Any producer interested in rotating reserve grain should contact his local ASCS office for more details.

Hearing Clears Way For Arctic To Pursue Sale

Hearings Friday before Judge Jacob Dim in U.S. bankruptcy court in St. Paul have cleared the way for Arctic Enterprises of Thief River Falls to aggressively pursue the sale of its snowmobile operations, according to company president Kenneth Severinson and corporate counsel Donald Swenson.

Secured lenders and committees representing unsecured lenders and shareholders all approved the agreement presented by Arctic Enterprises to the bankruptcy court. The company's intent is to remain viable, Severinson and Swenson said, and the creditors agree that it is to their advantage for the company to continue operations.

The court Friday approved the agreement which the company had reached with its creditors on June 26. That agreement calls for sale of the snowmobile and garment operations with the company to continue its Lund, Larson and Silverline marine operations. Also approved was company operation of its snowmobile division pending sale. Such operation would include the sale of parts, garments, accessories and 1981 model carryover snowmobiles from existing stock.

Swenson said the company also plans to maintain a complete stock of replacement parts for its existing snowmobile models and that such an inventory may require some purchasing. He said the company has been able to generate enough cash collateral from operations to support its operations.

Also approved by the court Friday was an agreement with the Borg Warner Acceptance corporation and two of its affiliated companies. Borg Warner is the company which provided dealer floor plan financing to dealers in the Arctic snowmobile and marine distribution system.

Under the agreement, Borg Warner will furnish floor plan financing for Arctic marine products (Larson, Lund and Silverline boats) for the 1982 model year. In connection with such financing, Borg Warner is being given "super priority" under terms of the court for security interests on an interim basis, placing the floor plan company ahead of the banks in the security progression. The marine floor planning funds are to be made available in early August.

Borg Warner had withheld floor plan funding since February when Arctic filed its bankruptcy proceeding under Chapter 11 of the bankruptcy code. Agreement was also reached through Friday's hearing on what funding Arctic would receive from Borg Warner on floor plan merchandise in the pipeline at the time of the bankruptcy filing. The agreement set a ceiling on claims by Borg Warner as an unsecured creditor for past and future repurchase obligations under the prior contract.

Since Arctic had included its Canadian operations (Arctic Sports Products Ltd. of Canada) under its U.S. bankruptcy filing, an automatic stay was placed on that company which prevented creditors from taking action for claims against it. The banks asked that the stay be lifted, and at Friday's hearing Judge Dim granted the request. A receiver will now be appointed to manage the Canadian operations while bankruptcy proceedings are carried out under Canadian law.

Authorization was given by the court for Arctic to continue to use cash collateral generated by the sale of inventory and collection of receivables until the next court hearing which will be in

Library Seeks Children For Aug. 1 Parade

Northwest regional library invites all area children to represent the library at the annual Jaycee Aquacade parade on August 1.

All that is required is for children to come in a costume which depicts a book character. If interested please call the library at 681-4325 by July 27 to register.

JUDGES APPRECIATED the efforts by this youngster participating Thursday in the Pennington county 4-H fashion revue and clothing construction contest. The actual fashion revue at which winners will be announced will take place Sunday at 2:30 p.m. in the sports arena at the fairgrounds during the annual Pennington county fair.

CO-CHAIRMEN for art in the park in Thief River Falls Friday were Steve Anderson and Marge Hanson, shown above as they inspected some of the art projects completed by young participants in the event. The paintings were made by dropping brilliantly colored paints on paper and then tilting the paper to let the colors run.

Donations To Bench Project Are Listed

Contributions from Thief River Falls area organizations and businesses have made possible the installation of benches for public use in downtown Thief River Falls.

Twelve benches in the process of being installed were completed at a cost of $60 each. Donors include the city of Thief River Falls, two benches; Lions auxiliary; noon Lions club, two benches; evening Lions club; First Northwestern state bank; Northern state bank; J.C. Penney company; Thomas Drug; American Legion club; and Thief River Falls Education association.

Additional benches are being prepared and sponsors have been secured.

Cystic Fibrosis Benefit Slated In St. Hilaire

Jenette Walseth and Dennis Mills have volunteered to organize a special event to be held this fall in St. Hilaire to benefit the cystic fibrosis foundation, according to Ron Swain, president of the Minnesota chapter of the foundation.

Cystic fibrosis (CF) is an inherited disease that affects the lungs and digestive organs of its victims. One in every 1,800 American children inherits this devastating disease when he or she receives a gene for CF from each of his or her parents. It is estimated that 10 million Americans are symptomless and unknowing carriers of this gene. At this time, there is no cure for cystic fibrosis.

The fund raiser will help support research programs and medical care to lengthen the lives of all those who suffer from CF through over 120 Cystic fibrosis medical centers in the United States. These CF centers specialize in the diagnosis and care of children and adults with cystic fibrosis.

For more information contact Jenette Walseth, chairperson at 218-964-5703.

Final Plans Made For Demo Derby

Thief River Falls Jaycees have completed plans for the demolition derby to be held at the Pennington county fairgrounds on Friday at 7 p.m. Evening program will have $1,500 in cash and trophies for the various heat, feature and grand slam events.

Drivers, including many previous winners, will provide plenty of action for the entire family as they try for the prize money. Over $500 in trophies will be presented to the top place finishers. Other awards will be given for the best paint, best crew, sportsmanship, and true grit entries.

Entry fee for the derby is $25 per car (includes two pitmen). Pit gates open at 5 p.m., the driver's meeting is at 6:45 p.m. and the action starts at 7 p.m. sharp.

Entry forms are available at Total Auto, Big A Auto, Valley Auto and at the Chamber of Commerce, or by calling 681-2430 or 681-3339 evenings. The demolition derby is one of the main evening shows of the Pennington county fair running July 23-26. For more information contact Dick Zeman, 681-3339; Dave Cariveau, 681-2430; or Randy Adamson, 681-7073.

WATERCOLOR painting was demonstrated by Jill Ramberg during art in the park in Thief River Falls Friday. These youngsters seemed absorbed in what the artist was creating and the technique being used. Several of the artists and craftsmen demonstrated as well as exhibited at the event, adding to the educational value of the program.

SOCIETY and CLUBS

American Legion Aux. Notes 1980-81 Activities

Year-end report of the Ecklund-Holmstrom American Legion auxiliary, unit 117, compiled by unit president LaVonne Swanson and unit historian Eileen Horejsh, was given at a recent meeting of the unit. Information was provided the various committee chairmen.

The Americanism chairman stated that all meetings were opened with the advance of colors and the pledge of allegiance. Unit colors were carried in the National, Department and district parades, at the local Flag Day ceremony, the Memorial Day services, local and area parades, and at the dedication ceremony for the Veterans Memorial gardens at the Thief River Falls regional airport. A small flag and a pamphlet on flag etiquette were given each new member. It was also noted that Annabelle Cuppett had presented the unit with the band which was on the unit flag she had carried at the National convention in Boston, Mass.

Report given by the Children and Youth chairman indicated that several members had attended the district Children and Youth school; that the unit sponsored three students at Legionville, and that a donation had been given to the Forgotten Children's fund. At Christmas the Legion and auxiliary cosponsor Santa Claus day at the club rooms, showed movies, served cookies and beverage to the children and their parents, and distributed candy bags and apples to the children attending, as well as to those at the local Day Activity Center.

The Education and Scholarship committee noted that together with the post they had honored all the teachers in the Thief River Falls and Goodridge schools. Two scholarships were given, one to a Northland Community college student, and the other to a student attending the local AVTI. Those students, together with their parents were honored at a supper and meeting of the unit. Two auxiliary awards were presented to Lincoln high school seniors; "Need a Lift" booklets were given to the local library and five schools; and a donation had been given to the Department scholarship fund. At each meeting, a coin march was held for the scholarship fund.

Communications and public relations chairman reported excellent publicity in the local newspaper, on radio and the local Post bulletin. Special coverage had been given to the Rey's Syndrome program, poppy days, dedication at the local airport and flag day activities.

Community service projects included participation in the Meals on Wheels, National Cerebral Palsy telethon, Community Kidney auction; solicitations and donations at community drives, Heart Fund, March of Dimes, United Fund, Blood bank, and Kidney Foundation; hosting two meals a year for the Friendship club, donation of groceries to a needy person, and assistance with games and prizes twice monthly at Oakland Park Nursing home.

Financial secretary stated that the unit operated on a budget, and that all books were audited. It was noted that all donations and gifts had been made to the unit, district and department programs, and monies had been given to members for traveling to district and department meetings.

Girls State committee announced that the unit sponsored three girls to Girls State. The girls were from the Thief River Falls, Goodridge and Grygla schools. In addition, the unit paid for the girls' physicals, gave each some spending money and had the girls and their parents as guests at the October meeting.

The historian reported that the scrapbook was kept current, as was the past presidents plaque, and that copies of the history report were made available to the members.

The leadership development featured a training course in March with several area units represented. The local unit served a noon lunch and afternoon coffee to the 35 leaders attending.

Membership chairman stated that the Ninth district president Mrs. Raymond Rapacz assisted with the initiation of new members at the February meeting. A membership tea was held in September with members paying their dues and receiving their membership cards. In addition to sending notices, having a calling committee and providing car-caravan pickups, the committee called the wife, mother and daughter of each new member of the Legion, giving them information on the unit activities. It was noted that the membership includes 20 Gold Star mothers, a Gold Star wife, seven life members, whose dues are paid by the unit; and Gold Star Mother Mrs. Emil (Sigrid) Griebstein, who is 100 years old.

Junior activities included making decorations for the CNC unit at Northwestern hospital and visiting with the residents there, setting tables and serving the Veterans day and Birthday dinner at the club, making Poppy posters, and selling candy for junior auxiliary financial needs.

Memorial chairman recorded the honoring of Gold Star members at a special banquet, a memorial service for departed members, participation in the Memorial Day services, and attendance, as a group, at funeral services for auxiliary members.

Legislative chairman stated that the unit received the legislative bulletin, attention was made of pertinent bills and letters were sent to the legislators. Letters were also written concerning National security; and donations were made to Radio Free Europe, Servicemen's Center, Auxiliary Emergency fund, and to the Ninth District band for new uniforms.

Past Presidents Parley consists of an organized group of past presidents who meet about three times a year and are honored guests at the American Legion Birthday dinner. They assist with the installation of unit officers, work on membership, send cards at Christmas to women veterans and service women, and work as volunteers in the game activities at Oakland Park Nursing home.

The poppy chairman reported an increase in poppy orders and business cards. She noted that two days were devoted to Poppy day, a dozen large poppies were given to 14 churches for Memorial day, and that Poppies were used for Memorial wreaths, and for decorations and corsages during the year. A Poppy queen was elected and was honored both locally and at the district convention.

The energy chairman spoke at several meetings, giving useful energy saving tips; and the music chairman stated that each meeting opened and closed with music with special music highlighting the Veterans day and the Legion Birthday dinners.

Veterans Affairs and Rehabilitation chairman reported the greatest number of donations. Included were donations to the Fargo Veterans hospital for the May birthdays, the Department and District presidents projects, the Dollar Bill shower, gift shop, Chaplain of Four Chaplains, Fargo Veterans hospital coffee party, Valentine party, Christmas party; Minneapolis Veterans hospital birthday party, Servicemens center, Ely fishing trip for veterans, and Minnesota Veterans home fishing trip. The unit also contributed six lap robes and 11 pairs of slippers to the Fargo Veterans hospital; and sent cancelled postage stamps to the Department project. Locally, 48 fruit baskets were given to veterans and shut-ins last Christmas.

Serving as auxiliary officers for 1980-81 were Mrs. Phil (LaVonne) Swanson, president; Mrs. Larry (Betty) Graff, first vice-president; Mrs. Edward (Lovanelle) Kraemer, second vice-president; Mrs. Mayer (Colleen) Holen, secretary; Mrs. Joseph (Eileen) Horejsh, membership secretary; Mrs. James (Annabelle) Cuppett, treasurer; Mrs. Floyd (Karen) Fredrickson and Mrs. Don (Barbara) Thompson, sergeants-at-arms; Mrs. Med (Flora) Mercil, chaplain; Mrs. Joseph (Eileen) Horejsh, historian; and Mrs. L.W. (Marilyn) Winters, Mrs. Orville (Betty) Feragen and Mrs. Robert (JoAnn) Reeve, executive board members.

Pioneer Village Toured By Deer Park Garden Club

July meeting of the Deer Park garden club was highlighted by a tour of the Pennington county Pioneer Village. Places visited were the museum, log cabins, country home, a rural church and school, general store, railroad depot complete with wooden platform, and several flower gardens. The guide informed the group that a wedding had been held recently at the Village.

Following the tour, the members assembled at the home of Mrs. Eugene Prestegaard for the regular business meeting. President Ethel Wiseth presided. Members answered roll call by listing what impressed them most on the tour. One commented on the huge collection of hats, a passion of the pioneer women.

Announcement was made that the State Horticulture flower show will be held at Crookston August 7 and 8. Members are urged to attend as state conventions held in the northern area are a rarity. The theme of the state meeting will be "The Heart of the Red River Valley." It was noted that during the convention, members will have the choice of touring the International Peace gardens, or Winnipeg.

The district flower show to be held at the Warroad school on August 16, was also discussed.

The next regular meeting of the garden club will be the organizational meeting in September at the home of Luella Peterson. Roll call will be "How do you store your bulbs?" Members are to bring recipes for exchange. A tasting luncheon, "The exciting world of vegetables" will be held.

Campanula Club Meet Includes Garden Tour

Campanula garden club July meeting was held at the home of Olga Johnson with six members attending. Also present was Bertha Hastad, a former member of the club.

President Ruth Holmes presided at the meeting and led the group in the reading of the club purpose and the July poem. Mrs. Emil Koglin gave the report on the May meeting, Olga Johnson reported on the financial condition of the club, and Bernice Knutson presented the Good Cheer report.

Two coming events were publicized. They were the Pennington county fair, set for July 23-26, and the Minnesota Horticultural state convention to be held August 6-9 at the University of Minnesota, Crookston. It was noted that the state convention will feature tours to Winnipeg, the Morden experimental station, and the International Peace Gardens. Members were encouraged to attend the state convention and to take advantage of the tours offered.

During the meeting, Olga Johnson gave flower exhibiting tips; and members were reminded to tend the flower plots at the court house.

The sack lunch, eaten outdoors, included a macaroni salad brought by Ruth Holmes, a jello salad, provided by Olga Johnson, and a variety of cookies and banana bread provided by other members.

The meeting concluded with the tour of Olga Johnson's flower garden, the plots at the local airport, the Gavin gardens at St. Hilaire; and the flower gardens at the homes of Emil Koglin, Gena Overum, Mrs. Walter Fisher, Mrs. Victor Franson and Ruth Holmes.

Soo Line Lists $6.4 Million In Net Income

Soo Line railroad company earned net income of $6.4 million in the second quarter of 1981, an increase of 54 per cent over net income of $4.2 million for the second quarter of 1980, according to Thomas M. Beckley, president.

Earnings per share for the second quarter were 84 cents compared to 54 cents for the second quarter of 1980. Revenues for the second quarter were $79.9 million, an increase of 12 per cent over revenues of $71.1 million for the second quarter of 1980.

Net income for the first six months of 1981 was $17.5 million or $2.30 per share, up 16 per cent over net income of $15.1 million or $1.99 per share for the same period of 1980. Revenues for the six months amounted to $159.4 million, up five per cent over 1980.

Second quarter net income was increased by $1.1 million as a result of the settlement of litigation involving Wisconsin property taxes. In 1980, second quarter net income was increased by $900,000 due to property tax refunds and dividend income from an affiliate.

During the second quarter there were increases in shipments of sulphur, potash, lumber, woodpulp and primary metals. Movement of pulpwood and woodchips, grain, liquefied petroleum gas and paper were down, however. Total revenue ton-miles were up 2.5 per cent for the quarter but down six per cent for the first six months.

The Soo is continuing with its track improvement program, Beckley said. So far this year the Soo has relaid 36 miles of track with welded rail. Soo expects to relay more than 120 miles of track with welded rail in 1981 compared with 109 miles installed in 1980.

Wheat Growers Fight Cargo Preference

Minnesota association of wheat growers has asked Congressional leaders to repeal the cargo preference provisions of the public law 480 — food for peace program.

Cargo preference regulations require that 50 per cent of the P.L. 480 tonnage purchased under Title I of the act be carried in U.S. flag vessels, to the extent that they are available.

According to Fred Kreps, president of the Minnesota wheat growers from Felton, the wheat growers have long been advocates of repealing the cargo preference laws. He said cargo preference was designed as a subsidy to the U.S. maritime industry, but it has never been used as it was intended.

Instad of capitalizing on this guaranteed freight allocation to expand the U.S. flag fleet with efficient bulk carriers, he reports that the shipping industry has utilized the program to bring into service out-dated, deteriorated or specialized vessels not suitable for efficient grain transportation.

Kreps says that many problems arise when cargo preference rules are applied and bulk carriers are not used. He cited as a recent example, a P.L. 480 shipment to Sri Lanka. According to Kreps, the Prima flour mills in Sri Lanka have recently installed the most modern pneumatic high speed unloading equipment with the aid of U.S. assistance.

"This new equipment only works efficiently when running at full capacity," Kreps stated. "The twin deckers and tankers, used under cargo preference have small and hard to locate compartments, requiring the sophisticated equipment to be run at less than capacity," he said. This slow-down, Kreps says, causes extensive wear on the equipment.

Kreps stated that U.S. flag vessels generally cost more to operate than foreign flag vessels with the additional charges paid for from the P.L. 480 budget. Without the cargo preference provisions, an additional $75 million of the P.L.480 appropriation could be used to purchase additional quantities of grain, he said.

"We do not seek program changes that would injure the U.S. maritime industry," Kreps states, "but we do wish to see steps taken which can expand the quantities of wheat and other commodities made available under the P.L.480 program and provide for their efficient transportation and discharge."

He added, "Cargo preference laws not only reduce the quantity of grain shipped and increase the cost to the buyer, it can also result in deterioration of grain quality during transport. This will tend to reduce potential exports of grains and could ultimately cause reduced exports to a country when it becomes cash customer."

"For these reasons," Kreps said, "the repeal of the cargo preference rules is important to wheat growers."

Tourism More Than Fishing In Minnesota

Minnesota has traditionally been viewed as a state of pine trees, wildlife and open spaces for fishing and relaxing. And these are the things we think of when discussing the state's tourism industry.

While these are, indeed, major attractions, tourism in Minnesota is becoming more than the chance to camp out and catch a few walleyes, according to the experts.

David Gaitley, Minnesota's assistant director of tourism, points out that the state bureau of tourism has been working to explain this to potential travelers.

"The last several years," Gaitley said, "we've tried to paint a picture that there is in fact more to do; and that's where our slogan came about — 'Minnesota. Lakes and a whole lot more.'"

Gaitley said that high gas prices have caused many vacationers to take fewer trips each year. Instead of numerous three or four-day jaunts, common in the 1960s and early 70s, people are choosing to stay in one area for a week or two, he said, taking time to see and do more.

"The small historical societies in various communities are developing more and more, adding to their collections, and people are visiting them," Gaitley said. "Summer festivals seem to be growing. We publicize them, and they seem to be developing pretty well."

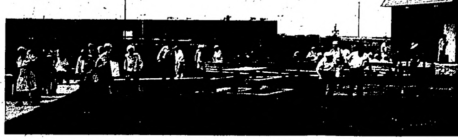
Promoting lesser-known activities was a smart move, said University of Minnesota tourism specialist Uel Blank. He sees the lakes and streams as already crowded, and thinks spreading people out will create a more peaceful, quality vacation for everyone.

"When we sell fishing and camping, we're not doing the best thing that we can do," Blank said, "because there are just so many fish in our lakes and streams. But you can sell them (tourists) an experience in the north woods, and you can sell them a view of the North Shore. There's no limit to the number of people who can see that and it continues undiminished, if you manage the accesses properly."

There are varying figures for the size of the tourism industry in Minnesota. Bureau of tourism officials estimated that the state spends about $450,000 a year attracting tourists, including residents who vacation within the state. The bureau estimates that Minnesota takes in about $2 billion in tourism receipts, putting it in the top 10 in the nation in that category. This is a conservative figure, according to Blank. He said that use of a comprehensive definition of tourists and their expenditures would result in a total tourism impact of close to $4 billion.

The reason for the success of the state's tourism industry is simple, according to Gaitley. The scenery and attractions draw a variety of people.

"In Minnesota, we have everything that anybody could possibly want in a vacation," Gaitley said. "It doesn't make any difference whether you're an active, adventurous person, or the type of person who wants quiet and solitude, or a history or restaurant buff. We have all those things here, and you don't need to look very far to satisfy any of your needs."



SENIOR CITIZENS from Valley home in Thief River Falls leave the scene of an outdoor concert Friday. The bandshell and benches placed in the area were used for the second time since their installation in the park which is being donated by the Lowell Swenson family. The residents enjoyed not only the concert but an exceptionally fine day weatherwise as well.

"MORNING DARKNESS", the swing band from Franklin middle school in Thief River Falls, presented a concert Friday during art in the park in L.B. Hartz park near the national guard armory. The band was under the direction of Mike Lehrer and was one of several groups presenting dance and music numbers during the day.

HELPING HIS DAUGHTER play with a balloon fastened to his display was Carl Medin, whose stained glass items drew admiring looks from many visitors to art in the park Friday. Medin is from Brainerd and his work included a variety of original works including beveled and etched glass and mirrors as well as stained glass.

Authority Says State Should Use Some Of Its Peat

Many objections to using Minnesota's peat as an energy source are unfounded and blown out of proportion, according to a University of Minnesota agricultural experiment station scientist who has studied peat use for 25 years.

Rouse Farnham, an internationally-known peat researcher, feels that Minnesotans who oppose harvesting of the state's peat deposits object for reasons not always borne out by scientific research. Peat has been used for fuel in other countries for years, he said, without harm to the surrounding land.

In light of rising costs of oil and natural gas, Farnham said, Minnesotans should consider using some of its peat.

"We could use a small amount and get a lot of energy from it," he said. For instance, Farnham said, a city the size of Hibbing, Bemidji, Virginia or Grand Rapids could supply its electrical and heating needs for 20 years by harvesting about 1,000 acres of peat to a depth of 10 feet. He stressed that only cities near the peat deposits, such as the range cities, should consider using peat for fuel. Places like the Twin Cities would not be practical for peat use because of high transportation costs and the large amounts needed, he said.

Farnham feels that the public is misinformed on the issue, especially the potential magnitude of the proposed use. He points out that much of the state's 7.5 million acres of peatland lies within state and national forests, wildlife refuges and other recreation areas. None of these peatlands would be considered for use, he said.

"A lot of bogs will never be developed," he said. "Of those 7.5 million acres, there are about four million that are undeveloped. That's where the (development) sites would come from."

People also shouldn't worry that harvested peatlands will be a scar on the countryside, Farnham said. He talks about areas in Europe where harvested peat bogs have been reclaimed to crops, trees and even to breeding grounds and recreation areas.

"All we need to do," he said, "is select sites which will minimize any harm to the environment. I think we will prove this can be done. In my opinion (after a bog is harvested), it can be reclaimed to crops and looks more productive than it did in its natural state.

"One big misconception is that a peat bog acts as a giant sponge," he said, "to keep water from flooding the receiving streams. For one thing, when you drain a bog, it increases its ability to hold water. You have complete control over it if your ditch design was planned right. In nature, there's no control over it.

"People think peat bogs are flat. Only the small ones are. The large bogs all slope; all the ones you'd harvest slope anywhere from five to 10 feet per mile. But you can design a drainage and water-control system to do what you want it to do. You can make it so it provides water to a stream in low-water conditions, or have it do the opposite if needed," he added.

In response to the question of whether water quality in nearby lakes and streams would be adversely affected after draining a bog, Farnham said this is where careful site selection and mitigatior against any environmental impacts becomes important.

"You wouldn't drain a bog that had a lake in it," he said. He pointed out several studies, including a four-year project he worked with in Minnesota. The research showed, he said, that certain peatlands could be drained, fertilized and used for crop production without affecting the pH, nitrate or phosphate levels in streams and lakes draining the land. But because the hydrology and water chemistry of all peatlands are not the same, he warned, many of them should not even be considered for development.

"I would hope that we don't have to use any of them for energy" Farnham said. "But if it gets to the point that the price of fossil fuels becomes exorbitant, I think it would be in the best interest of the state of Minnesota to develop our own indigenous alternate fuel. I don't advocate using peat forever as an energy source. I think we should use it in the interim period until we develop solar energy, or some other alternative. Peat is renewable until we harvest and burn more than is being produced, and we aren't mining any right now."

The Minnesota Energy agency is, however, investigating the potential uses of Minnesota's peatlands. Dennis Devereaux, spokesman for the agency's alternative energy projects activity, said that right now the state feels that harvesting enough peat in selected bogs to level the ground to allow planting of renewable energy crops (cattails, willows, alders, etc.) would be the best use of Minnesota's peatlands.

"We may have a lot of peat in Minnesota," Devereaux said, "but we still view it as a finite resource. We could use it all up in 50 years or so if we mined it intensively. We (the agency) say it's OK to use some of it to get a harvesting system going; and then we should plant energy crops on the mined peat bogs that can be renewed every year."

Farnham agrees with the state energy agency and the department of natural resources (DNR) that peat harvesting in Minnesota should be started on a small scale. Then, if it proves successful, he said, it should proceed slowly in selected areas, with strict laws designed to restore and protect the environment.

"That's the only way we're going to prove if it's good, bad or indifferent," he said. "It's my feeling there's enough underutilized land out there that we can allocate it for many uses including preservation."

TRFAHA Plans Dunking Stand During Fair

Thief River Falls amateur hockey association (TRFAHA) officials have announced that they will operate a dunking stand at the 1981 Pennington county fair, scheduled to be held Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday in Thief River Falls.

Proceeds from the dunking stand will be used to help cover the cost of installation of artificial ice in the old arena, a project expected to be completed early this fall.

"We are now in a position to develop a definitive plan of reorganization and disclosure statement," attorney Swenson said. "The disclosure statement will be similar to a prospectus for a stock issue and will set forth material facts to enable creditors and shareholders to make an informed judgment on whether or not to approve the plan of reorganization."

Swenson said the plan of reorganization would be filed with the court in several weeks along with the disclosure statement. If the judge determines that the disclosure statement is sufficient to permit creditors and shareholders to make an informed judgment, he will approve mailing of a summary of the organization plan and the statement to creditors and shareholders.

After a given period of time, creditors and shareholders will vote on acceptance of the reorganization plan. Passage requires two-thirds of the dollar amount claimed by creditors and one-half of the number in each class of creditors. Shareholders will be counted in number. Creditors with claims against the company will vote in the amount of those claims, Swenson said.

While the company expects to entertain offers for purchase of the snowmobile operations and to seek potential buyers, it is not expected that any new owner would be in a position to produce snowmobiles for the 1982 model year.

Fair To Open Thursday For Four-Day Run

some changes at the fairgrounds this year, among them the installation of a fence which will run from the sports arena to the grandstand. This fence will assist in crowd control, principally keeping people away from the track during horse racing events. The fence will be covered with tarpaulins during the fair.

Officers of the board are optimistic for another successful fair with livestock entries appearing to be good in both 4-H club and open class and a large number of entries again expected in 4-H, senior citizen and other open class divisions in the sports arena.

There is no admission to the county fair which has operated with a free gate for a number of years. A small charge is made for auto parking on the grounds.

Services Held For Blonden Peterson, 75

Mrsn Manfred (Blonden) Peterson, 75, of Greenbush, died July 12 at the United hospital in Grand Forks, N.D., following a brief illness.

Funeral services for Mrs. Blonden Peterson were held Tuesday at 10:00 a.m., at the Blessed Sacrament Catholic church in Greenbush with Rev. Mike Patnode offering the Mass. Interment was in the church cemetery. The Collins Funeral home, Greenbush, was in charge of arrangements.

Pallbearers were Leslie Peterson, Mitchell Peterson, Kerry Peterson, Ray Pederson, Ron Jackson and Rodney Sikorski. Recitation of the Roseary was by fellow members of St. Ann's Sodality.

Mrs. Peterson, the former Blonden Mary Troskey, was born March 8, 1906 in Barto township of Roseau county, near Greenbush, to Paul and Martha Troskey. She was baptized and confirmed in St. Aloysius Catholic church in the Leo community, and attended school and grew to womanhood there.

On June 29, 1926, she was married in Minneapolis to Manfred E. Peterson. The couple lived and farmed near Greenbush until 1965, when they retired and moved into Greenbush.

She was a member of the Blessed Sacrament Catholic church, St. Ann's Sodality, and the Greenbush Senior Citizen group.

Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. Orville (Kay) Pederson, Fosston; one son, Kenneth Peterson, Chasha; nine grandchildren, eight great-grandchildren; a sister, Mrs. Helen Friedricks, Sauk Centre; and one brother, Anton Troskey, Milwaukee, Wis.

She was preceded in death by her husband, who died in June of 1971, a daughter, two sisters and two brothers.

David Linder Rites Held At Pelan Church

Funeral services for David Linder, 32, of Strathcona were held Tuesday, July 7, at 2:00 p.m., at the Pelan Park church. Linder was the victim of a traffic accident on July 2, on highway 32, about four miles south of Thief River Falls.

Rev. Robert Ludwig officiated at the services. Special music was provided by the Northern Gospel Singers. Interment was in the Paull Lutheran cemetery, rural Greenbush with military honors accorded by the Greenbush American Legion post 88.

Pallbearers were Jerome Brazier, Peter Beito, Robert Bushie, Mark Lundquist, Mark Winger and Randy Black.

David Allen Linder was born July 27, 1949 to Arthur and Delores Linder. He was raised on a farm near Strathcona, attended school at Strathcona and Greenbush, was baptized at the Bethesda Lutheran church, Strandquist, and confirmed at the Faith Evangelical church, Strathcona.

He served in the U.S. Army from Oct. 23, 1967 until Jan. 22, 1971. While in the service, he spent 18 months in Vietnam, where he received four bronze stars for bravery and five battle stars.

On June 26, 1971, he was married to Henrietta Ann Kuznia.

He had recently been employed at dry wall and construction.

Surviving are his parents, a son, Jeremiah Daniel; one daughter, Carrie Ann; one brother, James Linder, Greenbush; two sisters: Mrs. Wayne (Deborah) Hornbeak, Thief River Falls, and Janell, who lives at home; and his maternal grandmother, Mrs. Emma Schey.

He was preceded in death by a brother, Daniel, his paternal grandparents and his maternal grandfather.

Randi Smeby Dies Friday; Rites Tuesday

Mrs. Randi Smeby, 92, of Thief River Falls and formerly of the rural Grygla area, died Friday at Northwestern hospital.

Funeral services for Mrs. Smeby will be held Tuesday at 1:00 p.m., at the Green Funeral chapel. Officiating will be Rev. Percy Smerek of the Grygla Lutheran parish. Interment will be in the Valle cemetery, rural Grygla.

The body will repose at the Green Funeral home until time of services. A complete obituary will be published in Wednesday's Times.

Esper Beedy Services Set At Wood Lake

Esper Beedy, 75, of 530 West 8th Street, father of David Beedy of this city, died Friday evening at Northwestern hospital.

Funeral services for Esper Beedy will be held Tuesday at 2:00 p.m. at Wood Lake with the Echo-Sunset Burial Assn., Echo, in charge of arrangements.

A complete obituary will be published in a later edition of the Times.

Rose Gordon Of Rural Oklee Dies Thursday

Mrs. Raymond (Rose) Gordon, 79, of rural Oklee, died Thursday morning at Northwestern hospital where she had been a patient for a short period of time.

Funeral services for Mrs. Rose Gordon were held Saturday at 2:00 p.m., at the Ebenezer Lutheran church, rural Oklee, with Rev. Timothy C. Miller officiating. Gelene Lundeen served as organist. Interment was in the church cemetery. The Belmont Funeral home was in charge of arrangements.

Pallbearers were Marlyn Haugen, Darrow Lundeen, Orlan Stolaas, Dennis McGeary, Arthur Olson and Richard Rustan.

Mrs. Gordon, the former Rose Osinski, was born Aug. 22, 1901 in Chicago, Ill., to Frank and Stella Osinski, now deceased. As a child, she moved with her family to Winnipeg, Manitoba, Canada. There she grew to womanhood. She was married in Winnipeg in Sept. of 1920 to Ed West. Following their marriage, they moved to Plummer where they resided until West's death on Feb. 20, 1925.

On Nov. 15, 1928, she was married to Raymond Gordon at the Ebenezer Lutheran church, rural Oklee. They lived at Plummer until 1954, when they moved to Deer Park township. After her husband's death, Sept. 27, 1970, Mrs. Gordon continued to live in Deer Park township.

She was a longtime member of the Ebenezer Lutheran church.

She is survived by two sons: Arthur Gordon, Des Plaines, Ill., and Roy, Oklee; a daughter, Mrs. Eugene (Vivian) Frey, Clearwater; nine grandchildren, six great-grandchildren, and two sisters: Theresa Slovick and Mrs. Margaret Cooper, both of Winnipeg.

In addition to her husband and parents, she was preceded in death by three brothers and one sister.

Rose Kotaska Rites Held At Devils Lake

Rose Marie Kotaska, five and one-half month old daughter of John C. and Eileen Iverson Kotaska of Devils Lake, N.D., died unexpectedly Tuesday afternoon, July 14.

Rev. Gerald Buscher, O.S.B. officiated at the Mass of the Angels offered Friday at 10 a.m. in St. Joseph's Catholic church in Devils Lake. Interment was in the church cemetery with the Gilbertson and Gloger Funeral home Devils Lake handling arrangements.

Rose Marie Kotaska was born February 2, 1981 at Devils Lake.

She is survived by her parents; two brothers Daniel and John Dean, both at home; her paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John B. Kotaska, Thief River Falls; her maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Harley Iverson, Thief River Falls; her paternal great-grandmother, Mrs. Marcella Foerster, Grand Forks, ND; and her maternal great-grandparents, Mrs. Anna Iverson and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Benston, all of Thief River Falls.

"STOP OUT FOR A DELICIOUS HOME COOKED MEAL"

Dear Readers,

A religious newspaper writes, "The funeral director is involved in death, grief, bereavement, the funeral, pre- and post-death activities, and the emotional rehabilitation of those who suffer, through death, the loss of one they love." The article concludes, "The funeral service practitioner is in a position to help those who suffer grief in a way that no other professional can."

Respectfully,

Employ 200 In Summer Youth Work For Area

Some 200 young people in Red Lake, Pennington and East Polk counties began summer employment June 15 with the initiation of the 1981 summer youth employment program. Based on state and federal guidelines, the eight-week job contracts for enrollees ages 14-21 are set up through the youth programs at Inter-County Community council in Oklee.

Youths employed this summer in Red Lake, Pennington and East Polk county areas number approximately 55, 62 and 85, respectively. This is a state and federally funded program with public and private non-profit establishments receiving the summer help.

Prior to beginning work, the enrollees attended an orientation session, providing them not only with the necessary information on the program, but with instruction for entering an employment situation as well. Emphasis was placed on the importance of their summer job as a reference point for future job opportunities.

Throughout the summer, each employee is contacted weekly by a staff counselor who performs supervisory functions, and is available for career, educational and personal counseling. Assuming the counselor position in most of Red Lake County and part of East Polk is Bob Larsen. The youth employess in this area number approximately 75, with worksites in Red Lake Falls, located at the high school, public elementary school, bus barn, city maintenance, courthouse, golf course, Pine to Prairie Co-op, public library, children's center, Hillcrest Nursing home and the SCS office.

In Plummer, worksites include city maintenance, senior housing and the high school, and Brooks has several workers in city maintenance. The high school and multi-county housing are the Mentor worksites, along with Polk county park, Fairmeadow, the high school, recreation department and city maintenance in Fertile.

Majority of the East Polk county worksites are under the supervision of Bill Woods of Fosston. These locations include the Pioneer home and high school in Erskine, high school and city maintenance in both McIntosh and Winger, Cross Lake in Trail, the Gully developmental achievement center, and city maintenance, recreation department, library, police department, fair grounds, high school and elementary school in Fosston.

In Red Lake county, he supervises the summer youth employees in Oklee at the worksites of city maintenance, ICCC office and the high school. Approximate number of youth employed in this area is 66.

In Pennington county, with an employee count of 62, Pete Sullivan is the counselor. His worksites are city maintenance in St. Hilaire, city maintenance, fire department, park, historical society, high school and grounds crew in Goodridge, and in Thief River Falls at Ripley Alliance, bus garage, school buildings and grounds, library, park and recreation department and ECSU.

An additional facet of the youth employment program in this area is the career education component which is designed as a resource regarding post high school options. This segment was incorporated into the Oklee based program by the summer staff counselors a few years ago, and is one of only several in the state. It entails four eight-hour sessions focusing on planning for the future, involving career development, educational and employment facilities. All employees still in high school must participate to fulfill a portion of their job contract, equivalent to four work days, the ICCC office said.

One of the career education component days is organized in a classroom format with presentations, films and speakers representing a vocational school, employment agency, military service, union labor and vocational agriculture.

Another career education day is scheduled on the UMC campus at the career center. This will give the youths a look at a college facility, and presentations will include career assessment inventory, developing practical life skills and a brief exploration of post-secondary opportunities.

In addition to these sessions, two day trips have been planned. The trip to Grand Forks will involve tours of the Westward Ho motel-restaurant complex, KTHI television station and USDA nutrition lab.

In Bemidji, visits have been scheduled at Lake Bemidji state park with a presentation by the DNR, Superwood factory, magnetic Peripheral Industries and the BSU campus. These tours afford a closer look at potential employment sites, areas of vocation and educational institutions.

Summer youth employment program is one of the youth programs at Inter-County Community council. Youth programs are directed by Mary Lou Harthun, with Tom Sedler as summer program director, Gerald Slough as area supervisor, and Bob Lasen, Pete Sullivan, Bill Woods and Laura Schafer as career education staff members. The SYEP contracts, having begun in June 15 and running for eight weeks, will terminate on August 7.

Soo To Offer Rate On 3-Car Grain Shipping

Soo Line will begin offering reduced wheat rates later this month to shippers who load and tender a minimum of three cars from one origin to a single destination at the twin ports of Duluth and Superior or Twin Cities.

Under the new rate plan, shippers who tender a minimum of three carloads of wheat will receive rates 10 cents per hundredweight under the present lowest, single car rate. The three-car movement must be from a single shipper in the company's lines in Minnesota, Montana, North or South Dakota, and destined to a single consignee at the Twin Cities or Twin Ports.

To receive the lower rates, shippers are subject to 10 daylight hours free of demurrage for loading, but qualify for average demurrage agreements at the destination. Shippers may use any mix of boxcars, Soo covered hoppers or private ownership covered hoppers to make the three-car minimum.

The new lower rates are part of an ongoing evaluation of competitive developments in Soo territory and may be modified, extended or cancelled at any time. At present, rates are subject to an expiration date of Jan. 31, 1982.

Soo Line has filed an application with the Interstate commerce commission for the new rates to become effective no later than July 27.

The company believes the new three-car wheat rate structure improves the competitive position of practically all of the 240 country elevators it serves to market brain at important Duluth-Superior and Minnespolis-St. Paul terminals. Nearly all Soo-served elevators in Grain producing areas presently have facilities to take advantage of the three-car wheat loading within 10 daylight hours and additional capital investment in trackage or loading capacity is not needed.

In addition, Soo believes these new rates encourage wheat transportation without disruption to rate relationships between stations. As a result, there is no need to consider consolidation of existing stations nor construction of new facilities to take advantage of the rates.

The new lower rates emphasize Soo's efforts to maintain rate structures on all grains that are non-discriminatory and provide equity to all served elevators in reaching the Twin Ports and Twin Cities markets, a company spokesman said.

Dairy Farmers Vote On Market Order Changes

U.S. department of agriculture is asking affected dairy farmers if they approve of a final decision that would amend price announcement procedures in 29 federal milk marketing orders. The results are scheduled to be compiled within 30 days.

Herbert L. Forest, dairy official with USDA's agricultural marketing service, said the final decision would provide that the Class II price for a particular month be announced on a tentative basis by the 15th day of the preceding month. This decision is based on the only proposal supported at a public hearing in Clayton, Mo., last August.

The final Class II price could not be less than the Class III price for that particular month. The final Class II price would be announced by the fifth day of the following month when the Class III price is announced. Dairy farmers are paid Class II prices for that portion of their milk that is used to make such products as yogurt, cottage cheese and ice cream. A lower Class III price is paid for milk used to make butter, hard cheese and nonfat dry milk. Fluid milk commands a higher price, Forest said.

The hearing to consider changing the Class II price announcement procedures in the 29 orders was necessitated by an order of the U.S. court of appeals for the District of Columbia, which ruled the existing announcement procedures invalid.

The final decision will be printed in the July 14 Federal Register available at many public libraries.

The 29 milk orders that would be affected by the recommended decision include St. Louis-Ozarks, Georgia, Tennessee Valley, Chicago Regional, Southern Illinois, Louisville-Lexington-Evansville, Indiana, Central Illinois, Greater Kansas City, Nebraska-Western Iowa, Upper Midwest, Neosha Valley, Wichita, Eastern South Dakota and Iowa:

Also New Orleans-Mississippi, Greater Louisiana, Memphis, Nashville, Paducah, Fort Smith, Red River Valley, Oklahoma, Metropolitan, Central Arkansas, Lubbock-Plainview, Texas, Central Arizona, Texas Panhandle and Rio Grande Valley.

Here's how Chiropractic treats Leg Pains

It is not normal to have leg pains, whatever your age or activity. And to get relief with pain-killing medication merely covers up the health problem while the damage continues.

Structural imbalance is the underlying cause of many types of painful disorders, particularly those involving your legs and joints.

The doctor of chiropractic is a physician who employs a method that gives particular attention to the structural and neurological aspects of the body. He seeks to enable your body's natural restorative powers to operate, so as to allow the body to eliminate health problems, as well as associated discomfort.

Presented in the interest of better health by your doctor of chiropractic and the American Chiropractic Association

Another Embargo Needed?

Publisher Bob Johnson of the Wadena Pioneer Journal writes the following comments on trade and potential trade with the Soviet Union:

The Russian grain embargo was universally condemned by farmers and agribusiness, but the effects of the embargo were exactly opposite of predictions by the complainers. This is confirmed by recent market conditions.

Within days after the embargo was declared, grain prices recovered. In spite of the biggest corn crop in history and the biggest carryover in history, grain prices were strong all through 1980. This spring the Russian embargo was lifted and prices have been on the decline ever since.

Russia does not buy farm commodities from the U.S. out of love. It buys from us out of dire necessity or when area prices are cheaper than they can obtain anyplace else. We might as well stop kidding ourselves. We aren't going to make any money selling to the Russians unless our government policy forces them to pay a fair price. And that is exactly what they should do. If they have money to wage war, they have money to pay for food and we have the power to make them do it.

The first step, however, is for the U.S. Agriculture secretary to use his authority to support farm prices. There's one more factor — the Russians don't really need grain as much as they need meat, poultry and dairy products. These are the commodities we should be offering for sale. Then, not only grain farmers, but our livestock and poultry farmers could make a profit.

The Russians must but food, they have no alternative because their system can't produce. The big collective farms don't function according to plans. The few small private farms and the small household plots furnished to collective farms workers are a principal source of Russian food.

Only 1.4 per cent of Soviet farmland is in private hands. But from this tiny bit of land, individual farmers raise 20 per cent of all livestock in the USSR and produce 30 per cent of Russia's meat, milk and eggs. These individual farmers also produce 60 per cent of Russian potatoes and over 50 per cent of the country's fruits and berries.

These statistics are a silent condemnation of Russia's large centralized farming operations. But the Russians show no indication of changing their system. As long as this system persists, Russia must import food. If we are going to export food to them, let's make sure they pay the price. Reducing our prices only reduces our farmers to Russian peasant standards.

May we be facetious long enough to suggest it might help our prices if President Reagan would announce another embargo.

There Are Penalties

Following editorial is from the Swift County Monitor:

For several decades this nation and, for that matter much of the western world, was reaping the benefits of rapidly improving technology that made living easier.

This was also a time of increasing wages and profits, salaries and benefits, business and industry becoming more efficient. Few gave any real thought to what the cost was going to really be, but now we know and are appalled.

The announcement of possible sites for dumping hazardous waste made recently by the Minnesota Waste Management Board raised cries of agonized protest from those in affected areas. One can hardly blame them, for who would want a hazardous waste dump near by. Yet, these facilities are not only needed they must be established for this nation manufactures more than 80-billion pounds of hazardous waste every year. Unsupervised and helter-skelter disposal has resulted in such tragedies as the Love Canel area near Niagara Falls, N.Y. Few, if any, want a huge power line, such as the one between Lowry and Starbuck, crossing their property. Yet, the demand for power by agriculture, industry, businesses, households and others is on a steady increase. The electricity has to be generated some place and wheeled to where it is needed. There is no way out. Cuts in state and federal services because of budget deficits have soon politicians and bureaucrats doing their darndest to hide their ox and before it gets gored, but the blood is running and more is coming. There is a lot of finger pointing saying, in effect, we do need to tighten our financial belts, but get him, not me. If we don't get a handle on deficit spending, we won't have a belt to tighten.

In these and other areas Americans and others in the world are paying for a society that has become spoiled and "lazy" in the nearly four decades since the end of World War II. Now it's coming time to pay the piper and in many respects we may be better off than ever when the job is done.

Safety Net For Congress?

Following editorial appeared recently in the Boston Herald American:

The Reagan administration's new budget is designed to make sure no one at the poverty level is left out in the cold by the need to cut federal spending. Some programs are being spared to provide a "safety net" to protect the truly needy.

And the Congress of the United States.

Nowhere in the long list of proposed budget cuts is there mention of the $1.4 billion it costs to support the House and Senate in the style to which they are accustomed.

President Reagan and budget director David Stockman know full well that Capitol Hill represents a prime example of the rampant government growth they are trying to control.

But the executive branch must respect the right of the legislative branch to manage its own affiars. That leaves it to the conscience of Congress itself to decide whether cutbacks in congressional spending are in order.

The voice of congressional conscience has plenty to account for. Congressional expenses have more than tripled in the last 10 years, even while the number of senators and representatives has remained the same. It is the size of the congressional staff that has gone through the roof.

A decade ago it took 702 employees to staff the committees of the House. Today it takes 2,073. The staff of Senate committees has risen from 635 to 1,217. This doesn't count the personal staffs of senators and representatives — now standing at 3,612 on the Senate side, 7,067 on the House side.

Why do senators need 36 persons, on the average, to run their offices?

Why does a representative need a staff of 16?

A lot of Americans would like to know — especially those who for one reason or another are going to feel the brunt of cutbacks in the federal budget. What Congress spends on itself is part of that same federal budget, and that's one item to leave out of the safety net.

LEGISLATIVE REPORT

by LeRoy Stumpf

STATE REPRESENTATIVE DISTRICT 1B

The 1981 Legislature and its special sessions are over, and now it is time to look back at exactly what happened during those long weeks of lawmaking. Throughout the year you read a lot about a budget deficit, the need to cut state spending, and conflicts between legislators and the Governor over how to improve our state's situation. It sounded very bleak at times I'm sure, but in the end a lot of good came out of the 1981 Legislature and during the next several weeks I would like to report its accomplishments to you.

This week I will start with three subjects close to home . . . agriculture, energy, and environment.

Protecting agricultural land for Minnesota's farmers was an important issue at the legislature this year as we read statistics revealing the decreasing availability of prime ag land and its escalating cost. In response to those facts we passed two new laws to protect local farm interests.

The first one prohibits people from investing pension funds in ag land or agriculture interests such as livestock or milk production. The law also provides that any land acquired by a fund through a loan default must be sold within 10 years.

The other new law protecting Minnesota farmers is one I chief-authored concerning alien ownership of farmland. The law prohibits foreign individuals or corporations from owning farmland in Minnesota unless they spend at least six months out of the year in the United States. The Commissioner of Agriculture will determine if any circumstances, such as military service, should override the residency requirement, but in most cases it will prevent prime agriculture land from being bought up by foreign interests who in many cases do not even plan to operate farms.

Employers hiring migrant laborers are required by a new law to provide those individuals with employment statements which are enforceable contracts. Those statements must be written in English and a second language, such as Spanish, which the prospective employee understands. This law offers some protection to migrant workers who have often faced unfair employer practices because of their seasonal work status.

In the area of taxes farm families were given a fair amount of consideration as we passed a tax bill making improvements in the state school agriculture credit. It was changed from a levy of 17 to 18 mills on the first 320 acres of homestead property, 10 mills on 320 to 640 homestead acres, and 8 mills on homestead property over 640 acres.

A provision in the tax law allows for valuating agricultural land at the lesser of its market value or free market rental rate capitalized at 5.8 per cent for taxes payable in 1984. And when the sales tax increased from four to five per cent, an exception was made for new and used farm machinery.

One good agriculture bill that was not passed into law this year would have protected farmers from nuisance suits on the grounds of things like noise or smell. It passed both the House and Senate during the regular session, but was stalled in a conference committee when we adjourned. I expect to see it voted on again next year.

Farm families and all rural citizens could benefit from a new alternative energy law. The law encourages small power production and cogeneration by requiring utilities to purchase surplus energy generated by independent producers. If a small generator has a capacity greater than 40 kilowatts, the producer and the utility company will negotiate for the rate at which the extra energy will be purchased. For cogenerators of less than 40 kilowatts capacity, the Public Utilities Commission will set the purchase rate.

A financing mechanism for municipal district heating projects was established in another new energy law to encourage further development of these systems. Loans can be made for portions of design and construction costs. Applications made to the Minnesota Energy Agency will be prioritized according to their goals such as use of renewable energy sources, fossil fuel savings, environmental safety, and system flexibility.

A Home Energy Disclosure program, developed and administered by the Minnesota Energy Agency, is setting minimum standards for residential structures, including one to four-family dwellings, apartment buildings, mobile homes, and condominiums so that home buyers will know how energy efficient a property is before buying it.

The new law also states that after January 1, 1982, the energy audit must conform to the federal Residential Conservation Service program. After that date too, energy auditors certified to administer the 6-point energy audit must be re-certified to administer the 22-point federal audit.

Two environmental laws that may interest you are . . . State law now prohibits vandalism on state-owned trail facilities build on grant-in-aid trails, and local units may designate the trails for non-motorized and snowmobile use. And finally, the ban on the sale of milk in non-returnable plastic milk containers was repealed.

So now you have a summary of new laws in agriculture, energy, and environment. Of course I was not able to write about every single bill we passed in these three areas, but the ones I mentioned were perhaps the most important and they warranted the most interest throughout the session.

If you have any questions on these or other new laws passed by the 1981 Legislature, please feel free to contact me at the State Capitol, St. Paul, 55155.

Answers from the Bible by Pastor Don Peres

Q. Pastor Don, "What do you think about various alternatives to Christianity? Don't all religions basically teach the same thing?"

A. Many people wonder why we make such a fuss about Jesus Christ and Christianity, since they believe all religions are basically the same. They assume that all faiths are all talking about the same thing, but are putting it in a different way.

Some ask, aren't all the different religious groups, such as Christians, Moslems, Mormons, Budhists, etc. experiencing the same God, yet explaining it in different ways? Thus can't they all be true, but with each giving a different emphasis?

All religions cannot be true at the same time, because they teach many things completely opposite from one another. For the claims of one will exclude the claims of the other.

As to the matter of salvation and the person Jesus Christ, only historic Christianity recognizes Him as the eternal God becoming a man who died for the sins of the world and rose again the third day. Salvation is obtained only by putting one's trust in Jesus Christ, the only begotten Son of God. Acts 4:12

I Timothy 2:5 says, "For there is one God, and one mediator between God and man, the man Christ Jesus.

John 14:6 Jesus says, "I am the way, the truth, and the life: no man cometh unto the Father, but by me."

Even though many religions seem to be the same on the surface, the closer one gets to the central teachings the more apparent the differences become. It is totally incorrect to say that all religions are the same.

These alternative views, when soundly probed, are found not to undermine Christianity but rather to reinforce it. This is because philosophical systems and other religions, in their search for truth and meaning to life, fall short in their quest. Without the Bible as a solid foundation, there is no way to determine whether or not we have the truth. It alone offers people truth and hope through Jesus Christ. (Colossians 1:27)

If you have any questions that you would like to have answered from the Bible, please write Pastor Don Peres, Box 129, Thief River Falls, MN 56701.

All four Thief River Falls baseball teams — the American Legion squad, the Elks and Independents in the 14-15-year-old Babe Ruth program and the 13-year-old Babe Ruth team — have been enjoying successful 1981 summer seasons.

Coach Scott Blankenfeld's 13-year-olds won the Lake Agassiz District tournament played in Thief River Falls Saturday and Sunday and will compete in state tournament play starting Friday at Minnetonka.

The two Thief River Falls teams met in the finals of the South Half Lake Agassiz Sub District Babe Ruth tournament for 14-15-year-olds Friday at Red Lake Falls, with the Independents beating the Elks 4-3 in eight innings. They'll both compete in the four-team, double-elimination Lake Agassiz District tournament in Roseau beginning Wednesday where either Charlie Cornell's Independents or Bruce Williams' Elks are expected to emerge as a winner and move on to state tournament play.

Thief River Falls American Legion team, meanwhile, has a shot at winning a second straight Northwest League pennant this week with back-to-back 7 p.m. games at Crookston Tuesday and at East Grand Forks Wednesday.

Nick Drees' squad is currently 5-1 in the Northwest League, including a 4-3 win over East Grand Forks and an 8-2 loss to Crookston. The two games wrap up Thief River Falls' 1981 Northwest League schedule.

Crookston is unbeaten in Northwest League play and East Grand Forks is carrying two losses. After meeting Thief River Falls Tuesday and Wednesday, Crookston and East Grand Forks will tangle Friday in a 7 p.m. make-up game at Crookston to cap the Northwest League season.

Football Opener Is Sept. 4

Season-opening game for the 1981 Lincoln high school football team Friday, September 4, at Grand Forks Red River has a 5 p.m. starting time, it has been announced by Thief River Falls athletic director Russ Smith. Rest of the Prowlers' games will all be 7:30 p.m. Friday night starts.

It's an attractive home schedule for the Prowlers, whose home opener will be Sept. 11 vs. Detroit Lakes. Three Class AA teams will visit Thief River Falls: Sept. 18 vs. Grand Rapids; Oct. 2 vs. Moorhead; and Oct. 9 vs. Bemidji, followed by a season-ending Oct. 30 game against rival Crookston, the defending Class A state champion.

In addition to playing at Grand Forks Red River, Thief River Falls will be on the road Sept. 25 at Staples, Oct. 16 at Fergus Falls and Oct. 23 at East Grand Forks.

Five of the nine Thief River Falls games will be against Class AA opponents: Red River, Grand Rapids, Moorhead, Bemidji and Fergus Falls. To earn a Class A state playoff berth as an independent this fall, the Prowlers will have to come out on top in a three-way match-up with Crookston and East Grand Forks while at the same time producing a winning record.

Crookston will play just eight games this fall, meeting West Fargo, Grand Forks Central, Park Rapids, Fergus Falls, Hillsboro, East Grand Forks and Barnesville before facing an open date the week before closing against Thief River Falls.

East Grand Forks will play Grand Forks Central, Grand Forks Red River, Rugby, Langdon, Breckenridge, Crookston, Devils Lake, Thief River Falls and Fergus Falls.

Former Northwest Athletic Conference members Bemidji and Fergus Falls will be playing as Class AA independents this fall. The Lumberjacks' schedule includes Crosby-Ironton, Little Falls, Detroit Lakes, Park Rapids, Fergus Falls, Thief River Falls, Grand Rapids, Moorhead and Hermantown. The Otters play Detroit Lakes, Alexandria, Litchfield, Crookston, Bemidji, Moorhead, Thief River Falls, St. Cloud Cathedral and East Grand Forks.

Miscellaneous

+Karl Salscheider has been named head basketball coach at Bemidji State University, succeeding Dave Hutchins, who resigned last winter to pursue a business venture in Grand Rapids. Salscheider, a native of Barron, Wis. who played basketball at Northern Michigan, directed a three-year rejuvenation of a basketball program at Eastern Wyoming junior college that saw the Lancers move from the bottom of the Wyoming Conference to second place last year with an 18-9 record that earned Salscheider conference coach of the year honors.

+Defending Ninth District American Legion baseball champion Detroit Lakes defeated the Moorhead Golds 7-5 to raise its record to 13-4 heading into a weekend Gopher Classic tournament appearance in the Twin Cities, and coach Ric Otto says, "I feel we're starting to put things together." Detroit Lakes and Crookston look like strong contenders for the 1981 Ninth District tournament title. Crookston took an impressive 20-2-1 record and a 12-game winning streak to a weekend tournament in Farmington. Through 20 games, Brent Weiss led Crookston with a .451 batting average.

BEMIDJI BASE RUNNER Terry Batchelder paid for a mistake when he was tagged out by Thief River Falls second baseman Scott McKeever in the sixth inning of Wednesday's American Legion doubleheader opener on the fairgrounds diamond. Batchelder tried to go from second to third on a ball hit to third baseman Jim Hallamek, then tried to get back to second base in a run-down before being tagged out by McKeever. It was a big out for Thief River Falls after Bemidji had cut a 3-0 deficit to 3-2. Moments later McKeever roamed into short left-center field to make a finger-tip catch on a hit-and-run blooper by Matt Najjar to end the inning instead of giving the visitors runners on first and third. Thief River Falls went on to win the game 6-5. Bemidji bounced back to take the nightcap 8-4. Umpire Tom Goddard made the call on the play.

TRF, Bemidji Legion Teams Split Thursday Doubleheader

Season series between Thief River Falls and Bemidji American Legion baseball teams ended in a draw Wednesday following a doubleheader split on the Fairgrounds diamond that saw Thief River Falls take the opener 6-5 before Bemidji rebounded for a second game 8-4 triumph.

The two teams played to a 6-6 tie earlier this season when darkness put an end to a June 22 game at Bemidji.

Bemidji 5

Impressive in building a 3-0 lead through five innings and sitting with what looked like a comfortable 6-2 lead going into the seventh, Thief River Falls had to hold on at the end to escape with a 6-5 first game victory over Bemidji.

Lefthander Kevin Sanders enjoyed his best performance of the season through the first five innings as he pitched three perfect frames and allowed just a single walk through four innings. He was touched for three base hits in the fifth — two infield jobs and a bouncer past third — but got out of the one-out jam with a pair of strike-outs.

Thief River Falls, meanwhile, pushed two runs across the plate in the third when Dave Kays, the No. 9 hitter in the line-up, lined a single into center field and Mark Lundin put a shot down the left field line that went for a double. An infield ground-out on a ball hit to second by Jeff Milender scored Kays (even though the drawn-in Bemidji infield looked like it could have had an easy out at the plate), with a two-out single to center by Scott McKeever making it 2-0.

Thief River Falls added a run in the fifth as Sanders bounced a single up the middle, stole second and scored on a two-out double to right by Greg Harder.

Bemidji finally got to Sanders in the sixth, cutting the gap to 3-2 when Dave Eichstadt led off with a single and Bryan Hickerson, serving as a designated hitter, drilled a double to left. Terry Batchelder brought both runners across the plate with a ground ball single to left.

Thief River Falls appeared to put the game on ice in the sixth when an infield nubber by Steve Bengtson went for a base hit and a sacrifice bunt by Brent Walton moved pinch runner Tim Bergland to second. Milender dribbled a two-out single to right for an RBI and he scored on a throwing error on a ball to shortstop by McKeever, who moved to second when Bemidji tacked another error onto the play. McKeever scored what proved to be the winning run when Sanders dropped a bloop double into right field, making it 6-2.

But Bemidji threatened to pull out a come-from-behind victory in the seventh.

Pinch hitter Joe Smith singled to start it and Eichstadt drew a two-out, full count walk. Strunk followed with a triple to the left-center field fence that knocked Sanders out of the game. McKeever was brought in as a relief pitcher, but he was greeted by Hickerson's second straight double, making it 6-5 with the tying run at second base.

However, the threat and the game ended when McKeever got Terry Batchelder, 2-for-3 at that point, to pop up to third.

Once again effectively checked through five innings, Bemidji waited until the final two innings of the second game to get untracked offensively, and this time there was enough of it to produce an 8-4 win over Thief River Falls.

It was a 2-2 stalemate until Bemidji struck for four runs on four base hits and three Thief River Falls errors in the sixth. A hit-and-run double by Hickerson broke the tie, scoring Daryl Strunk, who had reached base on a throwing error to start the inning. Singles by Tom Buckanaga and Todd Folstad preceded the first out of the inning, making it 5-2. A bloop single by Dave Ashley had a throwing error added to it for the fourth run of the inning.

Thief River Falls tried to come back in the bottom of the inning. Kerry Wollin and Jim Hallamek both walked and both came home on a two-out throwing error by shortstop Toby Batchelder on a ball hit by Mark Lundin.

But Bemidji sewed it up with two more runs in the seventh after the first two batters had been retired. A throwing error at shortstop by Lundin and a full-count walk issued to Gary Johnson put two runners on base for Folstad, the designated hitter who did not play in the opener. The bulky Folstad drilled a double to the left-center field fence, giving him a 2-for-3 game at the plate, good for four runs-batted in.

Both teams had scored twice in the third inning. A lead-off walk issued to Bob Ness and a double to left field by Ashley put Bemidji in business. Joe Smith got an RBI on a sacrifice fly to center field, with a second run scoring on a throwing error on the play as Ashley moved from second to third.

Thief River Falls scored when No. 9 batter Rob Blankenfeld drew a lead-off walk and Lundin tripled into the left-center field gap. Lundin broke for the plate and scored ahead of the throw from Ashley at first when Scott McKeever grounded out.

13-Year-Old Babe Ruth Team

TRF Earns State Tourney Berth

Thief River Falls earned a berth in the 1981 state Babe Ruth baseball tournament for 13-year-olds beginning Friday in Minnetonka with an unbeaten championship performance in the four-team, double-elimination Lake Agassiz District tournament played Saturday and Sunday on the Thief River Falls fairgrounds diamond.

The Scott Blankenfeld-coached Thief River Falls team opened with a 5-4 eight-inning first round win over Warroad Saturday afternoon, then doubled Crookston 19-8 Saturday night before handling Warroad 14-4 Sunday evening in the finals.

Warroad bounced back from its first round loss to Thief River Falls for a championship shot by beating Roseau, a first round 13-4 loser to Crookston, 13-3 and Crookston 8-7.

TRF 5, Warroad 4

It took eight innings before Thief River Falls emerged a 5-4 first round winner over Warroad.

Thief River Falls, after spotting Warroad a 2-0 first inning lead, tied the game 4-4 in the sixth inning and won it in the top of the eighth when back-to-back singles by Richie Bendickson and David Onkka produced the winning run.

Onkka was the winning pitcher, scattering six Warroad hits while also going 2-for-4 at the plate to lead an eight-hit Thief River Falls attack.

TRF 19, Crookston 8

Richie Bendickson was 4-for-4 to lead a 19-hit offensive charge that carried Thief River Falls to a 19-8 second round rout of Crookston.

The winners scored half of their runs in the first two innings, with the first five batters all reaching base and scoring in the first inning when Al Erickson doubled, Scott Novak was hit by a pitch, Lee Hamre singled, Eric Charlson walked and Jeff Anderson singled.

Crookston cut it to 14-8 before Thief River Falls made it a rout with five runs in the sixth to end the game on the ten-run rule.

Anderson was the winning pitcher, limiting Crookston to five base hits.

TRF 14, Warroad 4

Second Thief River Falls vs. Warroad game in Sunday's finals produced another 2-0 Warroad head start in the top of the first inning. But Thief River Falls stormed back, scoring four times in the first and four more in the second for an 8-2 lead en route to a 14-4 title-clinching victory.

Walks issued to Al Erickson and Lee Hamre in the first were followed by four straight base hits for the runs: singles by Eric Charlson and Jeff Anderson, a double by Richie Bendickson and a single by Kevin Nelson.

It was more of the same in the second when ten batters marched to the plate. Three of them walked, one was hit by a pitch and Charlson, Bendickson and Mike Kloety all came up with base hits.

Thief River Falls made it 11-2 in the fourth, spotted Warroad a pair of runs in the top of the fifth then finished the ten-run rule triumph with three in the bottom of the fifth.

The winners had a 12-7 base hit edge, with Bendickson going 3-for-3, plus a walk. He had two doubles. Charlson and Nelson, the winning pitcher, were both 2-for-4.

Thief River Falls will take a 20-3 record into state tournament play.

Golf League Lists First Half Winners

First half season winners have been announced in the Thief River Falls men's golf league where the top three teams in each of the three divisions in both the first and second half season standings will compete for the post-season league playoff title August 26.

Top three first half season places in the Demaret Division went to Bridgeman's 868, Professional Building 883 and Wennberg's 889. The rosters include: Bridgeman's — Rudy Mehlhoff, Vic Kvikstad, Ferdie Mandt, Elton Cummings, Karl Gjernes; Professional Building — Bob Wurst, Roy Lee, Roger Tunberg, Arnie Johnson, J.B. Prichard; Wennberg's — Dale Wennberg, Jack Hoppe, Russ Lane, Curt Geatz, Monty Markstrom.

Hogan Division leaders were Miracle Water-Gordon's Hallmark 858, Elks 861 and Ekeren Drug 877. The golfers include: Miracle Water-Gordon's Hallmark — Marv Carlson, Jerry Johnson, Tim Hogan, Jerry Bugliosi, Mitch Dicken; Elks — Myrle Carlson, Bob Flynn, Gary Flynn, Art Welter, Rod Axtell; Ekeren Drug — Jack Boyer, Jerry Imgrund, Wally DuChamp, Dwight Tangquist, Al Adams.

— Women's Slow Pitch —

First and second place teams in both Division I and Division II are scheduled to square off Wednesday in the Thief River Falls women's slow pitch softball league when the St. Hilaire Saints (15-2) face Dwight's Hartz (14-3) in a Division I showdown while Pizza Hut (12-5) is matched against the Mush-a-rettes (10½-6½) in a Division II clash.

The St. Hilaire Saints maintained their Division I lead with a 7-6 decision over Northern Employers Wednesday while Pizza Hut was holding its Division II lead with a doubleheader sweep over Rusty Nail 14-4 and the Honeybees.

Jodi Dallmann hit a three-run home run to lift Brodin past Rusty Nail 11-8 in a battle to avoid the Division II basement. Both teams pulled off double plays.

Dwight's Hartz kept pace with the St. Hilaire Saints with a 3-2 verdict over the Schmidt Stealers. Angie Sinn tripled for the winners.

In a night full of close encounters, Northern Employers Agency and Ekeren Drug played to a 1-1 tie, with American Legion beating Ekeren Drug 5-4.

WARROAD PITCHER Tom Williams (12) fielded a ball hit in front of the plate by Thief River Falls' Scott Novak (10), but his throw didn't connect with first baseman David Olson in the first inning of Sunday's championship in the 13-year-old Lake Agassiz District Babe Ruth baseball tournament played on the fairgrounds diamond. Thief River Falls won the game 14-4 to earn a berth in the 1981 state Babe Ruth baseball tournament for 13-year-olds, scheduled to begin Friday in Minnetonka.

Fast Pitch League Takes Break

It'll be a quiet week in the Thief River Falls fast pitch softball league, which for the most part will close down operations during the Pennington county fair.

Just one game will be played this week, a 9 p.m. make-up game tonight (Monday) matching TG Sporting Goods and Action Realty.

Last week's late results saw North Star Transport rip Melvies 13-3 Wednesday to match Action Realty's 10-3 first place record, while Schmidts took Coca-Cola 6-2 in the second half of the late night Wednesday doubleheader. Melvies knocked off TG Sporting Goods 6-3 in Thursday's lone game and Popplers handled Coca-Cola 6-2 in the only game played Friday.

N.S. Transport 13
Melvies 3

North Star Transport kept pace with idle Action Realty by beating Melvies 13-3.

The winners scored three times in the top of the first inning as Roger Cota hit a one-out 0-2 pitch out of the park for a 1-0 lead, and after Tom Neibauer singled to center with two, Mike Carriere drilled a 2-0 offering over the left field fence for the 3-0 edge.

Melvies got a run back in the bottom of the inning as Doug Martell managed to sandwich a stolen base around three North Star Transport errors.

Rest of the game saw sporadic scoring on both sides.

Coca-Cola 2

Schmidts used a six-run sixth inning in beating Coca-Cola 6-2.

Coca-Cola had taken an early first inning lead when Mark Drury led off with a double to center. Kelly Gutterud's sacrifice moved him to third and he scored on an error on a grounder by Mike Drury, who advanced to third on Paul Walker's base hit and scored on Rob Almquist's ground-out.

Schmidts pitcher Howard Dalager then settled down and retired the next 11 Coca-Cola hitters.

In the Schmidts' sixth, Jim Sethre reached on an error and Mark Lundin and Dalager both singled for a run. An error on Mark Haats' grounder to third tied the game at 2-2. Don Foss singled for a pair of runs and after Dave Kays bounced a single to center, Kerry Wollin followed with a two-out, two-run base hit.

Dalager, meanwhile, limited Coca-Cola to a harmless double in the fifth and a single in the seventh.

Melvies 6
TG Sports 3

TG Sporting Goods and Melvies battled on even terms until the bottom of the tenth inning before Karl Chromy edged the struggle with a three-run home run that produced a 6-3 Melvies victory.

Melvies had taken a 1-0 lead in the bottom of the first inning as Chromy reached third on a three-base throwing error and scored on a wild pitch.

TG Sporting Goods got the equalizer in the fourth when Gary Laidley was hit by a pitch, went to second on a passed ball, stole third and scored on Mark Thorstad's sacrifice fly.

Mike Kosel tripled and scored on a wild pitch in the fifth for a 2-1 TG Sporting Goods lead, and it increased to 3-1 on Laidley's sixth inning double, a steal of third and an error.

Melvies tied it in the sixth when Joe Kraska led off with a home run, Chromy singled and eventually scored on Shetler's ground-out.

In the tenth, Doug Martell and Kraska were aboard via bobbled grounders when Chromy picked out an 0-1 pitch and hammered it over the left field fence.

FRIENDLY COMPETITION between the two Thief River Falls Babe Ruth baseball teams was exemplified when Elks catcher Allan Ness offered a congratulatory handshake to the Independents' Rick Spong at the plate after Spong, the game's first batter, opened with a home run over the left field fence in the championship game of the South Half Lake Agassiz Sub District Babe Ruth baseball tournament for 14-15-year-olds played at Red Lake Falls. Both Thief River Falls teams will compete in the four-team, double-elimination Lake Agassiz District tournament at Roseau beginning Wednesday, with the winner earning a state tournament berth. The Sub District title went to the Independents, who edged the Elks 4-3 in eight innings Friday.

Jay Moum Wins Warren Golf Club Tourney

Thief River Falls entries dominated the recent short-stop golf tournament at the Riverside Country Club in Warren.

Jay Moum led the list of area competitors with a winning four-under-par 104 in the championship flight. Alex Easton of Thief River Falls was runner-up with a 110, Jerry Johnson was sixth with a 112 and Marv Carlson was eighth with a 113.

Thief River Falls winners in the flight competition included John Moum and Kent Espeseth, first and second, respectively in the first flight; Joel Carlson, winner in the second flight; Bill Corliss and Bob Carlson, runner-up and consolation winner, respectively in the third flight; and Art Welter, consolation champion in the fifth flight.

Independents Beat Elks Twice For Babe Ruth Baseball Title

by Bruce Williams

Thief River Falls' Independents defeated the Thief River Falls Elks 4-3 in eight innings Friday to emerge as South Half Lake Agassiz Sub District champions in Babe Ruth baseball tournament for 14-15-year-olds held at Red Lake Falls.

Both teams now advance to the Lake Agassiz District tournament to be held in Roseau Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. First round pairings Wednesday in the double-elimination tournament finds the Elks playing Roseau at 10 a.m. while the Independents tackle Sprague at 12:30 p.m. The District champion will earn a berth in the state Babe Ruth tournament next week in Chaska.

The double-elimination South Sub District tournament began with a 14-5 Red Lake Falls victory over the Crookston Merchants. The Independents opened with a 5-2 win over the Elks and top-seeded Crookston Golds beat Red Lake Falls 11-5. The Independents reached the finals with an 8-1 win over the Crookston Golds. The Elks won three times in the loser's bracket to reach the finals, eliminating the Crookston Merchants 11-0, Red Lake Falls 7-1 and Crookston Gold 3-2.

Independents 5, Elks 2

Opening round action saw the Independents defeat the Elks 5-2 in a highly spirited ball game between the two rivals.

Independents broke a scoreless tie in the fourth when Scott Johnston and Dave Stimac drew back-to-back walks off Elks' starting pitcher Todd Ortloff and advanced on Brian Kemnitz' bunt single. Johnston then scored when, with one out, catcher Allan Ness misplayed a potential inning-ending double play ball on a throw from the infield. Stimac scored on a two-out walk.

The Elks got one run back in the bottom of the fourth when Bill Benedict doubled and later scored on an infield error.

Independents scored a controversial run in the fifth when, with runners on first and second and one out, a hard hit ball to Elks' shortstop Steve WWiskow was fielded cleanly and flipped to Benedict at second who proceded to turn a double play when he was bumped by the runner advancing to second. Neither umpire saw the play, Benedict's throw went into the dirt for an error, and the run scored.

Elks got one run back in the sixth when Tim Bottem drilled a 370-foot home run to right centerfield.

Independents then put the game out of reach in the seventh when Gary Cornell led off with a triple and winning pitcher Johnston, after fouling off three pitches, laced a line-shot homer to right field.

Johnston walked one and struck out seven to pick up the win and also had two of the five Independent hits.

Bottem took the loss in relief of Ortloff for the Elks, who managed only four hits.

Elks 11, Crookston 0

Ryan Drees threw a two-hit shutout to lead the Elks to an 11-0 win over the Crookston Merchants B team.

The Elks, who mustered only four hits in an earlier 5-2 loss to the Independents, erupted for 15 hits to eliminate the Merchants.

Tim Bottem led the Elks by going 4-for-4, with a double and two RBIs. Bill Benedict contributed three doubles and two RBIs while Brian Garceau and Allan Ness both chipped in two hits and two RBIs.

Drees walked nine and struck out four to pick up his seventh straight win of the year.

Independents 8, Crookston 1

Independents advanced to the Sub-District championship game with an 8-1 win over the Crookston Golds.

Thief River jumped out to a 4-0 lead in the first inning, highlighted by Scott Johnston's two-run double, to give winning pitcher Gary Cornell all the support he needed. Cornell walked just one and struck out three to pick up the win for coach Charlie Cornell's Independents, who committed just one error in the game.

Johnston led the way offensively by going 2-for-4 with three RBIs. Brian Kemnitz also collected two hits for the Independents who out-hit Crookston 11-3.

Elks 7, RLF 1

Elks pitcher Brian Garceau limited Red Lake Falls to just three hits as Thief River Falls posted a 7-1 victory over the Sub-District hosts.

Garceau walked four while striking out nine to earn the win.

Thief River Falls broke open a close 3-0 game by scoring three runs in the fourth on two hits and two Red Lake Falls errors.

Steve Wiskow and Allan Ness both had two hits to lead the Elks offensively.

Red Lake Falls committed eight of the game's nine errors.

Elks 3, Crookston 2

Thief River scored three runs in the first two innings and held on to defeat Crookston's Golds 3-2 and advance to the Sub District finals.

Bill Benedict and Steve Wiskow drew one out walks, with Tim Bottem driving in Benedict with a first inning RBI. Wiskow scored the game's second run on Allan Ness' perfectly executed suicide squeeze bunt.

The Elks pushed the lead to 3-0 when Lee Genereaux reached base on an error and later scored on another squeeze bunt by Benedict.

Crookston scored single runs in both the third and fourth innings but winning pitcher Bottem, who walked only two and struck out six, set down Crookston in order over the final three innings.

Bottem also contributed three hits while Brian Garceau added two to pace Thief River's seven-hit attack. Crookston managed just three hits and committed five of the game's six errors.

Independents 4, Elks 3

Championship game of the South Half Sub District tournament saw the undefeated Independents hand the once-beaten Elks their second consecutive tournament loss, 4-3 in eight innings.

Rick Spong got the Independents started by hitting a full-count lead-off home run to left centerfield in the first inning. The inning's second run scored when winning pitcher Tim Nyland singled, advanced to third on back-to-back walks to Gary Cornell and Scott Johnston, and scored on a fielder's choice ball hit by Dave Stimac.

Elks got one back in the third when Lee Genereaux singled, moved to second on an error, and eventually scored on an infield single by Bill Benedict with an error tacked on to the throw to first.

It became 3-2 Elks in the fifth when Brian Dormady reached base on a fielder's choice and moved to second when Ryan Drees was hit with a two-out pitch. An infield error and Steve Wiskow's single to right drove in both runs.

Independents tied the game in the sixth when Stimac reached base on an error and scored on Joe Blankenfeld's single to center.

Regulation game ended in a tie, but the Independents won it in the top of the eighth as Stimac dropped a bloop single into right field, moved to second on a sacrifice bunt by Dave "Slick" Olson, moving to third when nobody covered the base, and scored on an infield error.

Nyland scattered five hits, walking one while striking out five, to earn the win. Drees suffered the loss giving up six hits, walking five and striking out three.

Elks topped the error charts, 4-3 while watching their season record drop to 22-4. Independents will take a 1-9-7 record into district play.

PULLED OFF the bag by a wide throw from shortstop, Thief River Falls Independents first baseman Gary Cornell had to stretch for the ball as Thief River Falls Elks Runner Bill Benedict reached base on the third inning error during Friday's South Half Lake Agassiz Sub District Babe Ruth baseball tournament finals for 14-15-year-olds played at Red Lake Falls. The Independents won the game 4-3 in eight innings.

TRF, Park River Split Saturday Doubleheader

Seven was the winning number Saturday as Thief River Falls and Park River split an American Legion baseball doubleheader on North Dakota soil. Seven runs did it in both games as Thief River Falls took the opener 7-3 and Park River won the nightcap 7-6.

Thief River Falls, 15-6-1 for the year, will close out its 1981 regular season schedule with a busy five-game week on the road, starting with 7 p.m. Northwest League games at Crookston Tuesday and at East Grand Forks Wednesday. Later in the week Thief River Falls plays a 6:30 p.m. doubleheader at Detroit Lakes Friday and a split twinbill at Frazee Saturday, facing Frazee at 4 p.m. and Fergus Falls at 6.

Park River 3

Trailing 3-2, Thief River Falls struck for five runs in the top of the seventh inning to pull out a 7-3 first game victory over Park River.

Following a strike-out to start the seventh, Thief River Falls put five straight runners on base and they all scored.

It started with a single to center by Mark Lundin. Jim Hallamek walked, Scott McKeever singled, Kevin Sanders walked and Delray Ness singled. A ground-out and a single by Steve

Legion Splits At Park River

Bengtson moved Ness to third and he scored on a passed ball for the final run of the inning.

Thief River Falls had started with a 2-0 first inning lead when Hallamek singled and McKeever was hit by a pitch. Ness, who finished with four RBI's, followed with a two-out single to center.

Park River did all of its scoring in the third when Lundin came on at the start of the inning to pitch in relief of Kerry Wollin. After giving Park River three hits that frame, Lundin limited the losers to just two base hits over the final four frames to pick up the win.

Park River, after scoring four times in the first inning, won the second game 7-6 by scoring with one out in the bottom of the seventh.

Thief River Falls started with a lead-off home run by Mark Lundin in the top of the first inning.

Sacrifice fly balls hit by Scott McKeever, Tim Bergland and Kevin Sanders produced runs in the third, fourth and fifth innings, but Thief River Falls still trailed 5-4 going into the seventh.

The visitors took a brief 6-5 lead in the top of the seventh when McKeever collected a one-out single and scored on an error. Ness, who reached base on the error, scored the go-ahead run on a single by Jim Hallamek.

But a two-base outfield error with one out in the bottom of the seventh, followed by a wild pitch, opened the door for Park River's winning run in the bottom of the inning.

It was the first Park River win in four starts against Thief River Falls this summer. Thief River Falls opened the 1981 season with a 4-3, 8-7 doubleheader sweep over Park River on the fairgrounds diamond here June 6.

A STEADY HAND and an eye for color are two components necessary in doing a good job of rosemaling. Lois Helgen of Bemidji was only at her third show Friday during art in the park in Thief River Falls, but it was an experience she probably won't soon forget. In addition to exhibiting and demonstrating her work, she observed her birthday that day as well. Some of the items which she exhibited and had for sale at the event are included in the photo.

RIVER LOTS FOR SALE

Beautiful heavily wooded river lots for sale in a peaceful, secluded area 2½ miles south on 32 N. We still have several choice 2½ to 5 acre plots left. 3 have walkout basement sites with private riverside parks; one has 920 ft. of river frontage. We also have 4 left in our Oak grove overlooking Aubol's Dam and rapids with huge old oaks and a scenic view. We have 40 acres of river property and will sell only the 7 homesites on the river frontage mentioned above. We don't want to disturb the quality of life on our homestead by overbuilding or commercial development. A few 1 to 2 acre lots are also available further back from the river at considerably lower prices. Reasonable interest and terms available. We invite you to share with us the enjoyment of country living.

Card of Thanks

We wish to thank all our relatives, friends and neighbors for your presence at our 45th Wedding Anniversary open house.

Orville & Gertrude Christianson
1t57p

We would like to express our sincere THANKS for the kindness shown us following the death of David.

Special thanks to Ross Eeg from Eeg Funeral Home for all the help he gave in making this time easier for us.

Thank you to Pastor Ludwig and also to the Northern Gospel Singers for the beautiful songs.

Thank you to the friends who were casket bearers and to the military honors shown by the American Legion Post 88.

Thank you to those who sent flowers or cards and memorials, and to all who contributed food and helped with serving lunch after the services.

Thank you to Ivan Nesteby for all he did and also to those who brought food to our home.

Thank you for the prayers and comforting words to bring us through this sad and trying time.

God bless you all.

THE FAMILY OF DAVID LINDER

Card of Thanks

We wish to thank all our friends and relatives who helped to make our 50th anniversary celebration such a wonderful day that we will long remember. Thanks so very much for the flowers, gifts and good wishes. Thanks also to Pastor Dobkins, Dr. Duane Davidson, our children and grandchildren for the program we enjoyed so much.

God bless each of you!

Lawrence & Evelyn Nelson

PROLIFIC PRODUCER of blood for Northern Blood bank and now United Blood Services is Archie Ptacek of Thief River Falls. He is shown being prepared to donate during the blood drive at Northwestern hospital chapel in Thief River Falls Tuesday (top photo) and showing his award plaque to John Collins of Thief River Falls. Collins was making his first blood donation while Ptacek's award plaque was for having contributed 12 gallons of blood since the early 1950's. Both are Soo Line railroad employees. Ptacek said he was assisted in his early blood donating by fellow employees Earl Johnson, Duane Noel, Lowell and Cecil Collins. When his wife Dorothy died in 1955, he dedicated his regular giving to her memory and to their four children. His "Life Giver Award" is inscribed "in recognition of continued participation in the community blood donor program". To reach the 12-gallon donor total, a person has to donate blood nearly 100 times.

Textron Inc. has announced that it has sold its Polaris Snowmobile division to a group of investors who will manufacture snowmobiles and other products at the company's Roseau plant.

The investor group is headed by William H. Wendel Sr., former president and vice chairman of the board of Kennecott Corporation, who will be chairman of the new corporation, Polaris Industries Inc. Wendel has served as a chief executive officer for over 18 years and is currently a board member of New York Telephone company, Alleghany International, Inc., Dunlop Tire & Rubber corporation and Norfolk and Western Railway company.

Most other members of the investor group have held Polaris management positions.

They include W. Hall Wendel Jr., who will remain as president; and Robert S. Moe, who is currently vice president and general manager of the Textron Financial corporation and will become executive vice president and treasurer of the new corporation.

The other functional managers are included in the investor group and will continue in their current responsibilities.

In January, Textron announced that Polaris and other Textron divisions were to be sold because they did not fit into Textron's long-range plans. The sale of Polaris to its management fulfills Textron's promise that it would not sell the company to anyone who was not committed to continue in the snowmobile industry.

The sale price, and other details of the purchase, were not disclosed.

A financing agreement has been reached with Marine Midland Bank, Buffalo, N.Y., the 12th largest U.S. bank, which will act as the primary lender for the new corporation, and with Textron.

Textron Financial corporation will continue to offer distributor and dealer finance programs with no change in existing terms.

According to Wendel, the new company will not only manufacture and market snowmobiles; but will also be active in the development of new products and will be seeking acquisitions of products which can be manufactured in the Roseau plant.

"Even though the snowmobile industry has experienced two difficult years because of lack of snow, Polaris is in excellent condition," said Wendell. "Polaris distributor and dealer inventories are manageable. The 1982 Polaris production has been nearly all sold to our distribution. We know there is a strong market for snowmobiles, and we also know it will snow again.

"We believe we have the most experienced management team in the industry, and we know we have an excellent product line with an outstanding reputation for quality and performance. We believe the product reputation is the result in large part of the pride and work ethic of the labor force in Roseau, and that these attitudes and the years of engineering and manufacturing experience are valuable assets."

The 1982 snowmobile production has already been completed. The Roseau plant will close for an indefinite period to permit review of manufacturing structure, product development, engineering and operations. According to Wendel, some production and engineering planning is already underway in Roseau for the 1983 models. Marketing and financial functions will be headquartered in Minneapolis.

Polaris, founded in Roseau in 1954, was the first manufacturer of the modern snowmobile. It was acquired by Textron in 1968. During peak production periods, the plant has employed more than 500 people. The company is one of the leaders in the industry and in addition to a full line of snowmobiles also markets a complete line of snowmobile clothing and accessories.

Other members of Polaris management included in the investor group are: Charles Baxter, vice president of engineering; John Fiebelkorn,

New Dean Hired At Northland CC

From a list of more than 100 applicants, Sally Jane Ihne has been selected as the new dean of instruction at Northland community college in Thief River Falls, according to Dr. Alex Easton, president.

Miss Ihne succeeds Willard Kottke who served as dean of instruction for 12 years at the local college prior to his resignation earlier this year. She has an extensive background in community college work and will assume her new duties here on August 17. She is in town today becoming familiar with the college and investigating housing possibilities.

For the past two years she has been director of educational services for the Iowa public broadcasting network at Des Moines, managing the educational services staff, administering the department's budget and working with integration of instructional television programming into school curriculum among other duties.

From 1974 to 1979 she was community college consultant for instructional services with the department of public instruction in Des Moines. Among her assignments there was assisting in the articulation of community

Times Vacation Schedule Set For August 2-9

Summer vacation schedule will again be observed by the Thief River Falls Times when the office will be closed and two issues of the paper will be suspended. Closing dates this year will be Sunday, August 2 through Sunday, August 9.

No papers will be published for the issues of Wednesday, August 5 nor Monday, August 10. The issue of Monday, August 3, will be published on Saturday, August 1 and early news and advertising copy for that issue will be required. The issue of Wednesday, August 12, will be published on the regular schedule.

Times staff members appreciate the cooperation and understanding of the public in this vacation closing which permits a full week of time off from the duties of publishing.

Two Treasures Are Hidden For Treasure Hunt

First clues in the Jaycee Aquacade treasure hunt have been revealed by Don Grabanski, chairman of the annual project. Two treasures — one for $100 and another for $50 — have been hidden and will be objects of the search.

Grabanski reminds treasure hunters that no property need be distributed to find the treasures and that anyone is eligible to seek them out.

First two clues for the $100 treasure are "The system always works" and "Only the treasure man knows, and he's happy". First two clues for the $50 treasure are "Look for something clear on the bottom" and "Look for something black on the top."

Additional clues will be given on local radio and in the Times until the treasures are discovered.

County Sells $575,000 In Highway Bonds

American National Bank and Trust company of St. Paul was the successful bidder on the sale of $575,000 in general obligation state-aid highway bonds offered by Pennington county at a bid letting last Thursday.

The county board of commissioners accepted the bid at a rate of 9.8862 per cent interest as the lowest among five bidders. High bid was for 10.120 per cent interest.

The county will issue 115 bonds in the denomination of $5,000 each with the repayment to run through 1991.

Reeve New Vice Commander Of State Legion

At the 63rd annual convention of the American Legion held recently in Moorhead, Robert Reeve of Thief River Falls was elected to the post of department vice commander for the Ninth and Sixth districts. He is one of five vice commanders serving under newly-elected department commander Milo Cecka of Minneapolis.

Reeve will have one of the largest geographical areas in the state to cover as vice commander covering the Sixth and Ninth districts. The Ninth district, which includes Thief River Falls, extends from the Canadian and North Dakota borders south to Breckenridge and east to New York Mills and Bagley. The Sixth district extends from Baudette south to beyond St. Cloud and east to Grand Rapids.

Total membership in the two districts is about 26,000, including 11,500 in the Ninth district and 14,500 in the Sixth. Mrs. James (Annabelle) Cuppett of Thief River Falls was appointed chairman of the department of field service at the auxiliary convention held in coordination with the American Legion event.

Reeve served as Ninth District commander in 1978-79 and vice commander at large and area vice commander prior to that. He was district adjutant during the term of James Cuppett of Thief River Falls as district commander.

For the past two years Reeve has also served as state education and scholarship chairman. He is a past commander of the Thief River Falls post and held other offices in the organization as well. A veteran of military service with the U.S. army air force in the European theater in 1943 to 1945, he has been a member of the American Legion since 1955. In 1960-61 he was commander of the Elbow Lake Post 321.

As department vice commander Reeve will attend functions in the two districts as a representative of the state organization at the direction of the department commander. His primary responsibility will be in maintaining or increasing membership in the two districts.

READY AND WAITING for the final component — people to buy the tickets — were these carnival attractions in place for the Pennington county fair which opens in Thief River Falls Thursday. The Matt Armstrong Shows completed its run in North Dakota several days ago and arrived in town a couple of days early to set up for operations. Although entry day for the fair will not be until Thursday, the carnival will be operating today and the first of three "Kiddies Days" will be observed. Today, Friday and Sunday children may purchase a $7 bracelet which entitles them to ride as many rides as they can from 1 to 6 p.m. Among the new rides at the carnival this year is the "Texas Revolver" shown beneath the flags at the right above.

Four-Day County Fair To Open Here Thursday

Entries will be received Thursday for the Pennington county fair to be conducted Thursday through Sunday at the Pennington county fairgrounds in Thief River Falls. The Matt Armstrong shows carnival is in operation today with the first of three kiddies days being observed this afternoon.

A full list of entries was made in the opening entertainment event of the fair, the amateur talent program to be presented Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in front of the grandstand. In event of rain the contest will be moved to the city auditorium.

Fifteen entries were received in the contest and entries were closed, according to Doug Engstrom and Mike Lehrer, co-chairmen of the event. Two of the original entries have since withdrawn, leaving 13 entries at the present time. First prize will be $75 with $50 for second, $35 for third, $25 for fourth and $15 for fifth place.

Entries include the following: Kathleen Kolden and Patty Nelson, Thief River Falls, vocal duet with Patty playing piano; Lori Berkeley and Cindy Wear, Thief River Falls, guitar and vocal; Michael Lorenson, Strathcona, age eight, vocal solo; Deb Opdahl and Paulie Weggie, Thief River Falls, clarinet and flute duet;

Also John Burkel, Greenbush, guitar and vocal; Susan Rosetta, Thief River Falls, vocal solo; Leslie Williamson, Thief River Falls, vocal solo; Todd Wing, Bruce Tranby and Angie Vigen, Thief River Falls, vocal, piano and guitar; Cyndie Lee, Grand Forks, vocal solo;

Also Kari and Shelly Helm, Newfolden, vocal and guitar; Tom Eckstein, Thief River Falls, vocal solo; and Cathy Stanislowski, Thief River Falls, vocal and guitar.

Entertainment Friday at 7 p.m. will be the demolition derby sponsored by the Thief River Falls Jaycees. There will be $1,500 in cash prizes and trophies awarded in various heat, feature and grand slam events, and in special categories such as best paint job, best crew, sportsmanship and true grit.

Between 60 and 80 entries are expected in the demolition derby, including a number of entries from area communities. A number of experienced demo derby drivers will be included in the field, according to Jaycee chairmen Dick Zeman, Dave Cariveau and Randy Adamson.

Saturday events include the 4-H club horse show at 9 a.m., dog show at 1 p.m., and horse racing at 7 p.m. The horse racing will include saddle horse races of one-quarter, one-half and three-quarters of a mile in length as well as chariot and chuckwagon races.

Sunday afternoon program will include the 4-H club fashion revue at 2:30 p.m. in the sports arena and a new fair event, mud wrestling, at 2 p.m. in front of the grandstand. Men's and women's divisions will be offered in the mud wrestling event with three weight classes in the men's division and two in the women's division. Cash prizes of $60 for first and $40 for second will be offered in each weight class.

At 7:30 p.m. Sunday the final event of the fair will be presented — the Margo Smith country western show. The featured entertainer has worked with such country performers as Tammy Wynette, Charlie Pride, Charlie Rich, Tom T. Hall, Don Williams, the Statler Brothers, Faron Young, Conway Twitty, Sonny James and Ronnie Milsap.

In addition to this afternoon's kiddies day, similar events will be held on Friday and Sunday. Youngsters will ROLLER SKATING is one of the activities enjoyed by Wendy Rustad of Oslo, one of seven candidates for the Miss Thief River Falls title at the Jaycee Aquacade. An active music student in high school and two years of college at the University of North Dakota, she will present a vocal solo as her pageant talent number.

Wendy Rustad Seeking Crown

(Editor's Note: This is the sixth in a series of interviews with candidates for the Miss Thief River Falls title at the annual Jaycee Aquacade pageant to be held August 1 in the Lincoln high school auditorium. The pageant is an official Miss America preliminary event with the winner to advance to the Miss Minnesota pageant in Austin.)

"Really, I'd Rather Rollerskate" would be a good T-shirt motto for Wendy Rustad of Oslo who enjoys rolling along on skates as one of her favorite activities. She's co-president of the UND Siouxper Skaters rollerskating club formed this year at the University of North Dakota.

Wendy, 20, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harlan Rustad of Oslo and a 1979 graduate of Oslo high school. She has attended the University of North Dakota for the past two years where she is a member of Delta Zeta sorority. She is five feet four and one-half inches tall, weighs 122 pounds, has dark brown hair and hazel eyes, and her pageant talent number will be a vocal solo.

In high school Wendy was named to the Minnesota all-state choir in 1978 and in her senior year was selected as the outstanding music student in her class. She earned star ratings in vocal solo and brass sextette at state area music contests, was named to "Who's Who Among American High School Students" and earned a Matthews scholarship at UND.

At UND she has taken two years of voice lessons, a year of piano lessons and French horn instruction. Her major is in advertising and public relations with minor in music and French. Her hobbies in addition to rollerskating include sewing, jogging, piano playing, drawing and playing softball.

Wendy has been employed by Minnkota Power cooperative in Grand Forks for two years, is philanthropies chairman for Delta Zeta sorority and a cosmetics consultant.

Upon graduation she hopes to work for a large corporation in public relations or advertising and perhaps to travel and use her art and music training.

SOCIETY and CLUBS

Valerie K. Prestegaard Weds Craig Alan Zahara

Valerie Kaye Prestegaard and Craig Alan Zahara exchanged marriage vows recently at a two o'clock ceremony at Trinity Lutheran church in this city.

The bride is the daughter of June Tatro and Eugene Prestegaard, both of this city. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Dick Fischer of International Falls.

Rev. Berton R. Hushagen officiated at the double ring ceremony witnessed by approximately 200 relatives and friends. At the organ was Ida Nordvall. She played the traditional wedding marches, and also accompanied the bride's cousin, Marilyn Ness, as she sang, "For Baby, For Bobby," "Wedding Song," and "The Lord's Prayer."

Forming the chancel setting were pink apple blossoms, pink rose buds and babies' breath.

The bride, escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her father, was attired in a white bridal gown made by her mother. The gown was styled with a fitted bodice, featuring a ruffle that extended from the shoulder to a wide bow at the raised waistline. Covered buttons complemented the bodice and secured the wide cuffs on her bishop sleeves. Lace trimmed the neckline and flowed down the front of the skirt to the double ruffled hemline. Creating back interest was a cathedral length train. A lace profile headpiece held her bouffant veil of bridal illusion. She carried a cascade of pink carnations, red roses, Majestic daisies and babies' breath.

Attending the bride were her sisters: Laura Prestegaard of Mankato, as maid of honor; Mollie Krone of Greybull, Wyo., and Nita Prestegaard of this city. Their pink gowns, topped by long-sleeved matching sheer pring, were belted at the natural waistline. All the attendants wore a sprig of babies' breath in their hair and carried nosegays of pink carnations, Majestic daisies and babies' breath.

Wearing a similar gown was the flower girl, Patti Shipman of Blaine, a cousin of the groom. She carried a white basket filled with flowers, matching those carried by the bride's attendants.

The rings were carried by Joshua Horarik of Fridley, a nephew of the groom. Like the groomsmen, he wore a burgundy tuxedo, white ruffled shirt and red boutonniere. The groom's attire included a white tuxedo with tails and a red rose boutonniere.

Jim Lucachick of Moorhead, a friend of the groom, was best man. Groomsmen were Jim Brown, International Falls, and Bruce Turban of Iron, also friends of the groom. Serving as ushers were Dean Prestegaard, a brother of the bride, Perry Zahara and Rick Fischer, brothers of the groom, and Curt Lamberson, a cousin of the bride.

The mother of the bride wore a plum-rose gown with capelet sleeves and a pleated floor-length skirt. The mother of the groom wore an off-white floor-length gown topped by a long-sleeved lace jacket. Their corsages were of red roses and white Majestic daisies. The fathers wore burgundy tuxedos and had red roses pinned on their lapels.

Honor guests were Mollie Morberg of Warren, grandmother of the bride; Marie Mathews, grandmother of the groom; Evelyn Engstrom and Orissa Schultz, the godmothers, and Tammy Carlson and Tami Swanson, the bride's personal attendants.

A reception in the church parlors followed with Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Brandt as host and hostess. Sue Bjerken and Wayne Sourdif registered the guests as Jenny and Lea Johnson ladled the punch.

Centering the serving table was a three-tiered wedding cake baked and decorated by the bride's mother. The cake was iced in white and decorated with pink roses with red accents. White sugar bells hung from the sides. At the base was a flowing water fountain surrounded by six heart shaped cakes topped by miniature cherubs. Topping the cake was a tulle heart with two white doves. The cake was cut and served by Iva Lamberson and Madeline Morberg. Evelyn Engstrom and Orissa Schultz poured the coffee.

At the gift table were Dave and Sue Horarik.

The bride is a graduate of Lincoln high school and the groom is a graduate of the Falls Senior high school at International Falls. Both are graduates of the Thief River Falls AVTI, auto body department. The groom is employed in this city at Auto Body Repair.

Jones, Orville Botner and Allen Paulson.

Presiding at the auxiliary meeting was department President Mrs. Joyce Erickson of Albert Lea. Convention speaker on Thursday was National President Mrs. Lyle Seymour of Bird City, Kans. Also speaking to the group were Girls State Governor Rosemary O'Brien of Winona and Minnesota Governor Quie. A memorial tribute to Past National President Mrs. A.C. (Tess) Carlson, wh died during the year, was given on Friday.

At the election of officers, Mrs. Forrest Vanlandingham of Mankato was elected and installed as Department president for 1981-82. Elected first vice president was Mrs. Wendell Draper of Lanesboro. Mrs. Peter Coppa of Bayport was chosen second vice president.

Named Department Field Service chairman was Mrs. James Cuppett of Thief River Falls. Mrs. Cuppett is currently serving as treasurer of the local unit. She is unit past president and also past president of the ninth district.

Several district awards were given. Special recognition was given to Mrs. Robert Reeve who received a plaque from the National American Legion auxiliary in recognition for her work with the scholarship program. Mrs. Reeve served on the Department scholarship program this past year.

Close to 1,000 delegates attended the three-day meeting.

Vay Rawertses Of RLF Note 50th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Vay Rawerts of Red Lake Falls were honored on their 50th wedding anniversary on Saturday, July 4, at a celebration at St. John's Lutheran church in Red Lake Falls.

Hosting the event were their children: Mr. and Mrs. Earl (Sylvia) Berg, Sr.; Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Rawerts, Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Rawerts, Rev. and Mrs. Arthur (Connie) Spomer, and Mr. and Mrs. Marvin (Pat) Dahl. All were present.

Also present were the grandchildren, Michael Berg, Karen Berg, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Berg, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Rawerts, Angela Dahl, and Amie and Rachel Spomer; and two great-grandchildren, Jason and Jeanine Berg. Grandson Timothy Rawerts and his wife were unable to attend but sent greetings and best wishes.

Honor guests were the couple's attendants, John Ulrich and Pearl Anderson.

A brief program was given with son-in-law Rev. Arthur Spomer of Ann Arbor, Mich., giving the Scripture and meditation. Son Daniel Rawerts of this city sang "The Lord's My Shepherd," with grandson, Michael Berg playing the organ. At the reception that followed in the church parlors, son Dennis served as master of ceremonies. He also gave a brief tribute to his parents.

Special greetings received by the couple were from President and Mrs. Ronald Reagan, Congressman Arlan Stangeland, and several former pastors of St. John's congregation.

Highlighting the serving table was a four-tiered anniversary cake decorated with gold-colored roses. Also on the serving table were small golden bells, made by Carol Rawerts, which were later given to the servers. The floral centerpiece and table flowers were pink and white carnations.

Cutting and serving the anniversary cake were Rosie Ulrich and Margie Ulrich. Marion Shimpa and Renette Leas poured the coffee and Linda Ulrich served coffee at the tables. Delores Kading was in charge of the guest book and Dionne Ulrich had made the mints. All are nieces of the couple and all were presented with small spoons as mementos of the occasion.

Assisting in the kitchen were Ruth Fladland, Maria Erdmann, Marie Lehrer, Gladys Kalbakdalen and Luella Gerlach.

For the occasion, Mrs. Rawerts was attired in a long-sleeved, peach-colored gown and Rawerts wore a conventional dark green suit.

Approximately 200 relatives and friends attended the celebration.

Helmer Linds Note Anniversary At Newfolden

Mr. and Mrs. Helmer Lind were honored on their 50th wedding anniversary on July 5 at the Bethlehem Lutheran church in Newfolden.

Hosting the golden anniversary celebration were their children: Lowell and Donna Mae Hogberg of Argyle, Dennis and Yvonne Ristau, East Grand Forks; Delano and Margaret Lind, Sioux Falls, S.D., and Harley and Judy Lind of East Grand Forks. Mrs. Lind's sister, Viola Wikstrom, presided at the guest book.

A program was given with Harley Lind giving the welcome. Del Lind read the Scripture, reading from "The Song of Solomon," and also shared some of the incidents in the family when the children were growing up. Donna May Hogberg read "The Life of Dad and Mom," and Judy Lind read a poem "Fifty Wedded Years."

Vocal selections were "Savior Like a Shepherd Lead Us," by the Lind children; "God is So Good, " by the grandchildren and their spouses; and "The Lord's Prayer," by Kristi Lind, daughter of Del and Margaret Lind. Also singing were Lind's nieces, "the Windahl sisters": June Swanson, Dolores Bakke, Phyllis Gander and Eloise Delhl. They sang several songs, including "Moonlight and Roses," which was popular when the Linds met. Pianists were Margaret Lind and Kathy Rokke. Special greetings were extended by Rev. David Liefeld, who also led in the singing of the table prayer. The program concluded with Mr. and Mrs. Lind giving their thanks to God, their family and their friends for "the wonderful day."

At the reception that followed, Mrs. Lind's sisters, JoAnne Lucius and Eunice Holmes cut and served the anniversary cake baked and decorated by Mrs. Sanford Bagaas. Pouring coffee were Irene Rokke, a friend, and Mabel Johnson, Lind's sister-in-law. Assisting in the kitchen were Tillie Amundson, Alice Bakke, Judy Liefeld, Ruth Martin, Gloria Rokke and Bertha Tunheim.

Relatives and friends attending the celebration were from Seattle, Wash.; Leonard, Grand Forks, Buxton and Mayville, N.D.; Argyle, Badger, Viking, Stephen, Dilworth, East Grand Forks, Thief River Falls, Fosston, New Prague, Strandquist, Middle River, Duluth, Goodridge, Warren, Red Lake Falls and the Newfolden area.

Moccasin Club Will Meet At Lendobeja Home

Moccasin Garden club will meet Wednesday at 7:30 p.m., at the Alice Lendobeja home. Topics to be discussed will be the county fair and the 13th District Horticulture flower show.

Club president Alice Lendobeja preseided at a recent meeting of the club held at the home of Connie Manke. She opened the meeting by reading "Prayer." Members answered roll call by listing what they were eating from their gardens. They also voted to again donate a prize for the 13th District flower show.

It was noted that the annual plant sale had been a success. It was also noted that Joan Nelson, Olda Nelson, Alice Lendobeja, Agnes and Rhodella Tieman, Marge Carlson, and Dianne and Beatrice Wilson had planted the flower plot at the Pioneer Village.

Announcement was made of the State convention to be held at Crookston, and members were encouraged to attend.

The program topic discussed was "Iris." Variety of irises were brought for exchanging.

Those attending the meeting, not already mentioned, were Christina Anenson and Eva Lendobeja.

Thompson At Tioga Heaters As Engineer

Engineering manager Roger Van Horn has announced that Dale Thompson formerly of Thief River Falls, has joined Tioga Air Heaters, Inc., as product engineer. Thompson will assume the responsibility for the engineering bills of material and product testing. His past experience and knowledge will aid in both product development and testing.

Thompson has an AA degree from Northland community college, Thief River Falls. Previous to his employment at Tioga, he was employed by Arctic Enterprises, Inc., of Thief River Falls since 1970 as product engineer. He was responsible for coordinating design, production and testing of snowmobiles. Dale and his wife Paulette have two children.

Majority Of Voters Favor Trinity Pastor

Majority of members voting at Trinity Lutheran church in Thief River Falls Monday evening voted in opposition to a resolution calling for the resignation of Rev. Berton R. Hushagen as pastor of the congregation.

With 859 members registering to vote at the special meeting called for 8 p.m. Monday, there were 313 votes cast in favor and 545 opposed to the resolution: "Should Berton R. Hushagen resign as pastor of Trinity Lutheran Church within 30 days?"

The vote was brought about by a petition presented to the church council, signed by 289 members of the congregation. Church constitution requires a minimum of 10 per cent of the confirmed membership signing a petition to require the council to conduct the vote. Official confirmed membership of Trinity church is 1,795.

Prior to the special meeting Monday, 13 signers of the petition requested having their names removed. The petition becomes a part of the official church records.

Lens Replacement Options Offered After Eye Surgery

In order to see clearly after cataract surgery, some type of substitute lens must be used to focus light rays and restore vision. That's because removing the clouded lens from the eye produces the same effect as taking the lens out of a camera. In other words, you have a perfectly good-looking eye, but it won't make useful images until the lens is replaced.

Methods for lens replacement after cataract surgery include traditional thick glasses, a variety of contact lenses and intraocular lens implants. There is no single best option, according to a St. Paul ophthalmologist. The patient's needs, age, type of cataract and general eye health influence the choice. In addition, the eye physician's training, experience and tendency to be surgically conservative or aggressive influence the decision. For these reasons some patients seek several medical opinions before deciding what is "best" for them.

Thick spectacle lenses used to be the only option for vision correction after cataract surgery. These glasses restore clear central vision, but there are other problems. The lenses are heavy, making them cosmetically unacceptable to some patients. In addition, although vision is clear through the center of the lenses, patients have to adjust to substantial distortion around the edges and some loss of side vision. Even with newly designed cataract glasses, walking and judging distances may present a problem.

"The problem is more complicated if only one eye has had surgery," the doctor explained. "Double vision occurs if the patient tries to wear a cataract lens for the operated eye and an ordinary lens for the other eye."

That's because the thick glass makes things appear larger and closer by approximately one-third as compared to the unoperated eye. The brain can't bring the two images together into a single, three-dimensional image.

Traditional solution has been to prescribe a cataract lens for the operated eye and a balance lens of equal thickness and weight for the other eye. The balance lens blurs the vision of the unoperated eye, making it much easier to ignore. If the patient and eye physician decide that cataract glasses are the safest and best option, then it's wise not to operate on the cataracts until there is substantial interference with vision, the ophthalmologist said. In most cases, surgery is postponed for one eye until it's obvious that the other eye will need surgery soon.

For patients who are able to wear them, contact lenses are an excellent answer to the problems associated with cataract glasses. A contact lens on the surface of the cornea of the operated eye eliminates distortions and loss of side vision. The world looks "normal-sized" as compared to its appearance through the thicker spectacle lenses.

However, contacts aren't for everyone. Conventional hard and soft lenses have to be carefully inserted, removed and cleaned daily. Not everyone has the patience or ability to do that. A high proportion of older patients can't wear contacts in the first place or they discard them and return to cataract glasses. Even successful contact lens wearers need cataract glasses to find and clean their contact lenses and to carry on normal activities when they're not wearing their contacts.

An intraocular lens is a plastic artificial lens that is inserted into the eye at the same time the cataract is removed. Implants were pioneered in the 1950s but there were many problems at the time and implants acquired a bad reputation. In recent years most of the problems have been solved. According to the doctor, intraocular lenses are now a practical reality, and for many patients represent the best method for restoring vision after cataract removal.

"I'm convinced they're the way to go, at least for the near future. Improved lens design and quality of manufacturing have contributed to the good results we now get. In my opinion, the advantages now outweigh the risks," he said.

Successful implant surgery results in a return of vision much as though the cataract had never existed. However, the surgical procedure is more involved than simple cataract removal; hence it carries some additional risk. As in any surgery there is the risk of infection and possibility of hemorrhage. Also an implant can get out of position; it can rub the cornea and cause damage, or be a source of continual inflammation. And in the presence of other eye diseases, it may be unwise to use an intraocular lens.

The procedure is commonly used for middle-aged and elderly patients. Most wear regular glasses along with the implanted lens. The success of implants in recent years has led one surgeon to call intraocular lenses "the happiness factor."

Regardless of the method chosen to restore vision after cataract surgery, it's clear that the diagnosis of cataract no longer spells disaster. Thousands of successful cataract operations are performed each month, and most patients are pleased that they have a choice in the method used to restore their vision.

Happy 19th Deanna

Love, D. K. and A. O.

Sunday Worship Service Slated At Warren Fair

All faiths worship service will be presented by the Peterson-Swanson family singers from Hallock at the Marshall county fair in Warren on Sunday morning at 11 a.m.

The all faiths worship service has been a program at the Marshall county fair for several years. Many area churches are cooperating by not scheduling services in their individual churches, urging members to attend the services at the fairgrounds.

The Peterson-Swanson families have been singing together for the past two years. They started singing for fun and found that among all the family members there were the voice ranges needed for good harmony. Since then they have sung for many churches and community functions including the Red River Valley synodical convention of the Lutheran church in America held in Moorhead. This month they recorded an album to be released in six weeks.

Gospel Team To Perform At Trinity Sunday

"Winds of Peace," an international team formed and sponsored by Lutheran youth encounter, will present a concert Sunday, July 26 at Trinity Lutheran church, Thief River Falls at 7:30 p.m. Coffee fellowship will follow the concert.

The group will share their mission message through the use of word, music, puppet cameos and drama sketches. Members of the team are Paul and Becky Abel, Sherry and Gary Hauter, all of Thief River Falls, and Tonia and David Dahlin, Green Bay, WI.

The team has spent six months in Brazil. Part of the cost of this venture is being met through money raised by individual team members. Additional support comes from free-will offerings received during programs given at churches and other events in the U.S.A.

During the three months prior to departure for Brazil last December "Winds of Pease" visited over 60 congregations. Since their return in late May, the team is re-visiting these supporting congregations to share the experiences in Brazil.

Embroidery Contest Rules Announced

Registration for the embroidery contest that accompanies the "A Stitch Here. A Stitch There" showing is Monday, July 27, at Northern state bank. Those wishing to enter pieces of their embroidery may bring them to the bank between 1 and 3 p.m. Monday.

Contest-winning entries plus those receiving honorable mention will be on display at the bank for the remainder of the showing. Tony Ricci and Bunny Dondelinger will register contestants on Monday.

Contestants in each of five categories will be competing for a $10 prize in each category. Designs for each area need not be original. Judging will take place Tuesday, July 28 by Pat Dunning, Ruth Legvold and Betty Faver. Winners will be contacted by Wednesday, July 28, and their pieces of embroidery will be put on display with the stitchery showing. Madeline Robarge and Melba Penning will set up the display of area embroidery works.

Showing of "A Stitch Here. A Stitch There" will continue until August 10 at Northern state bank in Thief River Falls. It is sponsored by the Thief River Falls community arts council. Marge Green is the council president and Gretchen Beito is chairman of the stitchery display and contest.

Kezar Finishes Marine Corps Recruit Class

Marine corps Private Carl G. Kezar, son of Donald A. Kezar, route 1, Viking, has completed recruit training at the San Diego marine corps depot.

This 11-week training cycle covered basics of battlefield survival, provided an introduction to the personal and professional standards traditionally exhibited by Marines, an active physical conditioning program, and a variety of military skills, including first aid, rifle marksmanship and close order drill.

Kezar received special recognition for superior achievement during the rifle marksmanship training phase, scoring 233 of 250 possible points and qualifying as the unit's high shooter.

A 1980 graduate of Marshall county central high school, Newfolden, Kezar reported to the San Diego marine corps recruit depot in April.

Randi Smeby Services Held Here Tuesday

Funeral services for Randi Smeby, 92, of Thief River Falls and formerly of Grygla, were held Tuesday at 1:00 p.m., at the Green Funeral chapel. Mrs. Smeby died Friday at Northwestern hospital.

Rev. Percy Smerek, Pastor of the Grygla Lutheran parish, officiated at the services. Organist and soloist was Mrs. Arnold Hammer. Interment was in the Valle cemetery in rural Grygla.

Pallbearers were Jim Smeby, Lowell Smeby, Paul Smeby, Bruce Smeby, Roger Smeby and Ricky Smeby.

Mrs. Smeby, the former Randi Dybendahl, was born April 26, 1889 in Gol Hallingdal, Norway to Amund and Sigrid Hanseplass Dybendahl. She attended school and grew to womanhood in Norway. In 1911, she immigrated to the United States, settling in Esmond, N.D. She was married there on Jan. 2, 1918 to Even Smeby. In 1920, the couple moved to Grygla, where they lived in Benville township, Beltrami county. Following the death of her husband on May 4, 1961, Mrs. Smeby continued to make her home in Grygla until three years ago, when she moved to Thief River Falls.

She was a member of the Valle church.

Surviving are three sons: Albert, John and Robert Smeby, all of Grygla; a daughter, Mrs. Walter (Evelyn) Reiger, Rosalia, Wash.; 13 grandchildren, two great-grandchildren, two sisters: Guri Grennette of Elizabethtown, Pa., and Anne Bjorkedakken of Gol Hallingdal, Norway; and two brothers: Oistein Dahlen, Vaale, Norway; and Ole Dahlen, Sova Hillestad, Norway.

In addition to her husband and parents, she was preceded in death by one brother and a sister.

Niilo Jokela Services To Be Held In Grygla

Niilo Jokela, 71, of rural Grygla, died Tuesday at the CNC unit at Northwestern hospital.

Funeral services for Niilo Jokela will be held Saturday at 2:00 p.m., at Grace Lutheran church in Grygla. Rev. Gene Broughton will officiate. Interment will be in the Lone Oak cemetery in Fourtown.

The body will repose at the Green Funeral home from Friday noon until 11:00 a.m., Saturday, and at the church for one hour prior to the time of services.

A complete obituary will appear in Monday's Times.

Esper Beedy Services Held At Wood Lake

Funeral services for Esper (Dick) Beedy, 75, of Thief River Falls were held Tuesday at 2:00 p.m., at St. John's Lutheran church at Wood Lake. Beedy died Friday at Northwestern hospital.

Rev. David Meyer officiated at the services. Soloist was Mrs. Vivian Contos of Thief River Falls. Mrs. Gerald Steffenhagen was organist. Interment was in the church cemetery with the Sunset Burial association of Echo in charge of arrangements.

Pallbearers were Eugene House, Robert Mensink, Steven Mensink, Ervin Munsch, Loren Zempel and Waldemar Zempel.

Esper Beedy was born Aug. 22, 1905 in Rensselaer, Ind., to George and Louise Eckhart Beedy. He was baptized in 1914 at Gilby, N.D., and was confirmed Dec. 16, 1932 at St. John's Lutheran church at Wood Lake.

On Dec. 22, 1931, he was married to Hazel Neuman in St. Luke's Lutheran parsonage in Posen township, Yellow Medicine county. He farmed for a few years before becoming custodian of the Wood Lake school, where he worked for many years. He retired in 1970. Since June of 1980, he and his wife have lived in Thief River Falls.

He is survived by his wife, two sons: Dean Beedy of Duluth, and David of Thief River Falls; two daughters: Mrs. Clayton (Shirley) Formo, Granite Falls, and Mrs. Walter (Dorothy) Arf of Santa Barbara, Calif.; 13 grandchildren including Mark, Mike and Craig Beedy of this city; three great-grandchildren, two brothers: Preston of Cent, and Grant; and two sisters: Mrs. Frank (Nora) Burland, Anoka, and Mrs. Donald (Florence) Gardin, Hibbing.

In addition to his parents, he was preceded in death by a sister and two brothers.

Courage Residence Teaches Freedom And Independence

The word "independence" can hold many meanings for people with physical disabilities.

Independence can mean the simple joy of dressing without help for the first time, the quiet satisfaction of living in one's own apartment or the excitement of landing a meaningful, challenging job.

But many times people with physical disabilities can't find the independence they seek, because they feel trapped within the four walls of an institutional room, or can't negotiate the obstacle course of impassable steps, narrow hallways and cramped doorways found in many single family homes.

To help eliminate these barriers to independence and allow people with physical disabilities the freedom to integrate themselves into society, Courage center, a regional rehabilitation organization, created Courage residence and the Courage independent living home.

Courage residence, a transitional living facility which adjoins Courage Center's Golden Valley headquarters, provides an alternative to institutional living for 64 severely disabled young adults. While living in the residence young people learn the skills necessary to eventually move out and live independently in the community.

Young adults entering Courage residence set their own rehabilitation goals, which are recorded in a contract drawn between them and the residence staff. Contracts are reviewed monthly to make sure residents are making sufficient progress toward reaching their goals, which can range from the simple objectives of being able to feed and dress themselves to developing employment skills and finding their own apartments.

For some residents, this goal-setting represents a first step in taking responsibility for their own lives.

Residents pursue their goals through a combination of counseling, therapies, instruction in daily living skills, continued education, driver education, sports and recreation and career exploration and development while living in a relaxed, dormitory-like atmosphere. The non-institutional atmosphere reinforces a resident's feeling of self-reliance and personal decision-making.

The residence's program has been successful. Since it opened in 1976, 64 per cent of its clients have gone on to self-dependent living situations; finding jobs and-or living independently in their own apartments. Without the residence most of these people would still be in institutional or dependent settings.

One such former resident is Tom Segner, 23, Waconia, who once was disabled from rheumatoid arthritis and came to the residence totally dependent on a wheelchair. After undergoing rigorous physical therapy and medical treatment, he left the residence in February of 1980. He later obtained a job in the payroll and tax department of a Twin Cities computer firm.

Segner, who can now walk thanks to continued medical treatment and therapy, credits the residence with giving him confidence in his own abilities.

"Through the friendship and support of the staff, I learned how to overcome my disability," he said. "Finding a job was easier with the residence's help."

But the skills people with physical handicaps learn from transitional programs like Courage residence can be wasted if they can't find the barrier-free housing needed for an independent lifestyle. To provide practical ideas in accessible housing, Courage center built the Courage independent living home, located across Golden Valley road from the center.

The home, which opened in February of this year, is a working laboratory, showcasing the latest design features and household conveniences which can make single family homes accessible.

Three young adults with physical handicaps and their attendan's live in the home and, through day-to-day use, test the practicality of its design features, which include an intercom, central environmental control system, adapted switches on all appliances, an intrusion detection system and special door and window hardware for people with limited use of their hands.

Additional features of the home include a two-van garage; kitchen with accessible appliances, adjustable counter tops and other adaptations; special light switches and locks; wheel-in accessible bathrooms and an elevator.

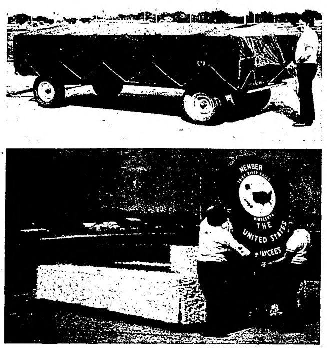
Tours of the home are regularly scheduled, where visitors can view its features and also draw ideas from its "accessibility resource room," containing literature on accessible housing and examples of adapted living devices.

Whad does the freedom and mobility that comes from living in a barrier-free home mean to a person with a physical handicap? To resident Don Bania, it means the freedom to develop his creative abilities.

Bania, a quadriplegic from a 1970 motorcycle accident, is an accomplished artist who draws and paints holding his brush in his mouth. He says he appreciates his sense of independence.

"Being able to go where I want and do what I want when I want to do it allows me to give free reign to my creativity," he said.

For information about Courage residence and the Courage independent living home, contact the Courage residence administrator, 3915 Golden Valley Road, Golden Valley, Minnesota 55422, (612) 588-0811. For tours of the Courage independent living home, contact the Courage center tour coordinator.



A NEAT PACKAGE is the float constructed for the Thief River Falls Jaycees by Gary Hamness with assistance from several friends. The farm trailer was fitted with a special framework and floor, drop-down sides and ends and removable bracing for the canvas cover. It was covered inside with plastic decorative material. First used at the Detroit Lakes water carnival parade, it will be used next in the Thief River Falls Aquacade parade and be available for other parade use. Gerry Paulson is shown helping Hamness set up the float in the bottom photo — a process which takes only a few minutes. The Jaycees plan to add the Jaycee name to the sides of the float when folded for transportation and storage.

9-Digit ZIP Code Scuttled In Budget Bill

The nine-digit ZIP code may finally be headed for the dead-letter bin, according to Sen. Dave Durenberger. A House-Senate conference committee working on the budget for the coming fiscal year agreed to delay the new ZIP code at least until Oct. 1, 1983.

Postponing the new ZIP code was included in the version of the fiscal 1982 budget bill passed by the House of Representatives, but was left out of the Senate bill.

House conferees insisted on their position and were backed by Senator Durenberger, considered the leading Senate opponent of the new ZIP code. Although Durenberger is not a member of the conference committee, he has been lobbying his colleagues to accept the nine-digit ZIP code delay.

The postponement was accepted by the conferees assigned to postal service issues and must still be accepted by the full conference committee and both houses of Congress. However, the agreement on stopping the ZIP code is expected to be accepted.

"The U.S. postal service walked American mailers to the end of the gangplank before we were finally saved from the nine-digit ZIP code," said Durenberger. "This agreement gives us all the benefits and savings of automating the postal service without the wasted expense of a nine-digit ZIP code. We can use this agreement and the time made available to us to start building an efficient postal delivery system — one that will be able to compete with the technological revolution going on in communications and information transfer."

Under the agreement, the postal service will be allowed to purchase the equipment necessary to automate mail handling. However, it cannot promote the nine-digit ZIP through advertising or offering mailers a rate discount.

The conference agreement also directs the federal general accounting office to study the costs of the nine-digit ZIP code and report to Congress by December of 1982.

Family Camp At Oak Hills Opens July 27

Annual Oak Hills family Bible conference at the Bible institute campus on Lake Marquette, four and a half miles soutwest of Bemidji, will begin Monday evening, July 27, and end Friday evening, August 14.

Speakers for the first week, July 27-31, are Robert H. Thompson, president of Oak Hills fellowship and Frank Russell, dean of education at Oak Hills Bible institute. Staff of the Bemidji Youth for Christ program will present the missionary emphasis.

Featured Bible teacher for Conference II, August 3-7, and Conference III, August 10-14, is Dr. Malcolm Cronk, pastor of Camelback Bible church, Paradise Valley, AZ. Dr. Cronk is a Bible teacher familiar to area residents who have attended Oak Hills conferences.

Mr. and Mrs. David Sherling, Brazil, will present the missionary challenge during Conference, and Mr. and Mrs. Peter Carlson, also of Brazil, will speak during Conference III.

Conference director Kenneth J. Wold announces a Mini-Musicale each evening, beginning at 7 p.m. Classes for children run simultaneously with the adult meetings morning and evening. Nursery service and child care is also available.

Area youth are welcome to attend the Bible study for teens at 11 a.m. Tuesday through Friday, and special activities are planned for 9 each evening.

For more information, call Oak Hills Fellowship at (218) 751-8670.

Holt

The Holt 4-H met Thursday, July 16 at the Ken Peterson farm following the annual club tour. Vice-president Eric Kjensrud called the meeting to order. Flag pledges were said. Roll call was answered by "Are you ready for the fair?" The secretary's and treasurer's reports were read and approved.

Old Business: Making a club banner was discussed. It was decided not to make one. Our club works in the food stand on Sunday morning, July 26 at 10:30. Each family is asked to bring 2 pies for the food stand. No cream pies. Daniel Haglund gave a report on his trip to Lake Sarah 4-H camp.

The next meeting is scheduled for Sunday, August 16 at which time our club will have a club picnic. Members are encouraged to bring their parents. Jim Moe made a motion to adjourn the meeting. Lee Pemberson seconded the motion. The meeting was then adjourned.

Eric Kjensrud gave a project talk on sheep and Karen Kjensrud gave a project talk on geese. Lunch was served.

Warroad Group To Produce 'Sound of Music'

Tank productions' Warroad's summer theatre, will produce "The Sound of Music" on July 23, 24, 25, 26, 30, 31, August 1 and 2 with curtain time at 8:30 each evening, except Sundays when curtain time is 7:30 p.m.

Minot AFB Sets Aug. 19 Open House

Minot AFB officials have scheduled the annual base open house, Northern neighbors day, for Wednesday, August 19. The base will open it's gates to the public from noon until 8 p.m. free of charge.

Officials pointed out that the annual Northern neighbors day is usually held on a weekend to allow more people to visit the base. Previous years have seen more than 25,000 people attend the open house.

The event was scheduled on a week day this year to allow the United States air force premier air demonstration team, the Tunderbirds to perform. The Thunderbirds, flying supersonic T-38's, will perform at 6 p.m.

In addition to the Thunderbirds, many aircraft of the USAF and allied services will be on display and open for inspection. The world's largest bomber, the B-52H Stratofortress, the KC-135 Stratotanker, and the F-106 Delta Dart are just a few of the aircraft to be displayed.

Tours of the Minute Man III ICBM silo and launch control center will also be available.

June's SBA Loans Total $5,070,000

Paul W. Jansen, district director of the Minnesota district office of the small business administration, announced this week that $5,070,000 in SBA guaranteed loans had been approved for 40 Minnesota companies in June. The projected additional employment created as a result of these loans is 757 jobs.

Direct management assistance counseling was provided to 220 Minnesota firms through the small business administration's in-house counselors or through support groups like the service corps or retired executives and the twelve colleges participating in the small business institute program.

Five loans, amounting to $775,000 were made to minority owned firms, making the minority component of the June loan portfolio 12½ per cent of the total loans and 15 per cent of the total loan dollars.

Home Security Assisted By New I.D. Cards

Homeowners who want more security for their property while they are away on vacation or at a winter home will be interested in the new home identification cards made available through "Crime Watch", a program of the Minnesota department of public safety.

Commissioner John P. Sopsic urges Minnesotans to take advantage of the free program. Sopsic said it can help prevent break-ins and assist burglary investigations at homes where owners are absent.

According to Charles Rix, program coordinator, the card resembles the Operation I.D. warning stickers and provides space for the homeowners's name, Operation I.D. number, winter or vacation phone number and the name of a local resident to call in their absence.

Homeowners can be given a card for their summer and permanent residences. Information requested is filled in and the card affixed to a spot designated by the local law enforcement agency. One suggested location is the refrigerator because it is not likely to be stolen. Information on the card can be filed with the police or sheriff.

The card, Rix said, serves as a warning to would-be-burglars that property is marked and can be identified. Should a card-equipped home be burglarized, authorities can locate the card and use the inscribed information to contact the owner.

Homeowners receiving cards are encouraged to join Operation I.D. Independent insurance agents of Minnesota have endorsed the card program and will help enforcement agencies promote the concept.

Cards can be obtained by contacting local police or sheriff's departments.

Storm Alerts Important For MN. Residents

Experience with several major storms the past month has reminded Minnesotans of the importance of keeping informed on possible severe thunderstorm and tornado activity.

Public safety commissioner John P. Sopsic urges residents to keep their level of weather awareness high by noting ominous conditions, listening to information provided by the media and taking appropriate action to protect themselves and their families.

The fact that so few deaths occurred as the result of the recent storms, Sopsic said, suggests that people are taking heed of the abundance of weather information which is provided through cooperation with the national weather service.

Sopsic also reiterated the fact that emergency services, a division of the department of public safety, stands ready to help areas affected by storms as it did following the Twin cities area tornadoes June 14.

Information concerning potential damaging weather revolves around "watches" and "Warnings" regarding severe thunderstorms and tornadoes.

The "watches" are issued for certain areas and time periods when severe weather could develop because of existing conditions. "Warnings" are issued when actual storms or tornadoes have been sighed. In the case of thunderstorms, the weather service will report that a storm is occurring in a specific area and that it is moving in a direction that will affect other areas for a certain period of time. Often tornadoes develop from these storms as was the case in South Minneapolis June 14.

Mobile Home Sales Up 46% From May '81

Sales of mobile-manufactured homes increased by over 46 per cent in May from the same month's total of a year ago, the Manufactured Housing Institute (MHI) reported today. So far this year mobile-manufactured home sales are running 13 per cent above last year's levels, according to MHI.

Manufacturers shipped 22,884 mobile-manufactured homes during May, a 46.2 per cent increase over the 15,653 homes sold in May 1980. On a cumulative basis, 101,631 homes were delivered in the first five months of 1981, a 13 per cent increase over the 89,741 homes sold during the same period last year.

MHI President Walter L. Benning said that the remarkable sales figures reflect "greatly changed consumer and government attitudes towards manufactured housing and the continuing decline of America's traditional housing delivery system.

"With today's astronomical home and financing costs, barely 5 per cent of potential homebuyers can qualify for the loan to purchase a house," said Benning. "Conversely, spacious and beautiful mobile-manufactured homes with cathedral ceilings, gourmet kitchens, fireplaces, to name just a few typical amenities, are selling for prices well within the economic reaches of all American families."

Benning noted that at the current sales pace he predicts the industry could ship as many as 275,000 mobile-manufactured homes by the end of this year.

MHI is the Washington, D.C. area national association representing manufactured home builders and their supplier companies.

'U'M Regents Approve 13% Tuition Hike

Students at the University of Minnesota will pay about 13 per cent more in tuition this coming school year, with three per cent of that amount to go specifically to library acquisitions and teaching equipment.

The tuition increase is part of a $760.7 million-budget for 1981-82 approved recently by the Board of Regents.

With the tuition increase, students in the College of liberal arts, the largest college in the University system, will pay $351 each quarter, an increase of $42 over last year's tuition. Students pay roughly one quarter of the cost of their education.

President of the University C. Peter Magrath told the board the tuition increase is comparable to increases now being considered by other big ten universities. "Tuition hikes in the big ten are so high that even with a 13 per cent increase we will not be at the head of the pack," he said.

Proposal to add another three per cent on top of the 10 per cent figure recommended by the legislature was approved on a 6-4 vote. Regents Wenda Moore and Willis Drake were not present.

Administration proposed the three per cent addition after the legislature failed to appropriate as much money for library acquisitions and teaching equipment as the University had requested. The budget for library acquisitions rose two per cent last year while the rate of inflation in book and periodical prices has risen 18 per cent in both of the last two years.

Magrath told the board that without drastic action, the quality of education provided by the university would suffer. "Libraries are the essential tools of the trade of a university," he said.

St. Paul regent Mary Schertler, who opposed the three per cent addition, said she feared the added cost, combined with state and federal losses in financial aid for students, could make a university education less accessible to many students. "We will end up being a public institution that can only be afforded by the well-to-do," she said.

Minneapolis regent David Lebedoff, however, argued that fiscal realities leave the university little choice. "Until we can get our house in order and get the funds, our only alternative (to the extra tuition increase) is to reduce quality.

"Access to mediocre education is no access," he said. "It's an open door to nowhere."

David Roe, Minneapolis, said the critical issue is the legislature's responsibility to the university. The legislature is not meeting its obligation to the university, he said.

The University gets roughly 33 per cent of its money from the state. The other two-thirds comes from federal and private sources, tuition and fees, and sales and services.

Disappearing Forests — Effect On Bird Species?

by Madeleine Jacobs
Smithsonian News Service

When zoologist Jim Lynch looks at a forest, he tries to take a bird's eye view. And like the birds, Lynch sometimes can't see the forest or the trees.

For, increasingly, there is less forest for its avian denizens — and people — to see. The continuous expanse of deciduous forest that once blanketed the entire eastern United States is today little more than an archipelago of forest fragments — tiny islands adrift in a sea of megalopolitan sprawl, industrial development and croplands.

The birds, especially the millions of colorful tropical migrants that funnel into North America every spring and summer to breed, have not been indifferent to changes in their environment. In several wooded areas and parklands studied over the past 30 years, scientists have documented a drastic decline and, in some cases, the virtual disappearance of once-plentiful warblers, vireos and other songbirds.

The situation is alarming to scientists like Dr. James F. Lynch at the Smithsonian's Chesapeake Bay Center for Environmental Studies, located near Annapolis, Md. and Lynch's scientific counterparts in Latin America, where forests are being destroyed at an exponential rate, are equally concerned.

"There is a general feeling that birds provide us with a kind of 'litmus test' of the environment," Lynch explains. "When a species disappears from an area, we may be getting a signal that the entire system is under stress."

Scientists agree that major changes in the abundance and distribution of scores of birds, including some of our most familiar species, already have occurred in eastern North American woodland areas. Some researchers attribute the extinction of the Carolina parakeet and the passenger pigeon within this century to a reduction of their forest habitat; a similar argument has been advanced to explain the demise of the ivory-billed woodpecker in the southeastern United States.

But it is not at all certain whether such changes are due solely or primarily to the breaking up of large forested areas into smaller "fragments" or whether other, subtler factors are also playing an important role.

"The gospel," Lynch says, "has been that tropical migrant birds, which reside here in the summer, cannot cope with fragmented forests. Our impression has been that these birds either avoid small isolated forests or that they tend not to reproduce successfully in such places."

Thus, the prevailing philosophy governing the establishment and management of reserves for birds and other wildlife has been "the bigger, the better."

"The trouble is," Lynch continues, "previous research has not been extensive enough to either confirm or refute this contention. Many scientists believe that we might be able to manage our forests and parklands more intelligently if we could get a better understanding of exactly why a particular species of bird will or will not inhabit an area of forest."

Now, in a newly completed study of more than 200 forest patches in Maryland, Lynch and Dr. Dennis Whigham, a Bay Center botanist, have evidence challenging the conventional wisdom that size and isolation are the most important factors influencing breeding bird populations. Their study, which was sponsored by the Maryland Power Plant Siting Program, is likely to prompt a rethinking of strategies for forest management and conservation.

"It turns out to be a very dynamic situation in which a large number of factors influence the tendency of birds to breed in a patch of forest," Lynch says. "Many species don't seem to respond to size and isolation, at least in our study area. Instead, they key into particular aspects of forest structure or the 'ecological richness' of a site."

The study is the largest of its kind so far conducted anywhere, involving forest fragments in size from seven to nearly 2,500 acres. For two summers, researchers monitored bird pupulations within these wooded areas. Twenty of the most common migratory species were studied, including a variety of familiar warblers, vireos and flycatchers, as well as the scarlet tanager, the ruby-throated hummingbird and the wood thrush. These species spend the non-breeding season, more than half the year, in Mexico and Central America or South America. Ten additional species living the entire year in Maryland or migrating only as far south as the Gulf Coast region included the blue jay, Carolina chickadee, Carolina wren, cardinal and various woodpeckers.

The researchers also measured a number of characteristics of the forest including the height and density of the forest canopy; the size, abundance and identities of trees, shrubs and herbs, and the degree of isolation — the distance separating the patch from other wooded areas.

The study yielded reams of data, which were then subjected to statistical analysis on a computer. From this emerged a series of "profiles" showing the key relationships between the abundance of each bird species and the characteristics of the forest patches.

Virtually every bird species showed a significant correlation between abundance and one or more forest characteristics. This was not surprising since from other research Lynch and Whigham knew that such factors as the size and abundance of trees, shrubs and ground cover influence various bird species. But they had expected to find that forest size and isolation would override these ecological considerations.

"In fact," Lynch says, "this proved to be the case only for a minority of species. In general, each species responded to a unique combination of forest characteristics."

The abundance of some migratory birds, such as the Kentucky warbler, showed almost no sensitivity to area and isolation, but was strongly sensitive to the density of herbaceous vegetation. On the other hand, the red-eyed vireo, the most common forest-breeding bird in the study area, and the Acadian flycatcher were far more plentiful in non-isolated woodlots with a large number of different plant species. The ovenbird was also more abundant in non-isolated woodlots, but preferred forest patches with a high density of trees.

In contrast to the migratory birds, resident species such as the Carolina wren and the Carolina chickadee actually tended to be more abundant in smaller, more isolated forest patches. "Resident birds appear able to cope better with disturbances in their habitat," Lynch says. "For these species, small woodlots may serve as 'lifeboats' in a sea of urbanization."

"The situation is much more complicated than we suspected," Lynch acknowledges. "The results of our study indicate just how far we have to go before we can claim to understand how birds actually decide to occupy certain forested areas. Birds apparently see things in a much more complete way than scientists."

Additional studies on the effects of forest fragmentation are urgently needed, he believes, because important decisions about conservation management are already being made on the basis of inadequate information.

"There is an enormous gap in our present understanding of the 'cause-and-effect' of current changes in bird abundance," he says. "We can be misled in some instances if we overemphasize the importance of forest area, isolation or any other single factor. The structure and composition of local plant communities may play an important role. If so, no simple conservation strategy is likely to be optimal for all of the bird species in a given area, since anything we do to improve the habitat for one species may be detrimental to some others."

Lynch, Whigham and other biologists point out that the basic issues of forest fragmentation are not limited to the United States. Indeed, some 75 per cent of the bird species breeding in North America migrate to the tropics, where forests are being converted to croplands and pastures at an alarming rate. In response to this potentially catastrophic process, the World Wildlife Fund and the government of Brazil have recently initiated fragmentation studies in the Amazon rain forest.

"These birds are a resource which we share with Latin America," Lynch says. "If we allow their breeding grounds to be degraded and destroyed through neglect or mismanagement, the repercussions will be felt in ecological systems throughout our hemisphere."

How To Control Flying Insects For Outdoor Fun

Just when you're ready to sit back and enjoy your yard, flying insects will no doubt be out in full force. Mosquitoes and flies can annoy you right back into the house—unless you take steps to stop them.

What follows are some simple guidelines to help you control flying insects around your yard, easily and effectively.

MOSQUITOES

Whatever insect you need to eliminate, a knowledge of its habits often provides the key to its control. The mosquito is a good example.

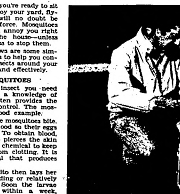
Only female mosquitoes bite. They need blood so their eggs will develop. To obtain blood, the mosquito pierces the skin and injects a chemical to keep the blood from clotting. It is this chemical that produces the itching.

The mosquito then lays her eggs on standing or relatively calm water. Soon the larvae hatch, and within a week, grow to full size. Some mosquitoes move only a few yards from their breeding place while others travel miles.

If mosquitoes are a problem in your yard, the first step toward control is to eliminate mosquito breeding places on your property. Drain all standing water in the yard. This includes any water that may collect in barrels, tin cans, play pools, or low spots in the lawn. Also, be sure to change water in bird bath regularly. This way, you'll have eliminated nearby breeding sites and the chance that mosquitoes will live and breed in your yard.

Future control is achieved by spraying the daytime resting places of adult mosquitoes such as exterior walls, tall grasses, shrubs, weeds and outside doorways. Spray should be directed at grass, shrubs, undergrowth and trees to a height of about nine feet. Mosquitoes are seldom found any higher. For best results use the right insecticide — for example; malathion or pyrethrin — coupled with the right application equipment.

The National Sprayer and Duster Association suggests that you look for a sprayer or duster that suits your particular needs. If you have a large yard and patio area, a compression sprayer from a one to four gallon capacity is probably the best choice. Electric or gas powered mist blowers provide the best coverage in wooded areas and helps get the underside or leaves where most mosquitoes rest during the day.



Measure insecticides carefully to get results and protect the environment.

Hose end sprayers can also be used for treatment of the lawn and shrubbery where mosquitoes rest during the day. Hand operated dusters are also effective for residual insect control.

HOUSEFLIES

The common housefly does not bite but it can be a nuisance and carrier of disease.

The pads on its feet secrete a sticky substance which enables it to walk on walls and ceilings. But its sticky feet also collect and spread bacteria. These can include bacteria that cause all types of disease including cholera, typhus, parasitic ailments.

Basically, control of flies is a matter of sanitation. Flies breed in garbage and debris. So garages are particularly susceptible to fly investations. Keep garbage can lids tight and debris picked up.

Adequate screening should be provided on all doors and windows. If flies become a serious problem, you may need to spray with an insecticide. A hand sprayer offers the most economical method of indoor fly control. There are two types of hand sprayers, the intermittent for space application and the continuous unit for residual spraying around screens, doors, and other entrances to the house.

OTHER FLYING PESTS

You may find small areas of your lawn infested with annoying chiggers or grasshoppers. Treat these areas with a residual spray for good control.

Remember, before using an insecticide, read and carefully follow the instructions on the label. Also be sure to follow the instructions on the applicator. Apply the spray or dust to the pest's resting places. And enjoy the outdoors!

State To Quit Statistics On County Dairy

Minnesota, a leading dairy state, will no longer have milk production and dairy herd statistics at the county level, according to the Minnesota agricultural statistics service. Last year, Minnesota's dairy herd produced over 9½ billion pounds of milk, placing the state in second place for total cheese output, third in butter and fourth in milk production.

Carroll Rock, director of the service, says that his office recently released the last county calculations to be measured by the Minnesota department of agriculture. Leading the state in milk output were Stearns, Otter Tail, Morrison, Todd, Goodhue, Winona, Fillmore, Wright, Carver and Wabasha counties. Often, however, smaller counties don't rank high in production of ag products simply because their land area is too small, and this is especially true of the state's geographically-concentrated dairy industry, according to Rock.

"Another way of looking at our data is to array the number of milk cows per square mile in each county and see what we've got. In this case, tiny Carver county comes out the winner with 65 cows per mile. This was followed by Stearns with 53; McLeod, 47; Winona, 45; Benton, 44; Goodhue, 40; Rice and Wabasha, 39; and Todd and Wright, 36."

Budget cuts by the Minnesota department of agriculture have forced the service to drop its livestock-dairy county estimates program.

"It's unfortunate," says Rock, "that the state's biggest ag enterprise in terms of cash receipts will no longer be measured at the county level. You're talking about an industry that generates about $3 billion to the Minnesota economy each year.

"This not only hurts dairy farmers but also creates an information void for businesses that supply inputs and other services to dairy farmers. Many won't run the risk of establishing or relocating new facilities in Minnesota without good data at the county level when they can get it from all the other major dairy states."

These last dairy production county estimates are available free by writing the Service at P.O. Box 70068, St. Paul, MN 55107.

Wang Receives Training From Jaycee Office

Tim Wang of the Thief River Falls Jaycees was in Tulsa, Okla. last week to participate in the United States Jaycees' national officer training college at the University of Tulsa.

Wang attended the college to learn the latest management methods and techniques to aid him in assisting in the growth and development of the 18 Jayce chapters for which he is responsible as regional director for the Minnesota Jaycees.

The 1,000 Jaycee leaders from across the nation who attended the college heard an address by Bill Potter, Jaycees International director of program development. Also addressing the group was Tom Besozzi, past president of the Ohio Jaycees, and J. Terryl Bechtol, a past national president of the U.S. Jaycees.

The United States Jaycees is a leadership training organization with approximately 300,000 members in some 7,500 local chapters in all 50 states and the District of Columbia. The organization is headquartered in Tulsa.

79% Of Tested MN. Cars Prove Gas Efficiency

Minnesota AAA reports that Minnesota motorists are driving more gasoline-efficient automobiles.

Five years ago, 55.3 per cent of all cars tested failed AAA's gas economy tests. So far in 1981, 79 per cent have passed. According to Minnesota AAA, most of the recent failures were due to clogged or maladjusted carburetors. The daily driving most people do can put a car's engine out of adjustment, which causes it to waste gas and run poorly.

Maladjustments can cause a car to wear out more quickly and may even lead to costly repairs, says Minnesota AAA. Emission checks such as the free gas economy tests can pinpoint problems before they become major.

Minnesota AAA conducts its free gas economy tests as a public service from May through September at locations throughout the state as a means of helping to solve the problems of air pollution and shrinking gasoline supplies.

Check Limits On Building Near Highways

Commissioner Richard Braun, Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT), advises that anyone planning private construction along a trunk highway should contact Mn-DOT's Bemidji district headquarters office to determine the limits of the highway right of way.

In the past, illegal fences, buildings, signs, etc. have been erected on the right of way. This causes inconvenience and added expense to the offender since illegal structures must be removed at the owner's expense, Braun said.

Illegal structures on highway right of way often cause road construction problems, particularly when federal funds are involved. Project delays and cancellations often occur because the federal highway administration requires that the right of way be clear of obstructions before authorizing highway improvements, he added.

Many cities, counties and townships have adopted zoning regulations which control land use along highways. Braun said that permits are required before entrances may be constructed to the highway. Mn-DOT determines where entrances may be constructed.

For further information, contact the right of way engineer or the surveys engineer at Washington and 4th Street South, Bemidji, MN 56601, phone 755-3809 or 755-3818.

Surgery Can Add Length To Legs

by William Hoffman
'U' M News Service

Human bone, which is mostly mineral, is tough and rigid and not very cooperative when it comes to lengthening a leg. But with current techniques, it is possible to get the job done.

Children whose legs are of uneven length — whether from birth defects or polio or fractures — are often willing to make great sacrifices for a correction rather than spend the rest of their lives wearing orthopedic aids or suffer the physical and psychological consequences of an unnatural gait and possible hip problems, among other things.

During the past decade, orthopedic specialists have made considerable progress in surgical techniques to lengthen legs. The process was first attempted 75 years ago and met with numerous complications. But with new knowledge and improved devices — and with cooperative patients — surgical leg lengthening is a more promising alternative today.

"This is a very unnatural thing to do to the body," said David Fischer, University of Minnesota clinical associate professor of orthopedic surgery who works at the Hennepin county medical center in Minneapolis. "Most fractures will not heal unless you put the broken bones in contact with each other. In leg lengthening, you are intentionally drawing bones apart."

The lengthening procedure begins with an osteotomy (the surgical division of bone) and the fixing of a rigid mechanical device to the leg by means of pins and screws. The device allows the patient to draw apart the bone a little each day by simply turning a screw.

The hope is that callus (the hard, bonelike substance normally thrown out between and around the ends of a fractured bone) will form and gradually fill in the gap. If callus formation is not satisfactory, bone is taken from the pelvis and grafted at the site and a metal plate is fitted over it, according to Fischer.

Either the femur or the tibia can be lengthened, although there are problems associated with the procedure in either case. If the femur is lengthened, the powerful quadriceps muscle at the front of the thigh tightens and may reduce knee flexion. If, the tibia is lengthened, the Achilles tendon is usually lengthened to prevent a "ballet dancer" effect, Fischer said. Her prefers to lengthen the tibia because the surrounding muscles are less bulky.

Average increase in leg length is two inches. Fischer was able to lengthen the leg of one patient four inches by lengthening both the femur and the tibia.

Success "varies from patient to patient and from bone to bone," Fischer said. Much depends on the cause of the problem. Shorter legs caused by polio or fractures are "relatively easy to stretch" compared to a congenital defect in which one leg "is designed to be shorter."

Fischer emphasizes that there are probably as many social and behavioral problems associated with the lengthening procedure. Children have hospital stays of up to three months, and are required to wear the mechanical device for some months more.

"They have to be emotionally prepared," Fischer said. "They adjust the mechanism themselves every day, and it hurts. They know best when and how much to lengthen the leg."

Fischer has been working with patients at Shriners hospital in Minneapolis, which is equipped to handle the needs of children for long periods, including their need for regular physical therapy.

"The procedure involves a lot of people to be done successfully. We feel we are better at anticipating problems today. And we are very selective in choosing which patients to treat," Fischer said.

If the patient's leg length discrepancy is less than two inches, Fischer said he is more inclined to recommend that the longer leg be shortened. Leg shortening has some advantages over lengthening. Removing a section of bone is a comparatively simple procedure. It is very accurate, does not require long hospitalization, and is usually done after the patient has finished growing.

But it has some drawbacks, Fischer said. Surgery is performed on the normal rather than the abnormal leg, and the body is thrown out of proportion if it is necessary to shorten more than couple of inches.

Leg lengthening and shortening "is a sporadic and infrequent procedure," Fischer said. "We don't sacrifice function for length. We continue the lengthening process until the proper length is achieved or until function of the leg begins to diminish significantly."

Success does not necessarily mean improved function. "We are not talking about better function, but about elimination of the need for lifts and orthopedic shoes and the social stigma that goes with wearing them," Fischer said.

"We hope that any long-term disability due to serious gait disturbances is also prevented, but it's unrealistic to expect that the child will be able to do what he or she could not do before the procedure," he said.

Although leg lengthening is "smoother" than it used to be, there is still hope for scientific breakthroughs in the area of stimulating bone growth, which would be valuable in Fischer's work.

"There has been a lot of work in search of a selective and benign method of stimulating bone growth, but there is nothing that's clinically feasible right now," he said.

THE VOICE of BUSINESS

by Richard L. Lesher, President
U.S. Chamber of Commerce

Soviet authorities have tried it all — cradle-to-grave indoctrination, the threat of long prison terms and even death — yet they still can't smother their citizens' yearnings for the challenges and rewards of private enterprise.

Konstantin Simis, a former Moscow lawyer who was forced to leave the Soviet Union in 1977, has offered dramatic proof of this in a recent article in "Fortune" magazine. Before being sent into exile, Simis acted as a defense lawyer for dozens of Soviet businessmen who were brought to trial for the "crime" of going into business for themselves. His accounts of just how much individuals are willing to risk to exercise their entrepreneurial skills helps explain why a vast underground economy is flourishing in our own country as well, and why it will take more than tougher enforcement of tax laws to get that economic activity to come to the surface.

Simis documents the existence of an extensive network of private enterprises which operates alongside the official Soviet economy, producing shoes, clothing, handbags, record albums and other consumer goods which are frowned upon by the authorities. This illegal production takes place by virtue of a conspiracy between factory managers, workers and government officials, all of whom share in the profits.

Some of these underground capitalists have actually become millionaires through such enterprises — no small feat in a society in which the government controls the means of production and owns all property. One family business grew so large that a special marketing group was established to open outlets for its product in no fewer than 64 Soviet towns and regions. The product? Shopping bags!

Why do they do it? Why do these underground entrepreneurs literally risk their lives to earn fortunes which, for the most part, they are unable to spend? Simis posed this question to a 70-year-old businessman who was caught operating two subterranean hoisery and underwear factories. "Why didn't you retire 10 years ago? Why did you continue to take risks?" he asked.

"And this man, threatened by years in prison — even by death — looked at me with surprise, even with reproach: 'Don't you understand? Do you really think I need the money? I need my life! And my life is my business!' "

What does Simis' account tell us about our own underground economy? Surely there can be no comparison between our own situation and that of the Soviet Union, where the government claims total ownership of both the means and fruits of productive activity.

Or can there be? When a government reaches the point, as ours has, at which even a relatively moderate income earner may find himself in a 50 per cent marginal tax bracket, who owns that individual's labor: the worker or the government?

This crippling tax burden, combined with other hidden taxes such as regulatory requirements, have forced millions of American workers and businesses to find ways to earn additional income "off the books" to avoid paying additional taxes. Some economists estimate that this subterranean economy could be as large as 27 per cent of the gross national product, approximately $700 billion — and that it is growing three times as fast as our regular economy.

Naturally, these reports do not make the IRS very happy, and the customary response is to call for stricter enforcement. But as the Russians have discovered, even the death penalty can't stifle the creativity of citizens when it comes to finding ways to avoid a government which unduly penalizes their productive pursuits.

Less freedom and greater policing of economic activity are not the answers; they are the problems. Only by reducing tax rates to the point where it is no longer profitable to avoid taxes can the government discourage underground economic activity and recover lost tax revenues.

But more than revenues for government coffers is at stake. Our nation was founded on the idea that hard work, creativity, and individual initiative should be rewarded and encouraged — not penalized or driven underground. The Soviets have turned their entrepreneurs into criminals. Should we be following the same disastrous course? By enacting sweeping tax reforms such as President Reagan has proposed, we can reaffirm our long-standing belief that work, saving and risk-taking for the promise of a better life are noble endeavors which, in a free society, improve the lives of all citizens.

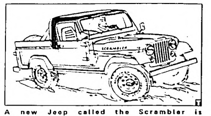
Unscramble "Scrambler"



A new Jeep called the Scrambler is the inspiration for a new contest.

Let your mind ramble on a bit on the many words scrambled up in the word "scrambler." The people at the American Motors Corporation, who make the new Jeep Scrambler are sponsoring a contest they hope will be as much fun as they believe their new Jeep to be. The person who's able to come up with the most words made up of the letters S-C-R-A-M-B-L-E-R may bear off a new Webster's Dictionary. Only English language words appearing in Webster's Dictionary count. Words must be four or more letters and plural words, five or more letters in length, don't count. Proper nouns and slang words don't count, either.

All entries should be printed or typed and must be post-marked by September 15, 1981. They should be sent to American Motors Corporation, Scrambler Contest, Room 2294, 27777 Franklin Road, Southfield, Michigan 48034. Enclose a self-addressed, stamped, number ten envelope if you would like to receive a complete list of the Scrambler words after the contest is ended.

Senior Citizens News

We were busy fluffing up the filling and sewing up ends on five pair of bed pillows when we met at the hangout for our July 16 meeting. There were 15 present and we all signed and sent off a get well card to Sophie Borowicz, who is at present in the Karlstad hospital.

Mildred and Polly priced and hung up some good rummage Anna Brekke gave the center. We thank you, Anna, and thank you Annie Smeby for the rummage you brought.

There were five door prizes given away. Ruth Harper received the one Laverne Swan donated, Anna Holmstrom received the one Elsie gave, Gust received Amanda's, Anna Brekke received Ruth Harper's and Clara Nelson received Anna Holmstrom's.

We prayed the table grace before eating. Anna Holmstrom was hostess.

Saturday, July 18, we opened our center at one o'clock during the city's appreciation day. We had over 60 register in our record book. Thank you all for visiting our center and patronizing us with your sales. We will be meeting as usual Thursday, July 23.

Saturday, July 18 winners were: Mrs. Leo Renstrom and Vance Lefrooth who each received $5 certificates; Alvin Holmstrom was called for the $25 certificate, but was not present, so next Saturday two $5's and a $30 certificate will be given away. Strandquist appreciation day winners at the business places were: Larson's Hartz store — children's prize of a pail of ice cream went to Paul Berggren, adult prize of a Lincoln car radio went to Marlin Nelson; Don Larson Construction — children 1-10, Laura Rud, youth 11-16 radio went to Dean Nelson, and adult's to Vance Lefrooth; Lumberjack cafe — adult prize went to Eugene Chwialkowski and Delores Donaldson with the children's going to Audrey Rud; Hougard Oil — children's went to Lorine Berggren, men's to Elmer Henrickson and women's to Esther Storeby.

The C&C served a delicious supper to about 280 people at the school dining area. During the day there were races for the youth. A community auction sale from 11-4 kept many interested and many visited the senior citizens center, also.

100 Champs Included In Smithsonian Exhibit

by Linda St. Thomas
Smithsonian News Service

"Ali could have taken Marciano out in three." "Jim Brown was a better halfback than O.J. Simpson." "Sandy Koufax was the greatest pitcher of all time."

At one time or another, these statements could have caused heated arguments in most any arena, stadium or ballpark in the country — and they probably still do. As sportswriters know, you're skating on thin ice when you make definitive statements about who's the best anything in sports. And, as we all know, there are sports fans aplenty with stronger feelings about pitchers or quarterbacks than about presidential candidates.

Debate over the "greatest" recently spilled into a museum — the Smithsonian's National Portrait Gallery in Washington, D.C., where staffers have selected 100 champions in American sports for a special new exhibition.

It was, unsurprisingly, quite a struggle for historian Marc Pachter and curators Kenneth Yellis and Beverly Cox to winnow the many worthy candidates down to a magic one hundred. Indeed, the project took nearly two years.

Their final roster of champions includes such all-time greates as Babe Ruth, Muhammad Ali, Jim Thorpe, Willie Shoemaker, Arnold Palmer and Billie Jean King. But if there's little disagreement here, in all likelihood there will be much more over others on the gallery's list.

"It didn't take us long to realize that there's no ultimate list of the 100 greatest sports heroes. It's all so subjective," Pachter says. "Once we accepted that simple fact, we felt liberated. Our choices probably will make some people angry because their favorite boxer or halfback or jockey was omitted. The problem isn't so much who we included but who we excluded from the exhibit."

So how did they pick these 100 men and women? The athletes had to be outstanding in their chosen sport, of course, but they also had to be charismatic figures, Pachter explains. "For this exhibit, we weren't so much interested in technical expertise. The pitcher's pitcher is not necessarily the one we wanted," he said. They were looking for a "champion" — one whose presence in the game would guarantee a crowd, who caught the eye of the editors and sportswriters of the day, who might have been the subject of a song or a film. In other words, he or she had a speecial relationship — good or bad — with the fans.

It's no coincidence that there is a disproportionate number of boxing heavyweights, baseball sluggers and football offensive players in this exhibit. These are the very positions that tend to attract such charismatic personalities.

While many athletes, such as Lou Gehrig, were universally adored by the crowds, others are sometimes remembered for the controversy they engendered: Ty Cobb, the first player elected to baseball's hall of fame, whose ruthlessness alienated him from his teammates and the fans; Ted Williams, the slugger who became as famous for his refusal even to acknowledge a crowd's standing ovation as for his six major league batting titles, and Muhammad Ali, whose conversion to the Black Muslim faith, claims to invincibility ("They all must fall-In the round I call") and opposition to the draft during the Vietnam war antagonized some boxing fans of the early 1960s.

Many of these athletes in the exhibition of photographs, paintings and sculptures were known to average Americans, even those who didn't read the sports pages everyday. All of them were celebrities in their time, and in most cases, they were known to succeeding generations. Today, for example, most Americans recognize the name of John L. ("The Great John L.") Sullivan, although he was a boxing champ more than 85 years ago.

It must also be said of these 100 persons that they were all winners. "Although we may talk about competition being unhealthy, when you get right down to it, Americans love a winner," Pachter says. "However charismatic these athletes may be, they would not be champions if they had been losers. What sportswriter Heywood Broun said about Babe Ruth could apply to many of these athletes: 'The joy of watching Ruth lies in the fact that he is so palpably intent upon victory. There is never a moment when he is not trying . . .'"

For Pachter, Cox and Yellis, one of the agonies of working on this exhibition was leaving out so many champions. "We understood all too well how many great sports figures the nation has produced and regret how few we have the space to include in our sampling. Where, for example, is slugger Stan Musial or golfer Sam Snead or tennis pros Chris Evert and Jimmy Conners or football players Sam Huff and Tom Harmon?"

In the process of choosing the "greatest" athletes, managers or commissioners, Pachter, Yellis and Cox combed through histories of sports and collections of sportswriters' columns and read the sports pages of old newspapers. Yellis trotted off to a variety of halls of fame — boxing, baseball, basketball, tennis, auto racing, skating, rodeo and college football — to do his research.

"In the beginning, we divided the work among the three of us, each taking about six sports to study," Cox recalls. "We finally came up with a list of about 160 champions and then we had our big meeting. It went on for days, with each of us trying to sell the others on the athletes he or she thought should be included in the show."

One criterion for the finalists: the athlete's name had to be recognized by all three curators. But the most important considerations, of course, were the person's athletic ability, charisma and impact on the sport.

As specialists at the National Portrait Gallery, the exhibit's organizers also were concerned about representing those sports which have been deeply entwined in American culture from the mid-19th century through the present. So "Champions of American Sport," which is supported by grants from Philip Morris Inc. and the Miller Brewing Co., includes sports figures from the 1850s through the first world war, from the Golden Age of Sports (1920-1930) and from modern times (1930-present). It represents a total of 16 sports: baseball, football, boxing, yachting, biking, horse racing, polo, auto racing, golf, tennis, swimming, skating, track, rodeo, basketball and hockey.

Baseball, which alone has given Americans hundreds of nationally recognized personalities, presented a special crisis for the curators because it was so difficult to decide whom to omit. In the exhibit, baseball has the most space — 17 champions: 14 players, a commissioner (Kenesaw Mountain Landis), an umpire (Bill Klem) and a manager (Casey Stengel). Other sports have come to the attention of most Americans only through the prowess of a famous character such as polo's Tommy Hitchcock or yacht skipper Bus Mosbacher, who has twice defended the America's Cup.

The biographical sketches of the 100 champions provide insight into the reasons they were chosen. These sketches, written by Pachter and other historians, appear in the catalog accompanying the show.

Of Babe Ruth: "Babe Ruth was the ultimate hero of a sport with more than its fair share of heroes — a giant of monumental swagger and breathtaking talent who set the standard by which all others would be judged."

Of Muhammad Ali: ". . . Ali was back on top, the first fighter in history to win the heavyweight title three times. It was a cause for celebration among all but the most diehard of his critics. Muhammad Ali was 'The' Champion, the most recognized and admired athlete on earth. Even his defeated opponent joined in the cheers. 'He was always my idol,' (boxer) Leon Spinks announced. 'He still is.'"

Of Vince Lombardi: "'I will demand a commitment to excellence and to victory, and that is what life is all about.' Thus spoke Vince Lombardi, who brought to football a religious fervor. More than any other single individual, coach Lombardi symbolized the 1960's obsession with professional football."

Of Lou Gehrig: "Lou Gehrig proved that nice guys do not always finish last. They can finish a glorious second. Paired, and compared, with the greatest baseball player in history, Babe Ruth, Gehrig experienced the mixed fate of fame by association with a legendary figure. He and Ruth formed the heart of the Yankee's unbeatable 'Murderer's Row' of power hitters — back to back in the batting order from 1925 to 1934, Ruth third and Gehrig fourth."

Of Wilt Chamberlain: "Wilt Chamberlain — the 'Big Dipper' — made perhaps greater impact on basketball than any other player. During a 14 year career . . . Chamberlain scored a phenomenal 30,000-plus points and pulled down 24,000 rebounds. When it comes right down to it, scoring is what basketball is all about—and 'Wilt the Stilt' (a nickname he detests) was unparalleled at putting the ball through the hoop."

These are the 100 sports figures selected by National Portrait Gallery curators for the "Champions of American Sport" exhibition.

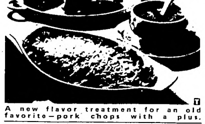
COOKING CORNER

NEW SPIRIT IN 'SOUL FOOD'



A new flavor treatment for an old favorite—pork chops with a plus.

Those heart-warming, satisfying dishes known as "Soul Food" — delicious, dietary staples in many American homes, aren't immune from a new touch now and again.

For instance, take pork chops, basic, versatile (and sometimes, even economical). They can take on a festive look and taste when served as Pork Chops Modesto.

The recipe teams the tang of onions, the sweetness of peaches and the rich flavor of Hennessey's V.S. Cognac.

Here's how to make them:

6 lean pork chops (about 1-3/4 pounds)
Salt and ground black pepper
1 cup sliced green onions, including tops
1 can (10-3/4 ounces) condensed cream of chicken soup
3/4 cup chicken broth
1/2 cup Hennessey's V.S. Cognac
1 can (16 ounces) sliced peaches in heavy syrup (drain, reserve syrup)
1 1/2 teaspoons prepared mustard
3 cups hot cooked rice

Season chops with salt and pepper. Brown in lightly greased skillet. Add white part of onions and cook until onions are tender. Stir in soup, broth, Hennessey's V.S. Cognac, reserved syrup and mustard.

Bring to a boil, cover, reduce heat and simmer for 45 minutes or until chops are tender. Arrange peach slices over chops and sprinkle with onion tops. Recover and return to heat until peaches are hot. Serve over rice. Makes six servings.

Basketball Post Remains Open

No news has been reported in the naming of new basketball coaches at Lincoln high school to succeed head coach Glen Peters and assistant coach Vern Treat.

Both Peters and Treat resigned from their positions following the 1980-81 basketball season in which the Prowlers struggled through a 4-15 record.

Trojans Seeking Two Coaches

University of Minnesota-Crookston (UMC), after earlier losing hockey coach Tom Kelly, is now looking for a new basketball coach, too, following the resignation of Jim Sutherland.

Sutherland, who coached the Trojans the past five years, has been named the head basketball coach at Black Hills State in Spearfish, S.D.

TRF Team Wins Detroit Lakes Title

North Star Transport of Thief River Falls won five straight games Sunday for championship honors in the 24th annual Lakes invitational fast pitch softball tournament at Detroit Lakes.

Managed by Maynard Moen, North Star Transport beat Northern Aire Lanes of Fergus Falls 11-0 in first round play, got by Moorhead Schmidt Beer 7-5, edged Dan's Oil of Horace, N.D. 4-2 and pulled off a pair of come-from-behind wins in beating Molstad's Excavating of Grand Forks 6-5 in the semifinals and knocking off Lepird Dry Wall of West Fargo 4-2 in a 10-inning championship game.

North Star Transport trailed Molstad's Excavating 5-1 going into the bottom of the seventh inning in the semifinals before scoring five runs for the 6-5 victory. Howard Dalager and Mike Kvarnlov started the last-inning rally with singles, followed by back-to-back doubles by Darrell Stromlund and Bruce Johnson to tie it. A single by Bruce (Benny) Johnson drove in the winning run.

Another late-game rally saved the championship game as North Star Transport scored once in the top of the seventh inning to gain a 2-2 tie, then pushed two runs across the plate in the tenth to win it 4-2. Benny Johnson singled to open the seventh, moved up on a sacrifice by Larry Coltom and scored the tying run on an RBI single by Howard Dalager. In the tenth, Stromlund and Roger Cota had back-to-back singles, Ron Ostby came up with an RBI single and Bruce Johnson netted a run with a sacrifice bunt.

Al Erickson, the winning pitcher in the championship game, ran his season record to 20-2. It was the first tournament triumph of the year for North Star Transport, bringing the team's overall record to 35-5. North Star Transport is the co-leader in the Thief River Falls fast pitch softball league with a 10-3 record.

Miscellaneous

+ Crookston placed third in a weekend American Legion baseball tournament at Farmington, beating Apple Valley 1-0 in the first round, losing to St. Louis Park 11-0 in the semifinals to snap a 13-game winning streak and beating host Farmington 4-3 in the third place game. Defending Ninth District American Legion champion Detroit Lakes lost all five starts in the prestigious Gopher Classic tournament in the Twin Cities over the weekend, falling to Richfield 5-2, Grand Rapids 7-5, Rapid City 16-2, Austin 11-3 and Mound 6-1. "Almost without exception, our losses were the result of us coming apart in one inning and we would play six strong innings in every game," reported Detroit Lakes coach Ric Otto.

TAGGING UP AND advancing from first to second on a fly ball by teammate Don Grabowska, TRF Merchants base runner Van Swanson managed to slide under the tag of Swenson Plumbing second baseman Gary Laidley in the fourth inning of Monday's Thief River Falls men's slow pitch softball association game matching Division I leaders. Umpire Bruce Saustad was right on top of the play to make the call. TRF Merchants won the first half of the doubleheader 10-3, with Swenson Plumbing winning the nightcap 7-1 to maintain its first place status in the highly competitive five-team division.

Crookston Stops TRF 3-1 For Title

Crookston wrapped up the 1981 Northwest American Legion baseball league title Tuesday with a 3-1 victory over Thief River Falls.

Coach Jim Simon's Crookston team, 24-4-1 overall, will try to complete an unbeaten Northwest League season Friday at home against East Grand Forks. The game will be academic; however, since East Grand Forks, scheduled to host Thief River Falls tonight (Wednesday) at 7 p.m., is already saddled with a pair of league losses — having dropped a pair of one-run decisions to Crookston and Thief River Falls earlier this summer.

Outcome of last night's pitcher's duel between Thief River Falls' Kevin Sanders (who gave up just two base hits) and Crookston's Brian Bachmeier (who scattered four hits) also cemented the post-season Northwest League Sub District tournament pairings.

The playoffs, which will qualify the two finalists for the 1981 Ninth District American Legion tournament, will begin Tuesday when Newfolden and Warroad face each other in an elimination game.

Semifinals and finals will be played Friday and Saturday, July 31 and August 1, in Thief River Falls. In the semifinals, it'll be No. 1 seeded Crookston against the Newfolden-Warroad winner while East Grand Forks and Thief River Falls tangle in the other game.

Thief River Falls, 15-9-1 for the year and 5-2 in the Northwest League, will follow tonight's trip to East Grand Forks with doubleheaders on the road Friday and Saturday. The team faces defending Ninth District American Legion champion Detroit Lakes in a 6:30 p.m. twinbill Friday. Saturday Thief River Falls will be in Frazee, playing Frazee at 4 p.m. and meeting Fergus Falls at 6.

The Thief River Falls-Crookston game was a good one. Crookston scored in the first inning when lead-off batter Mark Melby got on base when Thief River Falls third baseman Jim Hallamek mishandled his bouncer. A sacrifice bunt by Kent Perreault moved the runner into scoring position. Bachmeier walked and Brent Weiss struck out before Tony Sprague came up with a two-out RBI single.

Thief River Falls tied it in the top of the fourth when Hallamek collected a lead-off single, moved up on an error and a sacrifice by Scott McKeever and scored on a base hit by Sanders.

But that was all the scoring for Thief River Falls, and Crookston regained the lead with two runs in the bottom of the fourth when Todd Ellingson and Jim Miller, the No. 7 and 8 hitters, were both given full-count walks. Dennis Ogaard moved them along with a sacrifice that was followed by a two-out intentional walk issued to Melby. Perreault crossed up the Thief River Falls strategy when he dropped a bloop single just inside the right field line to score two runs and win the game.

Gordie Peterson Leads Hitting Charts . . .

Action Realty Takes Over Fast Pitch League Lead

Action Realty moved into first place by a half game over idle North Star Transport with an 8-3 win over TG Sporting Goods Monday in the week's only Thief River Falls fast pitch softball league game.

The winners took an early first inning lead when Nick Drees reached base on an error and scored on a throwing error on Bob Lundbohm's grounder, with Lundbohm taking second on the play. He went to third on a wild pitch and scored on Gordie Peterson's single to left. Peterson then stole second, advanced to third on yet another wild pitch and scored on Tim Engelstad's bunt single for a 3-0 lead.

Action Realty sandwiched a Tom Goddard double around singles by Peterson and Tim Engelstad, plus Del Beito's sacrifice fly for two more runs in the bottom of the third.

Lundbohm's RBI single in the fourth upped the margin to 6-0 and Wayne Smith powered a two-run homer over the centerfield fence in the fifth for an 8-0 bulge.

TG Sporting Goods finally broke through for three runs in the top of the sixth as Brad Kosel doubled to left field and scored on Gary Laidley's single to center. Terry Sullivan drew a walk and both runners eventually scored on wild pitches.

Peterson's 3-for-4 showing pushed his league-leading batting average to .514, giving him a 45-point lead over his nearest competition.

Twenty-one of the 90 players in the league — roughly a quarter of the people involved — are currently over the magic .300 mark. "When the first stats were released, everybody's average took a dip; this happens every year," reported league spokesman Dick Bjerken. "But after the initial thrill, Peterson, Darrell Stromlund and Rick Kofstad have started to raise their average again. How the others take the pressure should be interesting."

Karl Chromy of Melvies has been the league's hottest hitter of late. From a dismal .233 on July 9, Chromy has been on a tear that raised his average of .357. "But with 42 at-bats, it will take a lot of hits to raise it enough to compete with one of the lofty averages ahead of him," noted Bjerken, who supplies all of the fast pitch league information to the media.

Rest of the week's schedule has been suspended during the Pennington county fair, which keeps the league from playing on its fairgrounds diamond.

Tournament Play Continues For TRF Teams

Brooklyn Center will be Thief River Falls' first round opponent Friday at 6 p.m. in the 1981 Babe Ruth state baseball tournament for 13-year-olds at Minnetonka.

Thief River Falls, coached by Scott Bergland (not Scott Blankenfeld as erroneously reported in Monday's Times), earned a state tournament berth with a championship performance in the Lake Agassiz District tournament completed here Sunday.

A victory over Brooklyn Center in the opening round of the 12-team, double-elimination state tournament would find Thief River Falls playing again Saturday at 6 p.m. The first round loser will have to wait until Sunday at 1 p.m. to take the field again.

Thief River Falls will take a 20-3 season record into state tournament play.

Meanwhile, the Thief River Falls Elks and Independents are both vying for a state tournament berth in the 14-15-year-old Babe Ruth program. They're joined by Roseau and Sprague in the Lake Agassiz District tournament that was scheduled to start today (Wednesday) at Roseau.

First round pairings today had North Half champion Roseau playing the South Half runner-up Elks at 10 a.m. while the South Half champion Independents faced North Half runner-up Sprague at 12:30 p.m.

Additional games today in the double-elimination event includes a loser's bracket elimination game at 3:30 p.m. and a winner's bracket semifinal game at 6. Final loser's bracket game will be played Thursday at 1 p.m., with the championship game scheduled to be played Thursday at 6. A second title game, if needed, would be played Friday at 6 p.m.

The champion will advance to state tournament play at Chaska. The Bruce Williams-coached Elks carry a 22-5 season record while the Charlie Cornell-coached Independents sport a 19-7 mark. The Independents beat the Elks Twice last week (5-2 and 4-3 in eight innings) to win the South Half Sub District Lake Agassiz tournament.

SWENSON PLUMBING CATCHER Gordy Markstrom tagged TRF Merchants base runner Rick Easthouse as he ran by, trying to score from second base on a single by teammate Bill Dicken in the first inning of Monday's Division I game in the Thief River Falls men's slow pitch softball association. A perfect throw to the plate by centerfielder Mark Thorstad nailed Easthouse by several steps. The two teams split a doubleheader, with TRF Merchants winning the first game 10-3 and Swenson Plumbing taking the second game 7-1.

TRF Shooters Top Crookston In Club Match

Thief River Falls shooters avenged an earlier loss to Crookston with an easy 813-782 win Wednesday at the Marshallton Gun Club in the second half of the twice-a-year trap club series between the two communities.

Four Thief River Falls shooters recorded straights in the 50-bird event, including Loyd Melby, Fran Johnson, Howard Thorson and Mark Mattson.

Twenty-three Crookston shooters made the trip to the site of the weekly Thief River Falls league competition. Thirty-six Thief River Falls shooters were on hand. Top 75 per cent of the Crookston scores were used to determine the team score — 17 shooters, with an equal number of Thief River Falls scores used to determine the match winner.

In addition to the 50-straights, Thief River Falls counting scores included Peter Tri 49, Stan Sjoberg 49, Mert Wilson 48, Tom Henderson 48, Al Boughton 47, Pam Johnson 47, Loren Abrahamson 47, Jerry Myers 47, Pat Fischer 47, Orren Bendickson 45, Sandy Wilson 46, Allen Steinhauer 46 and Don Kaspari 46.

DNR Explains Laws Covering Lake Property

Department of Natural Resources reported that some persons have mistaken ideas about the ownership of lakeshore property in Minnesota and the public's right to use such land.

DNR division of waters has received numerous calls this summer from people who are under the illusion that the state owns a strip or corridor of land around all lakes and streams.

Some callers say they think the width of this imaginary corridor is five feet. Others say they understand it is 10 or 20 feet.

Either way, they are wrong, said officials.

The state doesn not own any such strip of land around lakes and streams. The only land the state owns is land it has acquired or land that was never sold from the time the state entered the Union.

While it is true that some lakeshore is owned by the state, federal government, counties, municipalities or other levels of government, most of the lakeshore in Minnesota is in private hands.

Women's Slow Pitch Softball

Dwight's Hartz, figured to challenge the St. Hilaire Saints for the Division I lead in the Thief River Falls women's slow pitch softball league, fell two games behind the division leaders Monday after absorbing an 8-0 shutout loss at the hands of Roseau Transport.

St. Hilaire Saints were winners, beating Schmidt Stealers 7-3 as Marlys Huot homered.

Top two teams in Division II were both winners as division-leading Pizza Hut handled Walseth Construction 14-2 behind a Julie Odegaard home run and the second place Mush-a-rettes defeated Hydra-Mac 11-8.

The four divisional front-runners, scheduled to square off tonight (Wednesday), will have to wait until Tuesday because the Pennington county fair will force them off their fairgrounds diamonds.

Peggy Bergsnev, Bea Larson and Betty Graff all homered as the Health Hustlers drilled Brodin 34-4.

Vicki Hoverson and Rhonda Beito tripled to lead the Ridge Runners past Ekeren Drug and Georgine Troska tripled as Northern Employers Agency ran over American Legion 15-1.

Sylvia Sjoberg Is Golf Meet Winner

Sylvia Sjoberg finished with a two-stroke victory over runner-up Marge Corliss Tuesday to win the annual women's invitational golf tournament at the Thief River Country Club.

One-hundred entries were received for the tournament, up considerably from the 40 entered a year ago.

Sjoberg, who earned medalist honors with her first-round 40, added a 42 the second time around the course for an 18-hole 82 finish. Corliss went 42-42 for an 84 and third place Sylvia Olson shot 44-42 for an 86. All three are Thief River Falls golfers.

Flight winners included: 1. Kathy Walker, TRF; 2. Kathy Clark, Mahnomen; Lee Gregg, Crookston; 4. Deb Schantzen, East Grand Forks; 5. (tie) Nina Bakke, Red Lake Falls and Marvel Van Rooy, TRF; 6. Wildlife Group Is Watching Climate

Unless the world's population cuts down on its burning of coal, oil and gas, the earth's climate may warm up enough to cause drastic changes across the globe, according to the current issue of International Wildlife magazine.

While scientists are not exactly sure what the effects of the warming trend will be, the impacts are potentially so sweeping that Gus Speth, former head of the council on environmental quality, terms the problem as the "ultimate environmental dilemna."

"By the middle of the next century," the National Wildlife Federation's bimonthly publication reports, "our planet could be warmer than at any time during the last 100,000 years. If that happened, entire growing zones, deserts, grasslands and forests could all shift. Melting ice in the polar regions could raise sea levels 15 feet."

What's causing this alarming rise in temperature? The culprit is an oderless, colorless gas called carbon dioxide. A vital ingredient in photosynthesis, it makes up less than .04 per cent of the atmosphere. But since the start of the Industrial Revolution in the late 1700's, the amount of carbon dioxide in the air has increased by 15 to 25 per cent.

Carbon dioxide is formed when fossil fuels are burned and stored-up carbon combines with oxygen in the air. Around half the carbon dioxide generated each day is absorbed by the oceans or perhaps by green living matter. The other half accumulates in the lower atmosphere.

Explains International Wildlife: "This virtually transparent layer of gas has little effect on the sunlight which passes through it to warm the earth. But infrared heat radiated back into the atmosphere from the planet's surface has a longer wavelength. Some of it is trapped by the carbon dioxide in a process that has been called a 'greenhouse effect.' "

So far, the build-up of carbon dioxide in the atmosphere hasn't had much effect on the climate. William Kellogg, a senior climatologist at the U.S. national center for atmospheric research told International Wildlife, "the increase theoretically has been something on the order of one degree Fahrenheit. When it gets near two degrees, then it'll dominate over the natural process."

That's what scientists fear. If we continue to consume fossil fuels at the present rate, the carbon dioxide build-up could cause an average temperature increase from three to as many as eight degrees Fahrenheit. What would that mean? Researchers have made a number of predictions — some good, some bad:

+ Increased precipitation and evaporation might result. Decreased rainfall might occur over northern China, the USSR and the U.S. Midwest, with increases in Europe and Africa.

+ As climate zones change, so would food-growing patterns. Northern Hemisphere farming areas might extend north, with losses for some crops such as corn and wheat, and gains for others, such as rice.

+ Insect pests, which already destroy more than 35 per cent of the world's crops, would likely multiply in a warmer global climate. Crop diseases could also become more of a threat.

+ While most wildlife would migrate with the climate, some species that live in specialized habitats might become extinct.

+Changes in ocean circulation and temperatures could hurt fisheries by disrupting the "upwelling" process which brings nutrients up from the depths.

+ West Antarctic ice sheet would eventually melt. As a result, coastal areas throughout the world would be inundated. One study estimates that 11 million Americans would be uprooted, including more than 40 per cent of Florida's population.

While these predictions are hypothetical, many scientists warn that we should plan now. "One route would be to slow down the accumulation of carbon dioxide in the atmosphere," suggests International Wildlife, "by reducing the consumption of fossil fuels — through energy conservation, greater energy efficiency, and a shift to nonfossil energy sources. Such policies, however, would have to be global."

According to Lester Machta, a climatologist with the national oceanic and atmospheric administration, we have another 10 to 15 years before we must start planning. "The uncertainties are too large to say that some kind of positive actions have to be taken right now," he told International Wildlife.

But other scientists feel those uncertainties should force us to move right away.

Back Surgery Study Results Are Reviewed

Area doctors and hospitals are appropriately caring for patients who have back surgery for what is often erroneously called "slipped disk," according to a study by the Foundation for Health Care Evaluation.

The analysis of 194 patient records confirmed that an operation was appropriate in 98 per cent of the cases. The patients underwent the type of surgery properly called lumbar laminectomy.

Several Twin Cities area hospitals took part in the 1980 study. The study followed an earlier one which reviewed 557 records of patients who had lumbar laminectomies. At that time, nearly four years ago, approximately 90 per cent of the patients in the study had evidence in the medical record that they needed the operation, or had a myelogram which verified a herniated disk. There were no deaths reported in either sample and less than five per cent of the patients received blood transfusions.

Lumbar laminectomies are done to correct a herniated lumbar disk, often called "pinched nerve" or "herniated disk." The so-called slipped disk actually is a protrusion from the disk caused by wear or injury; or part of the disk may break off and cause a protrusion. In either case, the protrusion causes the lumbar nerve to be pinched and the pinched nerve causes pain in the leg.

One must almost always have leg pain to be considered for this type of surgery, according to Walter L. Bailey, M.D., a St. Paul neurosurgeon who headed the study. Lumbar laminectomy is done to remove the part of the disk that is pressing on the nerve. This relieves the pressure and alleviates the pain.

The study was prompted by the frequency of back problems, the public's concern about inappropriate surgery and the Foundation's concern with the proper care of patients having back surgery, Bailey said. Others on his study committee included four area physicians who are experts on the topic, an orthopedic nurse and a consumer representative.

Although the first study reported satisfactory standards of care, further improvement was shown in the restudy. Hospitals were given the results of the first study and asked to work with their medical staffs to improve practices. The study committee concluded, that, the education of physicians and hospitals which took place between the two studies was effective.

In the original study, five physicians were cited for practice patterns that were not common among other doctors in this area. The followup study showed that these five physicians were no longer performing this type of surgery at their respective hospitals. The study could not determine for sure whether this was a result of the evaluation, retirement or relocation.

Names of hospitals and doctors being audited are not revealed to the study team. The Foundation conducting the study is a non-profit organization of physicians. It reviews the quality of health care at a reasonable cost under a program required by federal law as well as providing review in the private sector. Purpose of the program is to encourage physicians to monitor their own profession.

Besides bringing study results to the attention of area hospitals and doctors, the committee in charge of the lumbar laminectomy study also offered a number of pointers for consumer education.

Bailey said the primary indication for surgery on the lumbar disk is severe leg pain. "It is very uncommon to need surgery within three or four weeks after the onset of pain," he said. The body repairs most injuries by itself in time.

Many people may experience back pain but very few suffer because of a herniated disk, Bailey said. "Most back pain comes from acute muscle strain or torn or strained ligaments. These can be very painful and cause pain to radiate down the leg, too. Normally, these patients also will recover in two or three weeks. They also should get plenty of rest," he said.

Bailey said that in many circumstances the first thing a patient should do is stay home and rest for a few days. If that does not help, the patient should see a family physician. "Almost all family physicians are very comfortable treating the early stages of back disease and are becoming increasingly sophisticated at treating the patient with a herniated disk in its early stages," he said. "The family physician may refer the patient to a neurosurgeon or an orthopedic surgeon, the only specialists who do operate on the spine."

He emphasized that plain x-rays of the back are "of almost no use in demonstrating a pinched nerve or herniated disk," he said, "the preferred method for verifying a herniated disk before surgery consists of dye being placed in the spinal canal in a special diagnostic x-ray called a myelogram. The other altnerative now is the computerized tomography scan (CT scan) which has been available the past few years."

Disk herniation and pinched nerves resulting from this herniation can occur in either the neck or the lower back, Bailey said. However, the low back or lumbar area, is more prone to injury. It is sometimes difficult to determine who needs surgery and who needs bed rest and nonoperative care, he said.

"Although conservative or nonoperative treatment will often work, the committee emphasizes that there are some people whose pain cannot be relieved through methods other than surgery. This is why, if symptoms persist over a period of time, it is very important to see a physician," he continued.

Is your knowledge of our economy sound as a dollar? This quiz can help you tell.

1. The present administration's budget policies are expected to produce a balanced budget by fiscal year (a) 1981 (b) 1982 (c) 1984?

3. The Reagan administration has proposed to cut from Social Security (a) nothing (b) $200 million (c) it has proposed to add to this program?

2. Under the new proposed Food Stamp Program, eligibility for a family of four would be limited to those earning less than (a) $11,000 (b) $14,000 (c) $20,000?

4. Reduction in school lunch subsidies are most likely to adversely affect (a) working people (b) the very rich (c) the very poor?

ANSWERS: 1. (c) Reagan's policies will not produce a balanced budget until fiscal year 1984. 2. (a) This, say the experts at the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, would have serious effects on working people. People who are concerned about that are writing to their members of Congress, House of Representatives, Washington, D.C., 20515. 3. (b) Supposedly a protected "safety net" program, Reagan wants to cut $200 million from this program of income security for the aged, blind and disabled. 4. (a) As with changes in the food stamp program, reductions in school lunch subsidies would adversely affect working people who earn between $11,000 and $15,000 per year.

County Board Proceedings

July 22, 1981
Official Proceedings
Board of County Commissioners
Pennington County, Minnesota
June 30, 1981

Moved by Stenberg that the County appropriate and pay to the Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce ($800.00 to assist in financing brochures designed to promote Pennington County, Thief River Falls and the area. Upon call for a second to the motion, none was heard and the motion died for lack of a second.

Moved by Stenberg seconded by Tasa that the sum of $500.00 be appropriated and paid to the Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce to assist in financing brochures for the economic development of the City and County, as well as Northern Minnesota. Motion declared carried with Commissioner Koop voting against the motion.

The Board then studied the Census figures as received from the Federal Census in regard to the possible need for redistricting the County Commissioners Districts according to State Law. The Board had redistricted after a special Census was taken in 1975 and the changes have not been that great. The County Attorney conferred with the BBoard relative to conformity with the State Law and upon motion by Stenberg seconded by Tasa instructed the County Auditor to proceed to advertise for a Hearing on County Redistricting to be held at 2:00 P.M., July 28, 1981 with Hearing to be held in the CCommissioners' Room in the CCourthouse. Motion declared carried.

County Auditor, C. W. Rodekuhr, presented a letter of resignation as County Auditor to be effective August 31, 1981. The AAUDITOR INDICATED THAT HE WILL HAVE COMPLETED 14& YEARS AS Auditor at the end of August, having been appointed in August 1952. The Board indicated that the resignation was received with regret and that the matter will have to be acted on at a future meeting.

Moved by Hoffman seconded by Tasa that meeting adjourn. Next meeting prescribed by law. Motion carried.

Official Proceedings
Board of County Commissioners
Pennington County, Minnesota
July 13, 1981

Pursuant to Law, the County Board met in the Commissioners Room in the Courthouse in Thief River Falls at 10:00 A.M., July 13, 1981.

Members present: Hoffman, Grabanski, Stenberg and Tasa. Members absent: Koop.

The minutes of the meeting of June 30th were read and approved as read, with the exception that the closing entry should merely read adjourned. The next meeting is scheduled by Statute. (2nd Monday in July)

Discussion of the progress in developing programs for the Computer and upon motion by Hoffman seconded by Tasa the Highway Department was authorized to enter into agreement with Computer Concepts of St. Cloud for design and implementation of a special highway program that will meet the demands of the State for an amount not to exceed $7,500.00 to be billed as developed. Motion carried.

Bob Dondelinger, speaking for the CVhamber of Commerce, requested a commitment by the County Board for improvement of road between Highways 32 and 59 lying on the North side of the Alfalfa Plant to provide for cross over traffic should the GTA build a Feed Plant near that road. The Board indicated that the road in question was a Township road and that in reality was not a County matter but because of the importance of the impact of the proposal the Board indicated that they would make every attempt to accomplish what was necessary to provide the kind of service needed. It was also pointed out that a cross over road of this nature could be valuable to the CCommunity in that heavy traffic could avoid part of the City by coming in on either Highway 59 or 32.

A further question of the availability of County sponsoring Industrial Bonds for the construction costs of the GTA Plant was asked. The Board determined that if the need arose that they would look favorably upon selling this type of Bond. In order to provide a set of guidelines for the future use of the County Industrial Bonds the Board set forth some basic limits that would have to be looked at should someone think about asking the County for this Bond privilege, and these limits are tentatively, as follows:

Proposed development must be of a Commercial or Industrial nature. Must supply employment for a minimum of 20 persons and be of a minimum of $750,000 investment. The Board agreed to take the proposals under advisement and to officially adopt the rules at a future meeting.

At 2:00 P.M. the Board convened to open bids for bituminous surfacing of approx. 16 miles of S.A. 3 as duly advertised and called for: The following bids were opened and read aloud: NoDak Contracting Corp., Grand Forks, $990,963.60; Tri-City Paving, Little Falls, $1,072,617.60; Duininck Bros. & Gilchrist, Prinsburg, $1,003,035.20; Thorson, Inc., Bemidji, $893,835.40; Border States Paving, Fargo, $1,077,774.00.

The bid of Thorson, Inc. appeared to be the lowest and best bid received and upon motion by Tasa seconded by Hoffman the bid of Thorson, Inc. in the amount of $893,835.40 be accepted and the Chairman and Auditor be authorized and instructed to enter into Contract with said low bidder. Motion carried.

A Preliminary Plat was presented in behalf of John Nelson covering property in North Township and adjacent to Dawn Ave. East of Tireland, Inc. Moved by Hoffman seconded by Stenberg that Plat be approved. Motion carried.

The preliminary plans designed by Foss & Associates after interviews with Department Heads in the Courthouse were discussed. It appeared that the Board favored installation of the Elevator in the present front entrance to provide for proper access of the Courthouse. The balance of the proposals would have to be studied in more detail and at a later date.

The Board then discussed the use of the Old Sanatorium Building. A lack of Community involvement was expressed and it was suggested that the Community should advance ideas for the consideration of the Board. A suggestion for supervised Apartments for the Elderly had been suggested by the firm originally hired to assist in this endeavor and that carried a price tag of some $700,000 for remodeling the building. The reality of the situation may be that the building should be torn down. Matter continued under consideration.

At 4:00 P.M. the Board continued with Board of Equalization matters.

The following bills were read audited and allowed:

COUNTY BOARD PROCEEDINGS

July 22, 1981
Official Proceedings
Pennington County Board
Of Equalization
July 6, 1981

Pursuant to Law the Pennington County Board met as a Board of Equalization in the Commissioners' Room in the Courthouse in Thief River Falls at 10:00 A.M., July 6, 1981.

Members present: Grabanski, Stenberg and Tasa. Members absent: Hoffman and Koop. County Assessor DeHaan and Deputy Finseth were also present.

Edgewood Apartments owner appeared and questioned method of taxing — value changes were slight — Alice Landobeja of Kratka Township indicated problem with value when crop fails — Jerry Dunlevy of Concrete, Inc. in Black River Twp. along with Darrel Sevre appeared and protested increase in value but investigation indicated the local Board had adjusted the value and taxpayer was then satisfied.

The Assessor then presented detailed charts of comparison of values between Townships and the level of the assessments in the Cities. Comparison with values in adjacent Counties was undertaken and Board questioned the comparison between Pennington values and Marshall values. Further details were requested.

Moved by Stenberg seconded by Tasa that meeting be adjourned to convene at 4:00 P.M. July 13, 1981. Carried.

At 4:00 P.M. on July 13, 1981 the Board reconvened. Present: Hoffman, Grabanski, Stenberg and Tasa. Koop — absent.

Jerry Bugliosi of McDonald's appeared and spoke of the level of the taxes on McDonald's as compared to similar structures in other Cities. The Board indicated that the only comparison that could be made was with valuations because each City, had different budget needs. An explanation was also made that although the tax was levied under a formula prescribed by the State, all taxes remained in the local School, City and County.

Mr. Bugliosi then protested his tax as compared to Lon's and the County Assessor indicated the formula he follows provides varying schedules for different types of businesses and with depreciation the values are comparable.

The Board then inquired of Ruben Rydeen, State tax coordinator, about the comparison of values between the Counties of Marshall and Pennington and they were informed that the State had a procedure for testing the level of values and that if they found a need for adjustment they would order a change.

Moved by Stenberg seconded by Tasa that Board adjourn to convene at 10:00 A.M., July 16, 1981. Motion carried.

At 10:00 A.M., July 16, 1981 the Board reconvened. Present Hoffman, Grabanski, Stenberg and Tasa. Koop absent.

Moved by Tasa seconded by Hoffman that the Real Estate and Personal Property values as returned by the Local Boards of Review and submitted by the Assessor be accepted and approved. Motion declared unanimously carried.

Moved by Stenberg seconded by Tasa that meeting adjourn. Motion carried.

75th Marshall County Fair To Open Thursday

Wide variety of entertainment and educational programs will be presented at the 75th annual Marshall county fair at Warren which opens tomorrow (Thursday) and will continue through Sunday night.

The spacious fairgrounds has a new appearance this year with elimination of the overhead electrical wiring that has now been placed under ground, mainly as a safety precaution for fair goers. More efficient street lighting has also been installed.

Another major improvement at the fairgrounds this year is the rebuilding of the race track, changing it from a half-mile to a ⅜ mile oval which will provide better stock car racing for the public to watch. The big race card for Sunday afternoon may attract between 50 and 60 racers to compete in the late model and hobby stocks races.

Much activity will take place at Settlers Square which is maintained by the Marshall county historical society with many new exhibits of old time machinery and historical artifacts added during the year. The fair board will operate the fair line special train between Settlers Square and the main exhibit buildings on the fairgrounds all during the fair. The souvenier round trip tickets will be sold for 10 cents.

Interest is growing in the fun and games afternoon on Saturday when $1,100 in cash prizes will be offered by the fair association. Advance tickets are being sold in many places in the county which offer two boards for $3 while if purchased at the grandstand Saturday, only one board will be given for $3.00.

New exhibit division will take place for the first time at the fair this year when the miniature and models display will be opened in the former senior citizen building. Much interest is being taken in this exhibit by collectors of these items with cash prizes offered in the numerous classes and lots.

Senior citizens will present their annual program Friday afternoon at 3 p.m. with an entertaining program and the official recognition of the outstanding senior woman and man from each community in the county. The afternoon will be highlighted by the selection of the county's outstanding man and woman who will be given an all-expense trip to St. Paul where they will compete for state of Minnesota honors at the state fair.

Friday 4-H club night at the fair will include share the fun acts, dress queen revue, crowning of Marshall county's new King Agassiz candidate and announcement of special honors among the 4-H exhibitors at the fair. Congressman Arlan Stangeland will be at the fair to help in the King Agassiz crowning.

Fair program opens with the annual amateur talent contest Thursday night at 8 p.m. Individuals and groups will present their talents in competition for cash prizes of $200 for first, $100 for second and $50 for third.

Annual jaycee demolition derby, always one of the big feature programs at the fair will take place Saturday night. Prizes totaling $1,500 will be paid to the competitors who will smash their cars. There will be 40 to 50 entries in the derby.

Red River Valley amateur fiddlers association will stage their first annual amateur fiddlers contest at the fair Sunday night starting at 7 p.m. After the contest program the fiddlers will play for an old time dance on the grandstand concourse.

"The Midway that Sparkles" with its galaxy of thrill rides, game concessions and shows will be at the fair all four days. Advance ride tickets are now on sale throughout the county.

Women Aglow Retreat Set August 21-22

Northwestern Minnesota area Women's Aglow fellowship is planning a retreat to be held Friday and Saturday, August 21 and 22 at Oak Hills Bible Institute located four-and-one-half miles southwest of Bemidji via highway 71 and the Oak Hills road.

Theme of the 1981 retreat is "Looking Unto Jesus" based on scripture from Hebrews 12:2. The retreat will be a time of refreshment, relaxation and fellowship for women from all over northwestern Minnesota.

Dorothy (Dotty) Schmitt from Grand Rapids, and the Gathering of Believers in the Washington D.C. area, will be the retreat speaker. Dorothy has just completed her first book and has written a number of articles and pamphlets.

Four workshops will also be offered at the retreat. They are entitled "We Love You Lord" given by Leota Dahl of Bagley; "We Need You Lord" by Glenyce Coffin of Puposky; "Who Are You Lord?" given by Rosemary Ellis of Walker and "Be Ye Holy, As I Am Holy" by Rev. John Goodrich of Bemidji. All of these workshop teachers have been active in Women's Aglow fellowship the past few years.

Registration for the retreat at Oak Hills will begin at 10:30 on Friday, August 21 followed by lunch at noon. Friday afternoon session will begin at 1:30 p.m. Retreat will conclude at 3 p.m. on Saturday afternoon. Cost for the complete retreat is $25 or $14 for one day. An advanced registration fee of $5 is required and should be sent in by August 1. Reservations should be mailed to Karen Jensen, Box 5, Hackensack, MN 56452. Checks should be payable to Women's Aglow Fellowship. For more information call 681-3554.

Class Of 1951 Sets Reunion

Lincoln high school class of 1951 will hold its 30th reunion Saturday at Lon's restaurant with dinner served at 7:30 p.m.

All classmates are urged to attend. Reservations can be made by calling Jeanne Williams. Friends of classmates are invited to join in the after dinner fellowship.

SECURITY FENCING was being installed Tuesday at the Pennington county fairgrounds in preparation for the annual county fair to begin Thursday. The fencing runs from near the sports arena to the grandstand on the fairgrounds and is intended to keep crowds off the race track and provide fair officials with better crowd control. During the fair the fence will be covered with canvas.

Counties Set August WIC Clinic Date

Women, infants and children supplemental nutrition education program (WIC), which is conducted by the four county EPS, will be holding clinics throughout the month of August in Marshall, Kittson, Red Lake and Pennington counties.

Infants and children up to the age of five and women who are pregnant, breastfeeding or have had a baby within the past six months are eligible for the program.

To be certified a person must be a resident of Marshall, Kittson, Red Lake or Pennington counties, be considered nutritionally a risk and be within the USDA low income guidelines.

Upon certification, the client is given a voucher once a month to purchase specific nutritional foods.

The WIC program includes nutritional counseling and education for clients during the monthly visits.

All potential clients must call or write the 4 County EPS and complete an application. New clients will be seen by appointment only. Initial certification takes one to one-and-one-half hours.

WIC clinics begin at 9 a.m. Immunizations will be given at all clinics from 9 a.m. to 12 noon.

Schedule for the month of August includes: Grygla, August 3, community center, contact Lillian Sundberg at 294-6146; Newfolden, August 4, Bethlehem Lutheran church, 9 a.m. to 12 noon; Karlstad, August 4, First Lutheran church, 1-4 p.m.; Warren, August 5, Evangelical Covenant church; Red Lake Falls, August 6, St. John's hospital 9 a.m. to 12 noon, contact Inter-County nursing service, 253-2796; Thief River Falls, August 7, Redeemer Lutheran church; Oklee, August 10, community center; and Hallock, August 12, Presbyterian church.

For further information or to make an appointment, write or call: Four county EPS Service, 208 E. Colvin, Warren, MN 56762, 745-4004.

GTA Considers Unit Train Facility Here

Minnesota's farmer-owned cooperative grain elevators are gearing up this summer to develop a group of cooperative unit-train loading stations that will enable their farmer patrons to take advantage of lower freight rates for multiple-car shipments.

A grain official said GTA elevators at Fergus Falls, Madelia and Morris are also under study for unit train modifications, and he said local cooperative groups have built facilities or are working on plans for unit train outlets at Asbury, Crookston, Mahnomen, Murdock, St. Hilaire and Thief River Falls.

B.J. Malusky, president of the Grain terminal association (GTA), St. Paul, said this week that two of GTA's Minnesota elevators are being modified for loading unit trains, and that three other GTA-owned Minnesota elevators as well as six locally-owned affiliated cooperatives either have built facilities or are in the process of planning and study for similar improvements in the near future. In addition, several other locally owned co-ops are preparing feasibility studies for unit train loading.

Malusky said the GTA board of directors has approved a new elevator at Marshall, adjacent to the existing GTA facility on the Burlington Northern railroad and the modification of GTA facility at Warren. He said the two projects are part of a $5.5 million program involving eight GTA elvators in North Dakota, Montana and Minnesota.

"This original project was approved by the GTA board of directors following long-range planning and studies indicating the eight elevators involved are the most feasible locations for construction at this time," Malusky said. "However we are also looking at several other locations as part of our strategic plan to place GTA and its locally-owned affiliated elevators in a positive grain marketing position for the future."

Malusky said the Marshall elevator will be equipped for handling 54 cars and the Warren facility for 26 cars.

The Good Old Days

Ah, for the time when life was simple! You could go for a picnic and there would be no jet planes screaming overhead. You didn't have to worry about sugar shortages and oil shortages and the chance of global war. You didn't have to worry.

Believe that?

If so, seek out an oldster and ask him how it really was, allowing a little bit for the camouflage of nostalgia.

Chances are you'll find only one thing was really different. People did seem to have more faith in the old days. They seemed closer to the church. Maybe that's one reason why life was tranquil, more trouble free.

It could be worth investigating.

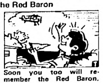
THEN and NOW!

Remember The Red Baron

If you're like many Americans, you've heard about the Red Baron, but you're a bit up in the air about who he was. Here are some interesting facts.



Soon you too will remember the Red Baron.

THEN: High in the skies over France during World War I, the Baron Manfred Von Richtofen's daring earned him the title, the Red Baron. So heroic a figure was he, that even the Allied flyers held him in high regard even though he was on the opposite side.

NOW: The Red Baron has returned — two Red Barons, in fact. They'll barnstorm this summer to help kids and promote Red Baron frozen pizza. Sold in grocery stores, Red Baron Pizza is manufactured by Red Baron Pizza Service, Marshall, MN.

The Red Baron and his ground crew will visit more than 40 fairs across the Midwest, passing out cents-off coupons and he'll donate a $500 check to youth leaders at each fair.

WATCH YOUR ENERGY
YOU MIGHT BE MORE COMFORTABLE AND MORE COMFORTABLE ABOUT YOUR ENERGY CONSUMPTION IF YOU FOLLOW A FEW TIPS LIKE THESE FROM THE NATIONAL ENERGY WATCH.
KNOW WHEN NOT TO SHUT OFF YOUR AIR CONDITIONER. IF YOU'LL BE AWAY FROM HOME FOR LESS THAN 15 MINUTES, IT'S MORE ENERGY-EFFICIENT TO LEAVE THE MACHINE ON. ANY LONGER THAN THAT, HOWEVER, AND THE AIR CONDITIONER SHOULD BE TURNED OFF.
IF YOU'RE INSTALLING WINDOW AIR CONDITIONERS, TRY TO PUT THEM IN CENTRAL RATHER THAN CORNER, WINDOWS. IF POSSIBLE, CHOOSE A WINDOW ON THE SHADY OR NORTH SIDE OF YOUR HOME. IF THE SUN HITS THE UNIT DIRECTLY, THE AIR CONDITIONER WILL HAVE A HARDER TIME GETTING RID OF THE HEAT.
ON
HAVE YOUR FURNACE PILOT LIGHT TURNED OFF DURING THE HOT SUMMER MONTHS. BE SURE IT IS RE-IGNITED BEFORE YOU TURN THE FURNACE ON AGAIN IN THE FALL.
DON'T PUT HEAT-PRODUCING DEVICES SUCH AS LAMPS AND TV SETS BENEATH A WALL-MOUNTED THERMOSTAT FOR A CENTRAL COOLING SYSTEM. IT WOULD MAKE THE THERMOSTAT REGISTER A FALSE READING. THESE TIPS ARE FROM THE NATIONAL ENERGY WATCH, AN ENERGY EFFICIENCY PROGRAM FROM THE ELECTRIC UTILITY INDUSTRY.

East-West Steiner Ball Game July 12

Once again the East-West Steiner ball game is history and gloves, bats and balls have been put away until July, 1982. What happened, Clark? The East siders going down to defeat by a score of 10 to 5? It must be only a bad dream. All year you had been planning your strategy, to have the west side lineup include about ten youngsters under the age of twelve, and then, with a little assistance from the older team members, have them take the best east side pitchers could throw and knock the ball into the woods and out of the cow pasture. We suggest that, while you are rocking in your chair by the fireside next winter and pulling icicles from your beard, that you come up with a strategy that will bring the shirt back east. Until then, good luck!

Lloyd Larson, accompanied by his grandson, Lance Solberg of Plummer and also Kent Benitt of Holt spent from Sunday to Tuesday last week on a fishing trip to Lake of the Woods.

Views On Dental Health

By Donald R. Goodrich, D.D.S.

PRETTIER SMILE FROM "BONDING"

One of the most exciting revolutions in cosmetic dentistry is the use of composite materials that can be molded onto your teeth to change their shape, fill spaces, and result in the smile you've always wanted.

The dentist can now close spaces between teeth (the Terry Thomas syndrome), cover discolored teeth, making them lighter and more attractive. He can rebuild and reshape disfigured or chipped teeth, often making crowning unnecessary. He can fill in eroded areas; lengthen front teeth that have worn down; and hide gold or amalgam fillings that show when a person smiles. It is also possible to bond tooth-colored plastic facings onto natural teeth, to cover badly stained or discolored teeth. And this can be done almost invariably without drilling and in one office visit.

An acid-etching prepares the teeth surface, the composite is placed on and shaped into the desired appearance. This is today's answer for those who have long been unhappy with the appearance of their smile.

Give a kid some breathing room.

Breathing doesn't come naturally to a child with Cystic Fibrosis.
It attacks the lungs. Invades the digestive system. And, all too frequently, it kills.
In fact, CF is the number one genetic killer of America's children.
But you can change that. With your support, we can continue research to eliminate CF in tomorrow's children. And make life easier for today's victims.
Give what you can. And you'll give a kid some breathing room.

A Strong Tradition

Another Pennington county fair has arrived and for hundreds of Thief River Falls, Goodridge, St. Hilaire and other area people it will be a time of participation and activity. We think that's just great!

It's true that Pennington county doesn't have the most attractive fairgrounds in northwestern Minnesota and that the grandstand ranks somewhere at the bottom of the list of those facilities. But it is difficult to top the sports arena as an indoor show place and the curling building and new sheep, hogs and poultry building are certainly adequate.

But it takes more than buildings and grounds to make a county fair. It takes pride and tradition, and Pennington county is strong on both counts. The fair has existed through many years — including some mighty lean years — and has met with more than one type of adversity. Through it all the tradition has grown and has helped to carry the event.

When interest by some has lagged, others have come along to take up the slack. When financial set-backs threatened operation, there were people willing to take a chance by extending credit. And the backbone of operation has always been the community-minded volunteer citizen who takes an active interest and puts his mind and body and time to work to assure at least one more Pennington county fair. . . and another. . . and another. . .

In recent years the fair has changed in format. Directors of the association have cut back on high-priced professional entertainment in favor of locally-sponsored events in which there is high community interest. Free gates have been allowed to permit anyone to enjoy the fair and see its exhibits without spending any money at all. The arena has made a big part of the fair weather-proof. Obligations are being met on a timely basis and the association is moving forward on improvements.

But to be successful the fair needs participation, from exhibitors and spectators alike, to justify its existence and to be a worthwhile cultural event. You can be part of that tradition by attending the fair this week. You'll have a good time — and you'll be among good friends.

Group Baits Fishermen

Our good friend Ken Hickman over at Grand Rapids feels most comfortable with a fishing rod or shotgun in hand and water beneath his boat. And like most of us he gets a little up tight when there are threats of sinking his favorite recreational pursuits out from under him.

In his regular column in the Midland Cooperator publication, he talks about an anti-fishing group which is long on sentiment and short on sense:

If you've ever watched a youngster squeal with excitement while reeling in a panfish, you might just wonder what the Kindness in Nature Defense (KIND) anti-fishing campaign is all about.

"How would you like to be a fish?" demands a pamphlet now being circulated to third and fourth graders in many school systems.

The cover shows a smiling fish apparently carrying on a conversation with a grinning youngster. Here's what the fish is telling the boy:

"Of course, a fish has feelings, too. Modern scientists stress this fact. A fish likes to live. He likes to jump and play just as you do when you feel happy.

"When a fish is caught on a cruel hook, he tries desperately to get away. He is fighting for his life.

"Is it sporting for big humans to laugh and call that fun? When they've begun to THINK, many grown-ups who used to fish have given it up, and now instead of killing, they find fun in studying fish.

"When we find ways of having fun that do not cause pain and death to other living beings, we'll all be happier."

It's getting so that there are groups which oppose virtually everything — picking flowers or cutting trees must be grievous sins, too.

Surely we must halt the vicious practice of planting gardens and destroying the fresh green plants which reach happily toward the sun. Maybe we can convince ourselves that it's cruel to mow the lawn.

An important provision in a bill now before Congress, commonly called Dingell-Johnson, would allow states to allocate up to 10 per cent of the D-J money for youth-oriented programs in aquatic education.

Subjects covered would include species identification, water conservation, preservation of the fisheries resource and basic fishing technique. Children would learn that fishing isn't sinful and cruel. Instead, it is relaxing and enjoyable.

Let's admit that there are people who genuinely dislike the thought of hunting and fishing. But that doesn't make monsters of those who enjoy the sports.

We have so many problems in this world, indoors and outdoors, that there are more important goals than trying to convince children that fishing is evil and that only mean, unpleasant people can enjoy it.

A Week One Night

"You may now be saying to yourself, ah, this fellow does not like rural areas. That's not true. There's nothing wrong with having a lot of dirt and cows lying around. . . I mean, what would you do with all that open space otherwise? But it's not very exciting compared to cities."

This is one statement in a column written by Larry Davenport in the North Hennepin Post. Davenport is a photographer — a good photographer — for the suburban Twin Cities newspaper and was writing the column while managing editor Bob Bork was on vacation. Bork may be moved to homicidal tendencies when he reads Davenport's column.

The put-down on rural living — which at times appears good-natured but more often is openly caustic — begins with Davenport's opening statement that he spent a week in Iowa one night. He laments a five-hour drive through "flat, empty countryside" and says the drive led him to imagine such things as the Iowa state bird being Methodist-baked chicken and the state flower being Bisquick.

"The folks in Iowa are nice, though. All six of them," he writes. "They are a little conservative and wary of strangers, 'specially us city slickers. The town my friend lives in is composed of Dutch Reformed churches and Baptist churches. My friend says there used to be a Lutheran church there, but the others made 'em move out of town because they were too radical."

He goes on to say, "Still and all, things could be worse. They are, as a matter of fact. If you go to Iowa and hang a right, you'll find yourself in Nebraska. . . Nebraska, as I understand it, is an old Algonquin Indian word meaning 'land where people eat dead frogs'.

". . . And, then, we must not forget that hot spot of the midwest, Hull, Iowa. Cafe's open 'til seven. Eight on Fridays and Saturdays. Got a motel only nine miles away. Ain't got no stop lights in Hull, but there's a railroad crossing light. Course its been broke for 'bout as long as anyone can remember and it just sits there and blinks all the time. Lots of the young folks come down to watch it. So they say. I think they're spoonin' out there."

Where is heaven to Davenport? Minneapolis and St. Paul and the suburbs. Some of us rural folks may find that hard to believe — that anyone would live in the metropolitan area because they WANTED to live there. It's the kind of place you assume people live because they are told they HAVE to live there to pick up a paycheck, or because they're born there and have never known any better.

The metro area is the place where residents greet each other with the question "What's happenin'?" but nobody ever knows the answer. That doesn't happen out here; we care enough about one another to know what's happening and quite often we can help it happen.

We don't expect everyone to like the rural life. You have to be a little creative to live here and appreciate fully what we have. You have to give a little of yourself to make the wheels turn and you have to be able to get along with other people — although that's usually pretty easy to do because we have good people. It takes a certain amount of respect to be happy here — mutual respect for the rights and freedoms of our neighbors.

We wouldn't expect everyone to understand that. You have to know something about understanding and sharing to comprehend the rural life. You don't need that knowledge in the city where friends are fleeting, entertainment is purchased and identity is something you paste on billboards. We're glad you like the city, Larry. You can have it!

Borrowed Nonsense:

The work crew had gone out to repair a road and discovered they had left their shovels back in town. They radioed to the engineer to explain their problem. "I'll send the shovels right out," he responded. "Until they get there, you'll just have to lean on each other."

inflation fighting ideas

Energy conservation measures for your house may not be the same as those needed by the fellow next door.

Harried homeowners, beset with ever-soaring costs for heating and cooling houses, are likely as not to compare energy-saving ideas with neighbors.

No problem there but before you decide to invest in a costly conservation project, just like the one next door, remember that you may not get the same results.

Your neighbor's experiences should be part — but not all — of your energy-saving decisions, say the experts at the York Division of Borg-Warner.

The most important factor is an analysis of your own home. What works for one home is not necessarily the best investment for another.

For example, if your home is recently built, it probably is well-insulated and modernizing heating or cooling equipment may be your best bet.

However, if your house dates back 40 years or more and no insulation has been added since the house was built, that should be your first priority.

Which steps should you take? First, consult a reliable heating and air conditioning dealer. Your neighbor may be able to recommend one, but always get two or three estimates. Ask for a home energy audit. It's worth the time invested.

Dealers can provide fairly accurate estimates of renovations that will save you the most money. An energy audit may point out some inexpensive steps you may have overlooked — caulking around windows or leaving some storm windows on in summer to keep cool air in and hot air out.

Looking Backward

1921 — 60 YEARS AGO

One-hundred local citizens held a cleaning bee in Lovers Lane to prepare the property for use as a city park. — A local farmer is reported to have paid $500 for two Holstein calves. — Soren Sorenson started to cut rye July 6 on his farm west of TRF.

1931 — 50 YEARS AGO

A.J. Rau, manager of the local telephone exchange, completed his 20th year in telephone work. — Mrs. C.H. Jung was elected president of the local unit of the WCTU.

1941 — 40 YEARS AGO

Miss Judith Lockrem was appointed county supt. of schools, succeeding Richard Dablow, resigned. — Pennington county board adopted a 1941 budget of $146,700 or $10,000 less than that for 1940. — Nearly 450 mattresses have been made to date in a project in TRF and Highlanding sponsored by the county AAA and extension office.

1951 — 30 YEARS AGO

Application of Wisconsin Central Airlines for permission to serve TRF has been recommended for rejection by examiners for the Civil Aeronautics Board. — Total assessed valuation of personal property in TRF was reported at $934,196 by Richard G. Mabey, assessor. — Gordon Nohre of this city was elected third vice commander of the Minnesota Department of the American Legion at its convention in Mankato. — Miss Kathryn Vorachek was chosen by local Jaycees to represent this city at the Northwest Water Carnival in Detroit Lakes.

1961 — 20 YEARS AGO

Gene Beito of the Northern State Bank was named a trustee of Northwestern Hospital at the regular meeting of the trustees, succeeding Morris Howick, who recently resigned. — Jerry Nelson, clerk at the F.W. Woolworth company, won the first prize for best costume of the recent Crazy Days. — Agri-Business Day, with about 50 persons making farm tours in the afternoon and 60 attending the educational meeting in the evening, was considered a success by the sponsors. — Paul G. Gunderson of Pierson, Fla. will become youth director of Trinity church August 1.

1971 — 10 YEARS AGO

First place trophy was won the TRFinettes drum and bugle corps of TRF at the state Logging Days parade in Park Rapids. — Mr. and Mrs. Victor Walsberg of rural TRF celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary. — Randi Myhrer was chosen queen of the 4-H style revue held in the city auditorium. — Lowell T. Swenson, president of Arctic Enterprises, Inc., said consolidated net sales reached $23,539,495 for the three months ended June 30, 1971, as compared to $6,490,774 for the similar period in 1970.

Gov. Quie's Column

Inflation, high interest rates and recurring recessions have forced most Minnesotans to spend less and tighten their belts a notch or two.

Minnesotans believe state government should do likewise — and rightly so.

As governor, one of my goals has been to help hold the line on the increasing rate of state spending. The 1981-83 biennial budget, which was enacted closely following my spending guidelines, has made that goal a reality.

The Minnesota Department of Finance estimates that the 1981-83 budget has already saved the state of Minnesota $900 million. In the 1983-85 biennium, we will save $2.1 billion more, making a total savings of $3 billion.

These savings mean that the rapidly increasing spending policies of the last decade have ended.

Over the past decade, state spending increased an average of 23.8 per cent every two years. The 1981-83 budget chops that swelling growth rate almost in half — to 14 per cent.

In this column, I would like to explain how we were able to slow down state spending so drastically.

1) Since the legislature adopted it at my urging in 1979, indexing, which keeps taxpayers from being pushed into higher tax brackets by inflation, has prevented state government from receiving an "inflation bonus." State government is no longer assured of automatically increased revenues to pay for new programs. Legislators must now openly vote for tax increases to finance state spending. Thus legislators, quite naturally, have become more reluctant to increase spending.

2) The growth of welfare programs was significantly curtailed. For the 1981-83 fiscal biennium a 53 per cent increase was requested by the department. The new budget provides an 18 per cent increase. We believe it is possible to meet our obligations as a caring state, yet at the same time put a lid on programs which threaten to become uncontrollably large.

3) We eliminated the "blank check" approach to property tax relief which encouraged increased local government spending. Local officials can no longer increase spending and raise property taxes and expect the state to disguise 58 per cent of their action through reimbursements from the homestead credit. The homestead credit allows taxpayers to deduct a portion of their property tax, which the state then pays directly to school districts, counties and local units of government. The credit used to be open, but is now "capped."

4) The Quie budget significantly reduced the growth of state government. While the average increase of the state departments budget was 21.1 per cent between 1972 and 1981, the increase during fiscal years 1982 and 1983 is only one-half of one per cent.

5) We stopped the state from gradually assuming virtually full control of the funding of elementary and secondary education. During recent years, the state's share was approaching 80 per cent of the operating funds of school districts, and its share was growing every year. The 1981-83 budget restores the state-local financing relationship to the 70-30 ratio intended in 1971, the year our current school financing mechanism was enacted.

6) We established, for the first time in state history, a debt service management policy to restrain the growth of the state's bonded indebtedness.

The outlook for the future is good.

A preliminary estimate by the Department of Finance shows that if the policies discussed above are continued, the state's budget for the 1983-85 biennium will be less than $11.3 billion, or $2.1 billion less than would have been the case if past growth patterns had been continued.

Without our spending cuts, expenditure increases would continue to compound the cost of government by 20-40 per cent per biennium!

If we are able to hold the lines on spending to the extent we have for the 1981-83 biennium, the result will be major reductions in government spending, compared to the spiraling increases of the last decade.

A Zingy New Flavor For Chicken 'N' Rice

Brandy and spices add zest to this chicken dinner.

Chicken, rice, tomatoes, mushrooms . . . just mentioning such foods can bring to mind favorite dishes from traditional Hispanic kitchens.

Here is a recipe that combines those ingredients in a sauce that's made extra special by the addition of Hennessey's V.S. Cognac, chicken broth and zesty seasonings.

Traditional? Maybe not. Delicious? No question. Here's how:

3 cups hot cooked rice
2 whole chicken breasts, skinned, boned and cut into thin strips (about 1 pound)
1/3 cup cornstarch
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
1/4 teaspoon black pepper
1/2 teaspoon dried thyme
2 tablespoons each vegetable oil and butter or margarine
1 cup sliced green onions with tops
1 can (8 ounces) sliced mushrooms, drained
1/4 cup Hennessey's V.S. Cognac
1 1/2 cups chicken broth
1/2 teaspoon tarragon
3 fresh tomatoes, peeled and cut in eighths

Combine cornstarch with salt, pepper and thyme. Toss chicken strips in this mixture until well-coated. Heat oil and butter in a large skillet. Add chicken and sauté until brown on all sides. Stir in onions and mushrooms, cook two additional minutes.

Add Hennessey's V.S. Cognac, broth and tarragon. Cover and simmer for 10 minutes. Stir in tomatoes, re-cover and cook for five minutes. Serve over rice and garnish with bright green sprigs of fresh parsley. Serves six, memorably.

SOLVING PROBLEMS BEFORE THEY HAPPEN.
Lutheran Brotherhood announces MagniMed℠... a major medical program with 100% coverage for outpatient surgery and generic drugs.

A major need.
What would happen if you or a member of your family suffered a major illness or injury requiring an extended hospital stay, long-term treatment, major surgery or a combination of all three? Are you really covered against such catastrophic costs by your current insurance?

Improving on a good thing.
Lutheran Brotherhood has recently introduced an extraordinary new major medical plan called MagniMed. It's designed to provide quality coverage at an affordable cost. Broad coverage, too. Unlike most other plans, for example, MagniMed pays a full 100% of your outpatient surgery and generic drug costs, after the deductible has been satisfied.

Flexible, million dollar coverage!
Among MagniMed's many other features are these:
- There are a number of deductible options so that you can tailor your coverage to what you can afford
- There's no limit to the number of days or scheduled amount of benefits provided under the plan for intensive care, and room and board is provided based upon average local semi-private room rates.
- Coverage is provided either while confined in a hospital or while being treated as an outpatient.
- Each covered family member is eligible for up to $1,000,000 of lifetime benefits!

Taking the lead.
Once again Lutheran Brotherhood has spared no effort to provide Lutherans with the very best in insurance benefits...at a very competitive cost. Once again we're ready and able to help you solve problems before they happen.

Find out now.
Don't wait another minute to protect yourself from the kind of calamity that could happen any minute. And if you already have major medical coverage, it could still be very worthwhile to compare it with what MagniMed offers. Call your nearby Lutheran Brotherhood representative today and find out all about MagniMed!

UNSALTING OUR DIET FOR HEALTHY AND TASTY EATING

NEW IDEAS FOR SANDWICHES

Many of the commercial spreads for sandwiches are high in salt and therefore maybe off-limits for individuals following low-sodium diets. This can be a problem for the cook who wants tasty sandwiches that adhere to reduced salt guidelines.

The following recipes for sandwich spreads make the job easy. They are all based on a common ingredient, Fleischmann's new Unsalted Margarine, now found in your supermarket's dairy case. The new reformulated margarine contains no milk solids and is both kosher and parve. Its great flavor makes it an ideal substitute for butter or regular margarine.

Tangy condiments and seasonings give these spreads body and flavor so no one will miss the salt. Use them for sandwiches, or try them as spreads for canapes when guests drop by. When stored in the refrigerator, they keep well for several weeks.

CHIVE CHEESE SPREAD

Makes about 1/2 cup sandwich spread

1/2 cup (1 stick) Fleischmann's Unsalted Margarine, softened
2 tablespoons snipped fresh chives
1 tablespoon grated Parmesan cheese

In a small bowl blend Fleischmann's Unsalted Margarine, chives and Parmesan cheese. Cover and store in refrigerator.

Sodium: 10 MG. per serving

HORSERADISH SPREAD

Makes 3/4 cup sandwich spread

1/2 cup (1 stick) Fleischmann's Unsalted Margarine, softened
1/4 cup drained prepared horseradish

In a small bowl blend Fleischmann's Unsalted Margarine and horseradish together. Cover and store in refrigerator.

Sodium: 15 MG. per tablespoon

MELLOW MUSTARD SPREAD

Makes 1/2 cup sandwich spread

1/2 cup (1 stick) Fleischmann's Unsalted Margarine, softened
2 tablespoons prepared mustard

In a small bowl blend Fleischmann's Unsalted Margarine and mustard together. Cover and store in refrigerator.

Sodium: 105 MG. per tablespoon

"Everybody is Somebody in Thief River Falls"

Published Twice A Week

THIEF RIVER FALLS TIMES

Volume 70 (USPS 627-360) Thief River Falls, Pennington County, Minnesota Monday, July 27, 1981 Number 59

PONY CHARIOT racers near the number three turn in horse racing action Saturday evening at the Pennington county fair in Thief River Falls. The half-mile races were exciting for the fans who turned out in good numbers for the racing program — second horse racing event in as many years at the county fair here. Last year a muddy track slowed the action. This year the track and weather conditions were nearly perfect.

Times Vacation Schedule Set For August 2-9

Summer vacation schedule will again be observed by the Thief River Falls Times when the office will be closed and two issues of the paper will be suspended. Closing dates this year will be Sunday, August 2 through Sunday, August 9.

No papers will be published for the issues of Wednesday, August 5 nor Monday, August 10. The issue of Monday, August 3, will be published on Saturday, August 1 and early news and advertising copy for that issue will be required. The issue of Wednesday, August 12, will be published on the regular schedule.

Times staff members appreciate the cooperation and understanding of the public in this vacation closing which permits a full week of time off from the duties of publishing.

37th Annual Aquacade Is Underway This Week

Thief River Falls Jaycees 37th annual Aquacade is officially underway today, although clues for the annual treasure hunt which opens the festivities were first made available last week. Events will continue through Sunday, August 2, with most of the activities concentrated in the August 1-2 weekend.

Again this year there will be two treasures for the public to seek, one worth $100 and the other valued at $50. The sealed containers are hidden on public property in the city and no digging nor other disturbing of property will be necessary to find them.

Water Fights

Nwxt event of the Aquacade week will be the water fights on Thursday on Second street between Duluth and Knight avenues, beginning at 7 p.m. Four or five-member teams may enter with an entry fee of $10 per team and 100 per cent pay-back of entry fees to the top three teams. Teams wishing to enter should contact Tom Mickelson at 681-2777 after 6 p.m. or the Jaycees at Po. Box 53, Thief River Falls.

Tennis and Racquetball

Tennis and racquetball tournaments will be held beginning Friday with respective chairmen being Terry Beich and Tom Ritchie. Tennis play for juniors will be held on Friday, July 31, with adult classes beginning on Saturday, August 1. Entrants may compete in one singles, one doubles and one mixed doubles event. For entry blanks and information contact Beich at 681-4124. No telephone entries will be accepted.

The racquetball tournament will begin with elimination play Friday and end with championship matches Sunday. This is an open tournament and club membership is not required. All entrants will receive a tournament T-shirt and classes will include men's A and B, women's A, B and C and junior boys and girls age 15 and younger. Entry deadline is Thursday and a party and awards ceremony will follow the tournament Sunday at 5 p.m. For more information contact Ritchie at 681-2130.

Archery Tourney

Aquacade archery tournament will be held August 1 and 2 with registration from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday and Sunday. The tournament will consist of three events: A 28-target field round, 28-target animal broadhead round and a 900 round. Registration and all archery events will be held at the field range located 7.4 road miles south of Thief River Falls on the West side of the regional airport. To reach the range follow Pennington avenue south from First street four miles and follow the archery club signs.

Thief River Falls archery range is recognized as one of the finest outdoor ranges in northern Minnesota. For more information on the tournament contact Dana Klos at 681-7128.

Saturday Parade

Always a crowd-pleaser and one of the traditions of Aquacade will be the Aquacade parade featuring Miss Minnesota, candidates for the Miss Thief River Falls title and reigning Miss Thief River Falls Alice Melgard. Bands, area floats and visiting royalty from other communities will also be featured.

Parade time is scheduled for 1 p.m. Anyone wishing to participate in the parade or needing further information should contact Ron Kalinoski at 681-3664 or Gerry Parulson at 681-2235. Contacts should be made immediately because parade planning is being completed.

Miss TRF Pageant

The Miss Thief River Falls pageant, an official Miss America preliminary event, will be held Saturday at 8 p.m. in the Lincoln high school auditorium. Seven candidates will compete for the Miss Thief River Falls crown, a $750 first prize scholarship and a $1,200 expense allowance to represent the city at various functions during the coming year.

Miss Minnesota, Elizabeth Ann Ruyak, will attend and present her state pageant talent number.

Reserved seat tickets will be sold through July 29 and will be available, beginning Tuesday, at Larson Music company and Ekeren Drug in Thief River Falls. Candidates for Miss Thief River Falls 1981-82 include Mary Gentry, Middle River; Diane Narlock, Warren; Wendy Rustad, Oslo; Lynne Krohn, Viking; Tracy Foldesi, Greenbush; Elaine Piche, Red Lake Falls; and Marcy Reierson, Newfolden.

Races, Golf Tourney

Several events are also planned for Sunday, August 2, only. They are a shortstop golf tournament at the Thief River country club, a 10 kilometer (6.2 miles) race beginning at LaFave park and a canoe race beginning at the Smiley bridge landing southeast of Thief River Falls.

Registration for the golf tournament will begin at 8:15 a.m. with tee-off at 8:30 a.m. Championship flight will be limited to the first 36 golfers and 27 holes of medal play will be used to determine a winner. In other flights — limited to the first 64 golfers, nine-hole matches will be played and eight flights are planned. Pre-registration is required. All entrants 18 years of age or younger must play in the championship flight. For reservations call 681-2955.

The 10-kilometer race will offer competition in four classes for men (19 and younger, 20-29, 30-39 and 40 and over) and one open class for women. Medals will be awarded to the first three finishers in each division and ribbons will be presented to all finishers. Trophies will be presented to the top four finishers.

The race will start at 10 a.m. and registration will close at 9:30 a.m. that day. Early

MISS MIDDLE RIVER, Mary Gentry, will be among seven candidates for the Miss Thief River Falls title at the Jaycee Aquacade pageant Saturday evening. Her pageant talent number will be a piano solo. She has taken piano lessons for 12 years and is a 1981 graduate of Middle River high school.

Mary Gentry In Queen Pageant

For 12 of her 18 years, Mary Louise Gentry of Middle River has taken piano lessons, so it is not surprising that her talent presentation at the Jaycee Aquacade pageant Saturday evening will be a piano solo.

Mary is the daughter of Sally A. Gentry of Middle River and a 1981 graduate of Middle River high school. She is five feet nine inches tall, weighs 125 pounds, has brown hair and hazel eyes. She is the reigning Miss Middle River, having been crowned last fall at the Middle River community's annual goose festival celebration.

In addition to studying piano, Mary participated in ballet and jazz dancing lessons for three years. At Middle River high school she was an honor student, selected for the best actress award in 1980, won the hustle award in girls' basketball and was the American Legion auxiliary's selection to Girls State.

Mary's mother is the mayor of Middle River and Mary has two sisters, one an army lieutenant in Germany and the other attending college at the University of North Dakota. Her hobbies include traveling, playing piano and participating in basketball, volleyball and softball.

This fall she plans to enroll at the University of North Dakota and later transfer to the University of Minnesota to study architecture. This summer she is working as a hostess at the Shangri-La restaurant in Grand Forks.

Along with her plans to be an architect, she lists her ambition as "to be happy at what I do; to be content, but never satisfied."

More Clues To Treasure Hunt Listed

Additional clues have been provided to those searching for the two treasures hidden during the Jaycee Aquacade treasure hunt this year. Treasures in the amounts of $100 and $50 will be included in this year's hunt, according to Don Grabanski, chairman of the annual project.

Treasure hunters are again reminded that no property need be disturbed to find the treasures and that anyone is eligible to seek the treasures out.

Clues for the $100 treasure include — (1) the system always works; (2) only the treasure man knows, and he's happy; (3) Pennington County Fair is a good place to start; (4) the main routes of our city are good clues; and (5) the park is close by.

Those searching for the $50 treasure may be aided by the following clues: (1) look for something clear on the bottom; (2) look for something black on the top; (3) look for a white piece of paper with a red line on it; (4) remember the treasures are not very large; and (5) the nine square blocks area is where it's at.

County Fair Meets With Good Weather And Crowd

Blessed by ideal weather and good attendance at most events, the annual Pennington county fair completed its four-day run Sunday. Fair officials proclaimed it highly successful from all standpoints, including entries in 4-H club and open class competition, attendance at grandstand programs and numbers of people viewing the displays and enjoying the carnival.

Premiums paid out this year in 4-H club and open class competition totaled $6,673 — an increase from the $6,353 paid out a year ago, according to Richard Anderson, treasurer. He also indicated that final settlement is being made this morning with the Matt Armstrong shows carnival and that an increase in the county fair's receipts from carnival percentage is also expected.

Grandstand show attendance again showed the demolition derby to be most popular by a wide margin. Opening night talent program drew 300 paid customers and about 130 senior citizens who were admitted free of charge and treated to pop and ice cream by the fair association.

Demolition derby attendance was officially set at 2,435 paid. The Saturday evening horse show attendance was 650 paid — about double the number who attended last year's event which was postponed from Saturday to Sunday due to bad weather. Mud wrestling drew 286 paying customers Sunday but comments have been good and plans are underway for an expanded and improved program next year. Margo Smith country-western show played to 430 fans at the sports arena Sunday night.

County fair officials received a number of comments regarding dates of the Pennington and Marshall county fairs being identical. They noted that the fair dates had originally been set a week apart but that the carnival for the Marshall county fair had changed its schedule with the conflict resulting. Pennington county fair dates for 1982 have been set for July 22-23-24 and 25 and the Marshall county fair board has been advised of the schedule, according to local officials.

Several competitions were held at the fair this year, including a local talent contest, demolition derby, horse racing and mud wrestling. Winners of the events include the following:

Talent Contest

Leslie Williamson of Thief River Falls won the amateur talent contest Thursday evening during the opening night program at the Pennington county fair. She sang "Little Girls" from the musical "Annie" and earned the first prize of $75.

Tom Eckstein of Thief River Falls earned second place money of $50 and Susan Rosetta won third place and $35; both with vocal solos. John Burkel of Greenbush and Cathy Stanislowski of Thief River Falls won fourth and fifth prizes of $25 and $15 with guitar and vocal numbers.

Winning numbers were based on audience appeal, musicianship, stage performance and overall appeal with judges including Margaret Hogan, Jim Solsten and Jeanne Harger.

In addition to the talent program, Mr. and Mrs. Julian C. Lendobeja were honored as the outstanding senior citizens of Pennington county. Recognition was provided by Mayor Bob Carlson and Morris Owen of the local senior citizens organization.

WCTU Hosts Oakland Park Birthday Party

Alice Mae Stuart Thief River Falls Woman's Christian Temperance Union monthly meeting was held July 21 at Oakland Park Nursing home. The group served lunch featuring fruit muffins to the residents and presented those having birthdays in July with a birthday card and a potted Coleus plant.

Oakland Park residents having birthdays were Ray Welch, Mabel Swanson, Louise Aamodt, Mathilda Hoffman, Florence Oberg and Mabel Moss.

A program was given with Mrs. Olga Larson giving the devotions. She read Psalm 121, emphasizing verse 5, "The Lord is thy shade upon the right hand." She stated that those who believe in God have no need to worry or fear as He is constantly near, keeping and protecting day and night.

Several boyu and girls, who had attended Youth Temperance camp at Lake Koronis, near Paynesville, also appeared on the program. Giving reports on their camp activities were Peter Nygard, Jared Haugan, Jason Haugan, Jared Mostrom, Kristy Hanson, Jayne Mattson, Pauline Lindberg, Tammy Coltom and Darsey Besserud. Unable to be present by sending a written report was Randy Moe, the bus driver. He stated that although it was a temperance education camp, the theme was "In One Accord," with exphases on the need for a personal relationship with Jesus. He said that in order to be victorious, Christians need to be willing to give up anything that stands in the way of surrendering fully to Christ. He together with the campers, expressed appreciation to everyone who had made the camp trip possible.

The campers also sang, "What a Friend We Have in Jesus," and "Amazing Grace," with Mrs. Melvin Engelstad as accompanist.

The unit's business meeting followed in the chapel. Plans were made for the State WCTU convention to be held in Thief River Falls September 14-16. Members were urged to attend a planning meeting with the district officers on July 31 at the Riverside Terrace social room.

Special mention was made commending the Thief River Falls Times editor, Marvin Lundin, for the articles regarding opposing drinking and driving.

The group also commended Valborg Hanson for recruiting the campers for the Youth Temperance camp and for her work in soliciting funds for the campers' fees and trip.

State Rep. Wenzel Speaks For Seniors

State Rep. Steve Wenzel, DFL-Little Falls, was the keynote speaker before the Central Minnesota Senior Federation convention conducted recently at the Falls Ballroom in Little Falls. Wenzel praised the work of the Senior Federation who, he said, "are working to make life a little better not only for yourselves, but for other older people". Over 300 senior citizens from counties in central Minnesota attended the convention.

Frankly, you must be concerned not just with wants or even getting any luxuries, but rather the elderly must fight for basic needs... an adequate income, food, clothing, housing, prescription medicine and the necessities of life", Wenzel commented.

The Reagan Administration came under special attack by Wenzel for its proposals to cut back on the Social Security system and to put the fuel assistance and weatherization programs on the chopping block.

"I believe President Reagan was very irresponsible", said Wenzel "when he proposed a 23 per cent reduction in benefits for all future retirees, and an immediate 40 per cent cut for those who retire at age 62. This proposal by the president breaks faith with not only the elderly Americans but all people — young, middle-aged, and the elderly who have paid into Social Secutity and expect the government to keep its contract with the American people. The Reagan retrenchments amount to a sneak attack on Social Security, they change the rules in the middle of the game and reverse a campaign promise Mr. Reagan made not to tamper with the system."

In his criticism of fuel assistance cuts, Wenzel warned that energy costs in some states could rise to almost $2,000 per household per year by next year.

Wenzel said the Reagan plan to eliminate the weatherization program was even more foolish and irresponsible. "Conservation is easily the cheapest energy source, and this program is probably one of the government's few cost-effective programs." Wenzel stated the National Council of Senior Citizens released a report June 2 stating than an average investment of $968 per home brought energy savings of 27 per cent. Ultimately, energy conservation will prove to be this country's greatest renewable resource. The Minnesota Energy Agency predicts that current conservation technology could reduce Minnesota's energy demand 20 per cent in the next 20 years.

Wenzel stressed his dedication to economy in government, and said we must "try to save and make more efficient and workable those programs which we believe to be necessary for the good of our country and society. But elimination of weatherization and fuel conservation by the Reagan administration is a good example of how counterproductive and insensitive the Reagan Administration is in areas such as Weatherization and fuel assistance for the elderly."

There is a need for more efficiency and less waste in the administration of government programs, but many of the proposed Reagan cuts will be very harmful in the long run to our economy, and to the future of our soceity," stated Wenzel.

The Little Falls legislator also deplored the president's proposed tax reductions which he said will not benefit all Americans equally. "Those individuals and couples with adjusted gross incomes under $15,000, which is more than half of all Americans filing, will receive less than 10 per cent of the total tax relief, whereas those with incomes of $50,000 or more, just over 4 per cent of those filing, will receive more than 30 per cent of the benefits.

Wenzel called attention to other Reagan cuts that will hurt other segments of American population such as his attempts to abolish the hot school lunch program, cut the student loan program, and draw back on housing subsidies so necessary to the elderly.

"One thing you, as seniors, must do is know how your representative in the legislature and Congress voted on the key issues affecting senior citizens and other vital issues," commented Wenzel. He noted that Congressman Arlan Stangeland voted 100 per cent in favor of the big oil companies, including voting for decontrol of oil and gas prices. "These votes by Congressman Stangeland very directly raised the prices of home-heating fuel for our senior citizens."

Rep. Wenzel also recently labeled "a moral outrage" Congressman Stangeland's recent vote in Congress to allow multinational corporations to market infant baby formulas in Third World Nations in violation of the U.N.'s World Health Organization efforts to set health standards for the distribution of the formula.

Wenzel said the senior citizens must insist upon in the political and governmental arena "an adequate base income for elderly Americans — and that means insisting upon a strong and financially solvent Social Security system — one that provides enough income to pay for the basics and the necessities of life — food, clothing, housing and medicine. People have worked a lifetime and paid into that pension program; we are rich enough as a nation to keep social security strong and sound — and for politicians to be now advocating reduced benefits to save the system, I say to them — let's cut the fat and generous pensions that members of Congress have voted for themselves."

Wenzel also said that in the field of health care for the elderly that "we must make certain that community-based health care facilities are maintained, and that health care be affordable. Public officials — federal and state — must not surrender to the relentless medical inflation that can bankrupt almost anyone and which also is breaking the budgets of government and the health insurance providers as well. Let us insist on real control over what doctors and hospitals can charge, and let us commit ourselves to insisting upon the fundamental principle that decent health care be made available to every American regardless of their income. We can do this in a country as rich as ours."

Wenzel concluded his remarks to the senior citizens quoting John Kennedy's words that "the test of a just and decent society is how it treats its elderly".

FLOWER ARRANGEMENT entered by Susie Thune of the Happy Acres 4-H club won grand championship honors at the Pennington county fair last week.

Kathy Skjerven In Teenworld Competition

Kathy Skjerven, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Skjerven of Plummer, has been selected for competition in the 1981 Teenworld state finals to be held at the Leamington hotel in Minneapolis at 7:30 p.m. August 22.

A 1981 graduate of Pershing high school at Plummer, Kathy was a member of the basketball and volleyball teams, school chorus and band. She was a basketball cheerleader, honor student and honor guard member. In addition, she was Miss Plummer of 1980.

Contestants age 14 to 18 in the Teenworld competition are judged on poise, personality, grooming and a speech or talent presentation as well as scholastic and civic achievements. Entrants must have a "B" or better cumulative grade average and document at least 10 hours of volunteer service to a community or charitable organization.

Kathy is sponsored in the event by Jerry's Plumbing and Heating.

MFU Examines Options To Ease Financial Pains

A full scale investigation into recent dramatic reductions in prices farmers are receiving for corn was called for recently by the Minnesota Farmers Union (MFU) board of directors during their summer meeting.

President Ronald Reagan and United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) could take several steps to alleviate the severe financial hardships farmers are experiencing, the directors pointed out, but to date nothing has been done.

Among the options would be to re-open the farmer-held grain reserve for corn, or to invoke the Emergency Credit Control Act of 1969 to reduce interest rates and allocate credit to agricultural production uses.

"Two potential causes for the recent drop in commodity prices should be examined," MFU President Cy Carpenter said. "USDA officials should look at the increasing use of 'price later' contracts within the grain industry, and also examine the high interest rates being charged on commodity loans by the Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC)."Corn loans in particular are maturing now. Many farmers are refinancing these loans, and the higher interest rates may force some farmers out of business.

In many areas of the Midwest, the directors agreed, farmers who can no longer afford to pay for the storage of their corn are forced to either sell at today's low pice or to use the so-called "price later" contact method.

"Price later" contracts are just like cash sales, except that no definite price is set. Farmers agree to sell their grain to a specified buyer, deliver the grain, and terminate ownership of the commodity. However, payment may be made during the next full year, at a market price on any given day to be chosen by the seller. Any time during that year, the selling farmer may take advantage of the current market price and request payment at that day's price. Price later sales are based on hopes that market prices will be higher during the coming year than on the date of sale.

"Price later contracts are unfair to farmers, in that they force farmers to finance the grain, while insuring inventory supplies to the buyer," Carpenter pointed out. "If that same buyer was forced to bid for grain on the open market, prices would surely be more equitable."

In addition, price later contracts reduce the effectiveness of market quotations when marketing decisions are made.

A second alternative that USDA could use to ease the current credit crunch would be to re-open the farmer held grain reserve for corn.

Board members asked that telegrams be sent to President Reagan, Secretary of Agriculture John Block, and members of the U.S. House and Senate agriculture committees, pointing out that high interest rates particularly hurt the producers of food and fiber because they cannot adjust their prices or investory, as other business people can.

"These decision-makers must be informed of the need to re-open the farmer-held reserve for corn, so that farmers will have an alternative to today's deteriorating markets," Carpenter said.

The directors represent more than 24,000 farming families in Minnesota who belong to the general farm organization.

New Airline's Smoking Section Will Never Get Off the Ground

DALLAS (UPI) — Smokers who want to light up while airborne will not like flying Muse Air, because the company is banning smoking from all its planes.

The intrastate airline begins service July 15 between Dallas and Houston.

Founder Lamar Muse said the airline is banning all smoking from its planes because passengers will appreciate "the absence of stale cigarette odor" in the aircraft.

Muse, who pioneered the highly successful Southwest Airlines a decade ago, said smokers who want to light up while airborne should fly competing airlines.

Muse said that for every passenger who requests a "smoking section," five others want to sit in a "no smoking" zone — including many smokers.

Could your children escape a fire in your home? Help them understand the danger of fire and smoke by practicing fire prevention at home. Show your family how to use towels or other thick fabrics to avoid inhaling smoke. With your children, develop several escape routes and other plans if escape is impossible. Teach your children how to survive a fire — before one starts in your home.

Exercise Is Important To Healthy Life

Physical fitness is a way of life. Unfortunately, many children and teenagers are not being taught to incorporate physical exercise and sensible eating habits into their life styles, according to physicians at a St. Paul hospital.

Lack of physical activity is directly related to a number of organic diseases. For example, the mortality rate for degenerative heart disease is twice as high in sedentary persons as it is in persons who have been physically active throughout their lives. Some other conditions also occur more often in inactive persons.

The medical director of emergency services at the hospital, says, "Preventing the onset of coronary artery diseases should begin during childhood with regular physical exercise and a diet that does not include excessive calories, carbohydrates and fats."

Recent studies show that when parents are concerned about good health practices their children will develop a similiar attitudes toward their health. So, parents should cultivate good physical and nutritional practices within the family unit.

Before participating in athletics, especially highly demanding, competitive and contact sports, a child or teenager should have a complete physical examination with emphasis on nerve, muscle and heart conditions that could interfere with participation.

The physician can identify any limitations in physical capacity, suggest suitable exercise programs and activities, and recommend appropriate diet and rest needs.

"A physical fitness program should be tailored to the individual," the St. Paul doctor says. "If a child or teenager doesn't have the ability or desire to participate in competitive interscholastic sports, he or she can participate in intramurals or in individual exercise programs."

An exercise program should include activities that have good carry-over value for later life. Long-term physical fitness should be cultivated by encouraging participation in individual sports, in addition to team sports participation. "The main idea is that young people do something that is fun because if they're not having fun, it won't be long before they quit," the doctor said.

Individual sports that are likely to lead to healthy activity patterns in adulthood include walking, running, swimming, skiing, racquetball, tennis and biking.

The individual's activities should be directed toward conditioning or toward the development of endurance. "Exercising vigorously three or four times a week is sufficient for cardiovascular benefits," the doctor says. "But I feel strongly that exercising every day also helps a person's frame of mind."

In short, a physical training program should be preceded by appropriate physical examinations and fitness tests. The program should be indivudualized according to needs and deficiencies of the young person. His or her probable future exercise pattern and the opportunities available for sports should be considered.

Health is an active state of physical and mental well-being. Physical activity and proper diet from an early age are significant factors in a healthy life.

Karate Show For Children At Library Wed.

Donald Dicken will perform the basic techniques of karate for children at the Northwest regional library at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday, July 29th.

Dicken began studying karate in high school under Don Koury, and received his black belt in Los Angeles, CA. He is currently a student at Moorhead state university, and plans to teach karate after he graduates.

Karate dates back as early as the 400's B.C. when Buddhist monks used a form of it to defend themselves against animals. It saw further development in the 1600's on the island of Okinawa when a Japanese clan passed strict laws against owning weapons. As a result, Okinawan's developed many of the techniques that we see in modern Karate. When Okinawa became a Japanese province in 1879, the techniques spread to Japan. After World War II, many servicemen stationed in the Far East brought the skills home with them.

Dicken will demonstrate the three main parts found in a Karate practice. They include Katas, a formal exercise combining a series of movements for a combat situation; Basics, including blocks and kicking; and Qumite which involves blocks used with an opponent.

To keep up the skill, Dicken practices three times a week for periods of two hours. He finds Karate to be good physical exercise, as well as a method of physical and mental discipline.

CETA Workers Paving Way To Employment

Most people "pound the pavement" looking for jobs, but for 14 Thief River Falls teenagers, "pounding the pavement" is their job, according to Pat Ueland of the Thief River Falls CETA office.

The group, employed by the city through the youth community conservation improvement project (YCCIP), is repairing sidewalks and installing handicapped accessibility ramps in a 22-block downtown area. In addition, the group is re-siding a local elementary school and several city garages.

YCCIP, which is funded by the Comprehensive Employment and Training act (CETA), provides city employment during the summer months to yough aged 16 to 19 who are unemployed.

Prior to beginning their fulltime summer jobs, the group received training in masonry and carpentry at the Thief River Falls area vocational technical institute. Some group members took classes to complete their high school education. CETA reimbursed the AVTI for training costs and pays the city for the group's wages and the wages of the group's three supervisors.

Pat Ueland, coordinator of the project, said the experience the youths are gaining is important. "They will have learned a trade and will be job-ready," Ueland said.

Included in the group this summer are Burton Dahle, Albert Fisher, Andrew Holmes, Greg Horachek, Bradley Jevne, Jeff Jevne, Curtis Johnson, Terry Knutson, Cindy Modoll, Norman Olson, Randy Olson, Robert Rowley, Kirby Schmidtgall and Marlene Sorenson. The group's supervisors are Curt Howe, Mark Jorgenson and Tom Mjelde.

For more information on the YCCIP program or other CETA job training programs, contact Pat Ueland at the Thief River Falls CETA Center, 318 North Knight Ave., P.O. Box 507, Thief River Falls, MN 56701, phone 681-7350.

Employers At Meeting Hear About Council

More than 28 Thief River Falls employers met on Wednesday at Lon's restaurant to learn about new programs to help them hire workers and save money.

The employers heard Rod Kragness present employment and training programs of the Balance of State Private Industry council.

Organized by Minnesota employers, the council sponsors program which offer employers cash reimbursements and tax credits when hiring workers.

Betty Walton of Mr. Duane's in Thief River Falls is a member of the council and hosted the meeting. It is one of several being held in cities throughout Minnesota during a two-month period to introduce employers to the council, its programs and its members.

For information, call Rod Kragness or Nancy Mathiason at the Thief River Falls CETA office, 318 No. Knight, 681-7350.

Commend TRF For Successful Blood Drive

Thief River Falls has once again sponsored a successful United blood services blood drive. According to Daryl Stensgaard, donor resources director at United blood services of the Upper Midwest in Fargo, "Thief River Falls had an outstanding turnout. Out of 90 people who volunteered to donate during the two days, 88 were able to give."

Clarice Collins organized the drive with assistance provided by members of the Northwestern bell telephone operators group, including Nancy Krohn, Lois Krause, Helen Rude, Joy Gillespie, Carolyn Haugen, Lavonne Ranum, Leona Kellerman, Benedicta Benoit, Jan Elleson, Mae Hjelle, Bev Wright, Carole Cloutier and Jan Henrickson, who assisted with recruiting and publicity, as well as on the day of the drive. Northwestern hospital provided space in the CNC chapel of the hospital to hold the drive.

"Communities like Thief River Falls make a regional blood program work," stated Stansgaard. "When we visit Thief River Falls, we are counting on the community to supply blood for 47 hospitals that day. All the other days when we are collecting blood in other communities, Thief River Falls is counting on them to provide the supply."

College, AVTI To Hold Tours

Mayor Bob Carlson has proclaimed August 3 as "Manitoba Days" to welcome Manitobans to Thief River Falls. In cooperation with this event, the Thief River Falls AVTI and Northland community college extend an invitation to the local public and Manitobans to tour the AVTI and NCC buildings. No appointment is necessary.

Dear Readers,

An elderly woman was fingering a knotted string. "Oh, this string is just the dearest thing to me. My grandmother taught me when I was a little girl to get a new string on each birthday. And then when something good happens, when God smiles on your life, you tie a knot in your string. Then when the days are dark and lonely, when despair is very real, you get out your string and remember the good times. Then the pain isn't so bad."

Respectfully,

Professional Theater

The six-member Pillow Theatre company will present "Les Fourberies de Scapin" (The Trickery of Scapin) on Sunday at 3:30 p.m. in a 30x60 tent erected at Floyd B. Olson park in downtown Thief River Falls. The story revolves around a 17th century French servant whose task it is to trick two self-possessed fathers into accepting the romantic choices their children have made without their consent.

"Add to this several cases of hidden identities, and elaborate network of lies and deceits and a batch of characters whose antics leap and spin, and you have the basis for the show," states a prepared summary of the event.

The Pillow Theatre company is being presented as an outreach effort by Bemidji state university and the Paul Bunyan Playhouse, Minnesota's oldest continuous-running professional summer theatre located in Bemidji.

E. Pomerenke Services Held Here Friday

Funeral services for Ewald Pomerenke, 88, of this city were held Friday at 10:30 a.m., at St. John Lutheran church. Pomerenke died Tuesday at Northwestern hospital.

Rev. Roger Raebel of Red Lake Falls officiated at the services. Organist and soloist was Mrs. Sherman Idso. Military honors were accorded by the Thief River Falls VFW post with the Green Funeral home in charge of arrangements. His body was donated to the University of North Dakota Medical center.

Pallbearers were Ray Aandal, Lowell Hanson, Wendell Olson, James Philipp, Billy Wayne and Kenneth Sanders.

Ewald Henry Pomerenke, a son of the late Adolph and Augusta Hedt Pomerenke, was born April 10, 1893 in Blue Earth county. At the age of six years, he moved with the family to Big Stone county. There he attended school and grew to manhood. He came to Pennington county, when he was 20 years, and started a store at Mavie.

He was a veteran of World War I. Following his discharge, he returned to Cloverleaf township, where he homesteaded and farmed for many years.

On Aug. 31, 1922, he was married at Mavie to Nattie Benfickson. The couple lived in Mavie, until Mrs. Pomerenke's death in 1934. From 1952 until 1969, he lived in Bemidji. Since then, he had made his home in Thief River Falls.

He was active in community affairs. He served as treasurer of the Mavie school for many years, was on the Soil Conservation board, the PCA board and was a member of the VFW and the World War I Barracks. While living in Mavie, he was a member of the Mavie Lutheran church and since coming to this city had been a member of St. John Lutheran church.

He is survived by one son, Eli Pomerenke, Phoenix, Ariz.; a daughter, Mrs. Kermit (Jean) Maidment, Thief River Falls; six grandchildren, a great-grandchild, three brothers: Oscar and Fred, both of Ortonville, and Reuben, Kansas City, Mo; and two sisters: Mrs. Clara Fuller, Balsam Lake, Wis., and Mrs. Laura Hemkelman, Ortonville.

One brother, Art, preceded him in death.

Mary Wiltse Services Held At Florian

Mary Ann Wiltse, 50, of Florian, died Monday afternoon, July 20, at Northwestern hospital in Thief River Falls. She had been in failing health for several years.

Mass of the resurrection for Mary Ann Wiltse was held at 10 a.m. Thursday, July 23 at the Assumption Catholic church, Florian. Rev. Frank Kulhawik officiated at the services. Interment was in the church cemetery with the Collins Funeral home of Karlstad in charge of arrangements.

Pallbearers were Jack, Joseph and Louis Rominski, Hilary Kuznia, Lambert Gratzek and Rudy Rogus. The rosary was recited at the church Wednesday evening with the P.N.A. rosary immediately following.

Mary Ann Rominski, the daughter of Kathryn and Andrew Rominski of Florian was born July 17, 1931 at Florian. She attended school and grew to womanhood in the Florian community and was baptized and confirmed in the Assumption Catholic church there.

On May 18, 1963 she was united in marriage to Alton Wiltse at Lison, ND. The couple made their home there for several years. Following her husband's death in February of 1981, Mrs. Wiltse became a resident of the Heritage Boarding home in Middle River.

Mrs. Wiltse was a member of the Assumption Catholic church of Florian and of the Polish National Alliance.

She is survived by her parents, two brothers: John Rominski, Florian and Thomas, Inver Grove Heights, and several nieces, nephews and cousins.

In addition to her husband, she was preceded in death by one sister.

Niilo Jokela Rites Held At Grygla On Sat.

Funeral services for Niilo Jokela, 71, of rural Grygla, were held Saturday at 2:00 p.m., at the Grace Lutheran church in Grygla. Jokela died Tuesday, July 21, at the CNC unit at Northwestern hospital.

Rev. Gene Broughton officiated at the services. Mrs. Joy Nordby was the organist and together with Mrs. Marie Anderson, sang two selections. Interment was in the Lone Oak cemetery at Fourtown with the Green Funeral home in charge of arrangements.

Honorary pallbearers were Ernest Selle, Herb Holthuson, Elmer Hendrickson, Arnie Kujanson, Barnett Benson, and Vernon Holthuson.

Serving as active pallbearers were Jack Holthuson, Wally Holthuson, Morris Thompson, Doug Miller, Melvin Englund and Donald Thomas.

Niilo Rudolph Jokela was born Sept. 3, 1909 in Minnie township of Beltrami county, to Finnish immigrants, John and Maria Broski Jokela. He attended school and grew to manhood in that community.

On Dec. 13, 1933, he was united in marriage to Lucille Burhart. The couple lived in Minnie township. While residing there, Jokela worked for the county. Later he went to Alaska and was employed there as heavy equipment mechanic.

On Dec. 20, 1967, he was married to Norma Norberg in Minneapolis. For the past years, they have lived in Minnie township.

He is survived by his wife, two sons: Neal of Biloxi, Miss.; and Richard, Coon Rapids; two daughters: Mrs. Ray (Judith) McKown, Crystal Lake, Ill., and Mrs. David (Jeanne) Lach, Mounds View; eight grandchildren, a great-granddaughter; one brother, Toiva Jokela, Wenatchee, Wash.; and three sisters: Mrs. Sydney (Linda) Fladeland, McGregory; Mrs. Alfred (Sylvia) Benson, Valley City, N.D., and Mrs. Sam (Julia) Hill, Wenatchee, Wash.

He was preceded in death by his parents and two sisters, Lilly and Aino.

Arnold Kruse Services Held At Halstad

Arnold M. Kruse, Sr., 73, of Halstad and formerly of the St. Hilaire community, died Tuesday at St. Luke's hospital in Fargo, N.D.

Funeral services for Arnold Kruse were held Friday at 2:00 p.m., at the Halstad Lutheran church with Rev. Howard Stewart officiating. Interment was in the Halstad cemetery. The Fredrikson Funeral home, Ada, was in charge of arrangements.

Arnold M. Kruse, a son of the late Christian and Catherine Gotterberg Kruse, was born Aug. 3, 1907 at Schlesweig, Iowa. In 1910, he moved with the family to St. Hilaire where he grew to manhood. He was married April 13, 1935 at Crookston to Arlene St. John. The couple farmed in Pennington county until 1948, when they moved into the village of St. Hilaire. In 1951, they moved to Halstad, where he worked for the city and the Halstad school system.

He is survived by his wife, four sons: Robert, rural Moorhead; Arnold, Jr., Maxbass, N.D.; Dennis, Halstad, and Steve, Fargo, N.D.; three daughters, Mrs. John (Beverly) Cousins, rural Moorhead; Mrs. David (Betty) Rein, Naples, Italy; and Mrs. Ron (Judy) Irwin, Napa, Calif.; 13 grandchildren; two brothers: Arlo, East Grand Forks, and Herman, Sacramento, Calif.; and three sisters: Mrs. Chester (Margaret) Swenson, Fargo; Mrs. Ray (Loretta) Maxson, Moorhead; and Mrs. Ida Hawe, San Francisco, Calif.

He was preceded in death by a granddaughter, one sister and three brothers.

Timothy Strand Services Held At Moorhead

Timothy Lynn Strand, 28, of Moorhead and formerly of Thief River Falls, died Monday, July 20, at Moorhead.

Funeral services for Timothy Strand were held Thursday at Wright's Funeral chapel at Moorhead. Rev. Julius Hovland, pastor of Trinity Lutheran church, Thief River Falls, officiated at the services. Interment was Friday at Fort Snelling National cemetery.

Timothy Lynn Strand, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Strand of this city, was born July 12, 1953 in Minneapolis. He attended school here, graduating from Lincoln high school with the class of 1971. He spent three years in the U.S. Army, serving most of that time in Alaska.

Following his marriage on June 12, 1976 at St. Hilaire to Grace Shand, he attended Moorhead State college, Northland Community college and the Thief River Falls AVTI. At the time of his death, he was living in Moorhead.

He is survived by his parents, a son, Jason of Moorhead; one sister, Mrs. Terrence (Debbi) Erickson, Moorhead; his grandmother, Mrs. Caroline Strand, Thief River Falls; and four nieces and nephews.

He was preceded in death by his grandfather, Ludvig Strand.

Thea Haugen Graveside Rites Held At Gatzke

Funeral services for Thea Bergitte Haugen, 86, formerly of Gatzke, were held Tuesday, July 21 at Our Savior's Lutheran church in Los Angeles, Calif. Miss Haugen died at the Solheim Lutheran home in Los Angeles, on Saturday morning.

Pastor Robert Amundson officiated at the graveside and interment services held at 10 a.m. on Friday at the Moose River cemetery near Gatzke. The Collins Funeral home of Middle River had charge of local arrangements.

Miss Haugen, daughter of the late John and Berit (Ostby) Haugen, was born Jan. 5, 1895, in Norman county. At the age of five years, she moved with her family to the Gatzke community, where she attended the former North Star college at Warren. Since 1924, she has made her home in the Los Angeles where she was employed as a seamstress for many years.

She is survived by one sister: Mrs. Meatha Towe, of Everett, Wash., and many nieces, nephews, and other relatives.

She was preceded in death by her parents, six brothers, and two sisters.

First state legislation permitting a state to attempt to settle a labor dispute was in Maryland in 1878, according to "Labor Firsts in America," a U.S. department of labor publication.

Bus Trip To Minneapolis Is Planned

Northwest Regional Library has announced plans for a bus trip to Minneapolis on Saturday and Sunday, September 19 and 20.

Plans for the trip include an afternoon at the renaissance festival. Festival is a reproduction of an authentic 16th century European marketplace on holiday. The people and customs of many lands are represented on a rolling, wooded 200 acres in the Minnesota river valley. Participants can expect to be entertained by characters in peasant homespun and regal velvets while watching craftsmen demonstrate the arts of long ago and listening to the minstrels strolling under the trees. In the late afternoon, participants will be transported to the Marquette hotel in downtown Minneapolis for an overnight stay.

On Saturday evening, participants will have a chance to dine at one of the fine area restaurants and, if they wish, attend an evening performance at the Guthrie Theater, Orchestra Hall, or the Children's Theater. All theater's are relatively close to the Marquette hotel, and may be reached by cab. Northwest Regional Library will reserve tickets at these theaters. Cost of tickets and cab fare is not, however, included in the trip fee.

Sunday morning, the group will travel to the Chanhassen Dinner Theatre for a brunch performance of Blithe Spirit: a comedy hit by Noel Coward, where a realm of delightful ghosts glide cheerfully through the scenes. They, as the humans they plague, are witty and mischievous. Following the performance, the bus will return to Thief River Falls, making a dinner stop in Detroit Lakes.

Bus will leave Thief River Falls at 6:30 a.m. on Saturday and return at approximately 11:00 p.m. on Sunday.

Cost of the trip will be $70.00 per person. This includes transportation; ticket to the renaissance festival; one night's lodging (double occupancy), and the brunch-performance at the Chanhassen. Reservations may be made by sending check with name, address, phone and rooming partner preference (if any) to: Northwest Regional Library, 101 East First Street, Thief River Falls, MN 56701. To meet reservation deadlines in Minneapolis, we ask that your reservations be in our library offices by Monday, August 24th. Reservations may also be made at any of the Northwest Regional Libraries in Red Lake Falls, Greenbush, Roseau, Warroad, Warren, Hallock, or the Northwest Regional Bookmobile. In case of cancellation, money will only be refunded if we can resell the ticket.

Durenberger Authors Energy Tax Credit Bill

Minnesota Republican Senator David Durenberger is attempting to show the Internal revenue service (IRS) the error of its ways — at least in one regard.

It all started in 1978 when Congress passed the Energy tax act which allowed tax credits for energy-saving equipment in the nation's residential, industrial and commercial sectors. The idea was to promote energy conservation nationwide.

But the commercial sector got slighted. The bill provided tax credits only when stores, restaurants and hotels introduced energy-control systems.

Then to make matters worse, IRS got into the act. It ruled last January that commercial businesses could take credit only if the equipment is used in processing or manufacture. They sell goods and services.

So provisions were made to help home and factory save energy, but what about the store on Main Street? In fact, stores, restaurants and hotels account for 14.8 per cent of the nation's energy consumption.

"Congress intended to encourage business to introduce equipment which would conserve energy, but through a combination of oversights and misinterpretations, its laudable intention was obstructed," said Sen. Durenberger.

So, this spring, the Senator introduced another "energy tax credit" bill that would provide additional incentives for increasing energy efficiency in commercial operations and buildings.

Specifically, his legislation is divided into two parts; the first segment expands the list of items included as available for the tax credit and includes commercial business among the grops to which a credit is available. In the second part of the bill, Durenberger provides eligibility or tax credit to both the industrial and commercial sectors for installing energy-saving insulation. Currently, only the homeowner is allowed a tax credit for insulation.

Sen. Durenberger's bill would also increase the credit allowance from 10 to 20 per cent for commercial equipment such as computerized systems which coordinate energy usage and energy redistribution systems. Additionally, conversions for reducing energy consumed in refrigeration equipment and several other types of energy-saving devices would also qualify.

Sen. Durenberger's legislation was drafted after consultation with the committee for commercial energy conservation, a group of commercial business associations including the food marketing institute (FMI), national restaurant association, the hotel and motel associations and the food service equipment association.

"By excluding energy intensive businesses such as supermarkets, restaurants or hotels, from energy tax credits, IRS does a disservice to the American consumer," said Sen. Durenberger.

According to the Senator, the bill is very inclusive and specific and would contain the widest spectrum of commercial business. One of the Senator's aids noted, "we didn't want to leave anything out that the IRS would then try to disqualify later."

Sen. Durenberger said, "The energy tax credit can be a powerful incentive to reduce the amount of energy used in the United States. Energy saved in commercial buildings is an achievement that is worthy of national attention and encouragement."

The bill, S.1288, has been introduced and sent to the Senate finance committee. While no hearings have been scheduled to date, the finance committee is expected to consider the legislation this fall.

GSL Continues Until Budget Cuts Effected

Senator Rudy Boschwitz said today that banks need not fear losses when making federally-guaranteed loans to students who will attend classes next term.

The senator's office has recently been flooded with calls and letters from bankers, students and parents worried about how GSL's will be affected by budget cuts.

"The senate subcommittee on education confirmed that the GSL program changes will not occur until after the budget cuts become law," Boschwitz said. "The conference committee agreed to that last night."

The committee, ironing out differences between the Senate and House versions of the reconciliation resolution, decided to have the federal government continue to pay student loan origination fees until students pick them up 10 days after the cuts become law.

Banks which were worried about having to foot that bill between July 1 and that time stopped processing GSL's last week.

The conference committee also agreed to require students from families with incomes over $30,000 to establish need. The needs test will become effective October 1

To Study Why Nurses Won't Quit Smoking

Most health professionals try to provide good, healthy role models for their patients, especially concerning cigarette smoking. As an example, 55 to 65 per cent of doctors, pharmacists and dentists have quit smoking, compared to a 43 per cent quit rate for the total male population.

But nurses, who represent over one-half of the work force in the health professions have a quit rate of only 36 per cent, a figure only marginal above the female population's quit rate of 34 per cent. In addition, the prevalence of smoking among nurses is way above the national average for women.

Why do nurses who see the effects of bad health habits every day continue to smoke? Two University of Minssota researchers, Bernadine Feldman, associate professor in the school of nursing, and Elaine Richard, assistant professor in the school of public health, hope to find out. Their study will follow 24 smoking nurses over one year.

Women in general have more difficulty quitting smoking than men do but no one knows why, Feldman said.

"It may be because women vacillate more in their decision making than men do," said Eileen Rotman, founder of UNSMOKE, a group behavior modification program that will be part of the study. "When men decide to quit, they seem to have more success at it than women do."

The results of an all-female pilot group at UNSMOKE were "dismal" compared to results of mixed groups or all male groups, Rotman said. Of 12 group members, only two quit. By comparison, in mixed groups 35 per cent of the members usually succeed. Smoking abstinence during the 12-month follow-up period was also far lower in the all-women group.

The reason many women and especially nurses can't quit smoking may be tied to traditional women's issues. "All the factors related to women in society — submissiveness, passivity, dealing with men on a paternalistic basis — create a 'double whammy' for nurses because of their submissive relationships with doctors," Feldman said. The stress of nursing may also have an effect since nurses in a stressful clinical setting smoke more than nonclinical nurses do.

Nurses who would like to volunteer for the study may call Elaine Richard or Bernadine Feldman at the university.

Late Summer Alfalfa Seeding Is Possible

There is still time this summer to establish alfalfa stands that will produce high yields next year, according to forage experts. Many alfalfa growers who plant alfalfa in the next several weeks can have it growing well by winter.

Late summer seeding has some advantages over spring seeding:

(1) It provides a second chance to establish an alfalfa crop if spring seeding failed, if farmers couldn't get into the field last spring, or if stands were lost because of floods, diseases or insects;

(2) Farmers can, and usually should make late summer seedings without a companion crop;

(3) There should be little or no weed problem;

(4) An opportunity for additional crop production of grain or silage by planting alfalfa after early maturing grain crops have been harvested.

Follow these recommendations to avoid problems with late summer seedings:

+ Be careful about the planting date. Critical last dates for summer seedings in northern U.S.A. are early to mid-August. Early seedings are generally more vigorous and successful. Seedings made later than this are subject to winter injury.

Check with local extension agronomist for special state recommendations.

+Careful planting is a must. Place the seed in the top half inch of soil.

+Dry weather is the big enemy of late summer seedings. Prepare a good seedbed; then roll it before and after planting. Moisture moves upward more easily in a firmly packed seedbed.

+Know fertility requirements. There's no substitute for a soil test to tell what soils need. Check very carefully the lime requirements as well as phosphorous and potassium needs.

+Plant the best alfalfas available.

+Plant at normal seeding rates.

+The best bet is to leave out the companion crop altogether. However, on sloping land, a light seeding of oats may hold the soil until the alfalfa is established. Later, frost will usually kill the oats.

+Do not graze or clip the stand the seeding year.

Late summer seedings are like any other plantings; good practices pay off. Doing one thing right isn't enough. It takes a complete program for consistent success.

Most Cars Pass Gas Economy Test In TRF

Majority of vehicles tested in the Thief River Falls area are using fuel efficiently, according to tests conducted Wednesday, July 22, by Minnesota AAA.

Of the 159 vehicles tested, 61 per cent passed, according to Glen Krenz and Dave Swanson, district managers for Minnesota AAA in the area.

"Most test failures were caused by simple things — an improperly adjusted carburetor, a dirty air filter or a faulty ignition," says Swanson. "Approximately 31 per cent failed due to carburetion problems — the major reason for failure."

During the three-minute test, samples of the car's exhaust were analyzed to determine the amounts of wasted gasoline and pollutants being emitted.

Thief River Falls is one of approximately 75 sites selected for the AAA gas economy tests which are being conducted throughout the state this year as a public service of Minnesota AAA. An expected 8,000 vehicles will be tested during this summer, bringing the total number of vehicles tested by AAA to over 58,000 since 1972.

How Important Are Polls?

Aside from the fact that they are frequently inaccurate indicators, public opinion polls accomplish nothing toward getting things done. We have long been concerned about how poll questions are phrased, which people are asked the questions and the manner in which complex issues are condensed into simplistic answers.

Poll results are interesting for their inaccuracy as much as their accuracy. They tell us something about the willingness of the American people to change their minds as well as make definite decisions. But former U.S. President Harry Truman made perhaps the best comment on polls which we have ever read.

"I wonder," Truman said, "how far Moses would have gone if he'd taken a poll in Egypt? What would Jesus Christ have preached if he had taken a poll in Isreal? Where would the reformation have gone if Martin Luther had taken a poll?

"It isn't polls or public opinion of the moment that counts. It is right and wrong and leadership — men with fortitude, honesty and belief in the right that makes epochs in the history of the world."

Too Eager To Strike

Following editorial is from the Bemidji Pioneer:

Monday's strike of some 18,000 state workers, while not a surprise, was a disappointment.

The three-to-one vote in favor of striking, the failure to seriously consider advancing the strike deadline and the presence of only a few complaints with any real merit leave an impression of workers eager to strike — no matter what.

We are also bothered by what seems a rather flippant attitude toward those who will suffer during this strike, and one wonders what logic was used when legislators agreed that workers at state hospitals were "non-essential," and able to strike so easily.

That was a fear we had when the 1980 legislature relaxed the rules for public employees strikes, and the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees wasted no time in exercising this power.

At issue, in the financial sense of it, is a state offer of $85 million, just under nine percent, and a union demand for $135 million. Not much thought is needed to assess which is the fairer position — especially in view of past salary increases, cost-of-living increases and fringe benefits, the likes of which are enjoyed by few others in the work force.

The largest single issue in this has also become an emotional one. The cost of hospitalization insurance has increased, though the state has said it will keep its contributions (on behalf of the employees) at a lower percentage. Thus, much of this increase would be borne by the employees.

To hear state employees describe this, one cannot help becoming sympathetic to their cause. What is not a part of that conversation, however, though certainly applicable, is the full spectrum of state benefits — including one of the most generous retirement programs to be found. Another point that has to be considered is the inseparable link between state finances and negotiations with its employees. This is a reality that unions never seem to acknowledge, somehow believing and conveying to the public that there is somewhere a treasure chest that has been unjustly denied them.

Minnesota state finances are in trouble, and past generosities toward state employees are certainly one element of the cause. When one considers the rather drastic cuts made this year in many state programs while at the same time we are being forced to raise our taxes and borrow still more funds to pay the state's bills, it would not have been altogether unreasonable to have considered a two-year freeze on salaries.

Instead, the state has offered something more than an eight per cent increase, boosting the salaries by $85 million, with a cost-of-living increase to follow on July 1, 1982. While this is not as lucrative as some groups have obtained, notably teachers, it does compare favorably with settlements reached in other states — including some without benefits enjoyed by Minnesota employees.

All in all, we feel the majority of the union membership seized this leverage a bit too hastily and without an objective view of what's involved. We also suspect that an extension of the strike deadline would have produced as good a settlement as what will follow the strike — without anyone, such as residents of state hospitals, being made to suffer for it.

Cutting Back Funds For Former Presidents

Following editorial is from the Grand Rapids Herald-Review:

Newspapers have recently carried stories about Richard M. Nixon's latest move to sumptuous quarters, Gerald Ford's participation in celebrity golf tournaments and Jimmy Carter's decision to start speaking out against the Reagan administration.

Ex-presidents are newsworthy — and extremely costly to maintain in the luxury they so willingly accepted as part of the presidency. So many services and allowances have been provided for former presidents and their families that Senate legislation has been introduced to curb the spending growth.

Sen. Lawton Chiles (D-FL) and Sen. David Pryor (D-AR) are sponsoring the Former Presidents Facilities and Services Reform Act of 1981 to limit spending in three major areas: operating expenses for presidential libraries, office and staff allowances, and Secret Service protection for former presidents, their spouses or widows and minor children.

Former presidents cost U.S. Taxpayers $65,000 a year in 1955 — and almost $22,000,000 in 1981. Fromer presidents, spouses and children who are still supported by or receive protection from the federal government are Jimmy, Rosalyn and Amy Carter, Gerald and Betty Ford, Richard and Pat Nixon, Lady Bird Johnson and Bess Truman. All of the adults — with the possible exception of Mrs. Truman — have far more wealth than they need to support an extremely comfortable life style.

Maintaining presidential libraries is an increasingly heavy burden on taxpayers. There is no limit to costs allowed today. The bill would limit the size of any presidential library, with enough space for archival records and a modest museum. But construction of the extravagant structures in vogue today would be barred. There is much in the way of records and souvenirs from a presidency which should be preserved.

A ceiling would be placed on staff allowances for a former president. Use of office funds for partisan political activities or for income-gathering activities would be banned.

Former presidents have reaped vast profits from publishing their memoirs. A former president could only use government funds to prepare his memoirs if he agreed to have them published in the Government Printing Office, with all proceeds going to the U.S. Treasury. Under present conditions, a past president can use government funds no matter where the memoirs are published and keep the profits from the sales.

Secret Service protection would be provided for each ex-president for his first eight years out of office. It would be given only for periods of "Actual threat" after that. Secret Servicemen hover around an ex-president for the rest of his life now, and children receive it as long as they are minors. The new bill would halt protection for a spouse six months after the president's death. Minor children would be protected only to the extent it is connected with protection of a former president.

Watching presidents wrinkle and age on the TV screen is graphic proof of the strain and the pressures of the White House. They should be well-paid and assured of secure futures. This proposed legislation, however, takes a much-needed look at some of the economies which could reasonably be effected.

Borrowed Nonsense:

Lars was visiting the big city when two thugs jumped him. He put up a terrific struggle but was finally subdued. The battered and exhausted assailants were amazed at the small amount of money in his pockets. "You put up that kind of a fight to save 87 cents?" they asked. "Shucks, no," Lars puffed. "I thought you were after the $500 in my left shoe."

A Kentucky hillbilly who had done well in the moonshine business died and left his estate in trust for his wife. She can't touch a penny of it until she's 14.

MD Ass'ns. Programs At Record Levels

Combined national and local expenditures of the Muscular Dystrophy Association (MDA) reached an all-time high of $77,872,480 in 1980, a 14.7 per cent increase over the previous year, Mrs. Kermit Harmon, president of MDA's Red River Valley chapter, announced.

Of every dollar spent by MDA last year, 80.7 cents went directly to benefit patients, their families, and the community, according to the year-end audit of consolidated national and local expenditures prepared by Ernst & Whitney, certified public accountants, Harmon stated.

In 1980, the association's fund-raising achievement provided a total of $73,889,869 surpassing the previous years record high by $3.7 million. More funds were spent on MDA's programs than ever before, but due to rapidly rising costs, especially in the area of extensive free medical services MDA provides, expenditures on programs and related services exceeded income.

Expenditures for program services in 1980 were a record $62,905,122. Services include worldwide research; free diagnostic, therapeutic, and orthopedic care; patient recreation; professional education and training; and public health education. The largest single program expenditure — $36,628,265 — was for medical services. The sum of $20,437,493 was spent for MDA's worldwide basic and clinical research program. Expenditures for professional education and training totaled $1,889 million, and $3,939,503 was devoted to public health education.

Ernst & Whitney audit determined that only 16.5 per cent of MDAs 1980 expenditures — $12,808,188 — went for combined national and local fund-raising costs and that 2.8 per cent — $2,161,170 — was used for adminstrative and general purposes.

"MDA continues to maintain one of the best ratios of expenditures for program services to those for fund raising and management in the voluntary health agency field," Harmon said.

During 1980, more than 220 free MDA outpatient clinics served patients afflicted with any of the 40 neuromuscular diseases covered under MDA's programs. Additionally, MDA supported ongoing research at its ten major university-based research centers and nearly 800 individual research projects worldwide.

Says Farm Land Shouldn't Be Disposal Site

All 30.6 million acres of land in agriculture should be exempt when it comes to siting hazardous waste disposal facilities, the president of the Minnesota Farm Bureau said this week.

Merlyn Lokensgard, St. Peter cash crop and livestock farmer, commented on the Minnesota waste management board's eliminating only Class I agricultural land from consideration as it studies 2,800 square miles of land in 24 counties as potential disposal locations.

"Farmers are aware of the need for safely disposing hazardous materials," Lokensgard said, "but in a state with a land area of 79,289 square miles, we think such disposal sites could, and should, be placed in remote or sparsely populated areas, or on state-owned land." The department of natural resources (DNR) alone, he pointed out, owns some 5.2 million acres, much of which is considered non-productive.

Public land and other areas now unsuitable because of peculiar groundwater and soil characteristics might well be adapted to hazardous waste disposal site use, the state Farm Bureau spokesman said. It may be "more practical and less costly" to condition them to accommodate toxic substances, Lokensgard said. Alterations such as excavating, earth moving and re-filling, replacement of porous rock and water flow diversion may be feasible, he said.

"A lot of bulldozing and hauling of dirt, rock, sand or whatever can be done much more inexpensively than acquiring productive farmland, its high price per acre what it is today," added Lokensgard.

Farm Bureau, Lokensgard said, is concerned with the rapid rate at which farmland is disappearing. "Nationally, we're converting it (farmland) to non-agricultural uses at the rate of some five million acres a year," he observed. In Minnesota, three million acres of farmland has been taken from food and fiber production since 1970, he said.

TRF-EGF Legion Series

Friday's scheduled Thief River Falls vs. East Grand Forks semifinal game in the Northwest American Legion baseball league sub district tournament shapes up to be a dandy ball game for spectators who plan to take in the tournament doubleheader on the Thief River Falls fairgrounds diamond that will also match No. 1 seeded regular season league champion Crookston against either Newfolden or Warroad. Those two teams meet Tuesday in an elimination game to round out the four-team sub district semifinals.

Sub district championship game will be played here Saturday.

Thief River Falls edged East Grand Forks 2-1 Thursday when rightfielder Kevin Sanders cut down the tying run at the plate with two out in the bottom of the seventh inning. Catcher Dave Kays fielded the ball and put on the game-saving tag at the plate.

It was the second time this summer Kays has been directly involved in deciding the outcome between the two spirited baseball rivals. Playing here June 25, a 3-3 tie was shattered when Kays hit a full-count home run in the bottom of the seventh inning to give Thief River Falls a 4-3 victory over East Grand Forks.

Northland Football

Preparing to start his second season as head football coach at Northland community college, John Helley feels he has had a successful recruiting season and is enthusiastic about the start of pre-season drills September 1.

Fifteen returning sophomores are expected to report for equipment August 29, along with 45-to-50 freshmen.

Returning lettermen are led by captains Mike Busse (Mahnomen), Mark Stock (Mahnomen), John Dillon (TRF) and Mike Punton (Baudette).

One of the top freshmen is expected to be quarterback-defensive back Scott Wiebolt of Thief River Falls. Several Lincoln high school graduates have indicates they will play football at Northland this fall. Helley, who emphasizes recruiting area players, also has been notified that recruits who have registered for school here hail from Roseau, Twin Valley, Redby, East Grand Forks, Red Lake Falls, Goodridge, Strandquist, McIntosh-Winger, Grygla, Gatzke, Crookston, Erskine, Oklee, Plummer, Mahnomen, Warroad, Gonvick-Trail, Lancaster, Argyle and Newfolden, along with student-athletes from Wadena, LeSueur, Canby, Wabasha, Minot, ND, Calumet, MI, Oak Park, MI, Kenai, AK and Kasilof, AK.

Helley figures Northland will be improved over last year's 1-7-1 team. He'll find out in a hurry how much the Northmen will be improved as they open their 1981 season Saturday, September 12, at home against perennial power Golden Valley Lutheran, then go on the road Saturday, September 19, to face area rival Crookston.

Rest of the schedule, which features all Saturday afternoon games, includes Sept. 26 at Mesabi; Oct. 3 vs. Vermilion; Oct. 10 vs. Hibbing; Oct. 17 at Fergus Falls; Oct. 24 vs. Itasca; and Oct. 31 at Brainerd.

Helley's 1981 coaching staff will include hold-over John Anderson, along with newcomers Joe Ranum and Tom Przybylski.

Miscellaneous

+Newly-completed $7,000 baseball diamond at Fertile was damaged by vandals whose vehicles left ruts in both the infield and outfield areas.

+ Bemidji American Legion baseball team, 1-1-1 vs. Thief River Falls this summer, will be the host team for the Sixth District sub district playoffs Thursday when Bemidji plays Wedena and Staples meets the winner of today's (Monday) Sebeka-Park Rapids elimination game. Staples was the regular season sub district champion with a 7-1 record, followed by Wadena 5-3, Bemidji 3-3-1, Park Rapids 2-5 and Sebeka 1-6-1. Bemidji and Sebeka played to a scoreless nine-inning tie that was ended by darkness last week.

+ Detroit Lakes will lose two very promising athletes due to the fact that their fathers have taken employment in other communities, reports Ralph Anderson. Chad Meyhoff, a fine baseball catcher and hockey goaltender, will move to Helena, Mont., while Dan Gulden, an excellent baseball player, is moving to Brown Valley. Meyhoff, the regular catcher for the Detroit Lakes American Legion baseball team isn't expected to complete the current season for the defending Ninth District champions.

TRF Stops EGF 2-1 For Second Place Finish

Beaten 3-1 by title-clinching Crookston the night before, Thief River Falls bounced back to wrap up a runner-up finish in the 1981 Northwest American Legion baseball league standings Wednesday with a down-to-the-wire 2-1 victory at East Grand Forks.

It was Thief River Falls' second one-run win of the year over East Grand Forks, completing a 6-2 Northwest League season that also included two-game sweeps over Warroad and Newfolden, along with a pair of losses to pennant-winning Crookston.

A third Thief River Falls-East Grand Forks meeting will be staged Friday when the two teams meet in the Northwest League Sub District tournament playoff semifinals, scheduled to be played on the Thief River Falls fairgrounds diamond. Crookston will meet the winner of a Tuesday night Newfolden-Warroad elimination game in Friday's other semifinal. Friday's winners advance to the 1981 Ninth District American Legion tournament, although a sub district title game will be played here Saturday.

Thief River Falls right-hander Delray Ness pitched three-hit shutout baseball for six-and-one-third innings Wednesday, working on a 2-0 lead in the bottom of the seventh when East Grand Forks threatened to send the game into extra innings.

Tim Roche doubled to start the seventh-inning challenge and moved to third when Ness was called for a balk. Jeff Strandell struck out, but Todd Christiansen, the No. 8 hitter, walked on five pitches.

Brad Buck, the losing pitcher and the No. 9 hitter in the East Grand Forks line-up came through with a two-out single that scored Roche, but also ended the game in dramatic fashion when Christiansen, representing the tying run, was thrown out at the plate by rightfielder Kevin Sanders' strike to catcher Dave Kays.

Thief River Falls scored single runs in the fourth and seventh innings.

In the fourth, Sanders singled with one out, stole second and scored on a two-out error by third baseman Jim Stallmo on a ball hit by Steve Bengtson.

Winning run crossed the plate in the seventh when Jim Hallamek reached base on another error by Stallmo and eventually scored on a two-out single by Greg Harder.

Area MSHSL Rules Meetings Are Planned

First of six area Minnesota State High School League (MSHSL) rules interpretation meetings for coaches and officials will be a session dealing with boys and girls swimming Tuesday, August 25, in room 215 at Fergus Falls junior high school.

Wednesday, August 26, will be the date for rules interpretation meetings on football at Crookston and on volleyball at Thief River Falls.

Thief River Falls will also host rules interpretation meetings Tuesday, October 27, for hockey; Tuesday, November 10, for boys and girls basketball; and Tuesday, March 16, for baseball and softball.

All rules interpretation meetings start at 7:30 p.m.

Dry Spell Hits Canadian Duck Breeding Areas

"Three years of severe drought on Canada's prairies has parched wetlands to an extent reminiscent of the crippling 1960 dry spell when water conditions teetered perilously close to the Dust Bowl dryness of the 1930s," said Bob Marcotte, president of the 44-year-old Ducks Unlimited organization. Marcotte went on to say that because over 70 per cent of North America's 100 million-plus waterfowl depend on Canadian wetlands for survival, prolonged drought in these breeding areas can severely diminish continental duck production.

A recent U.S.-Canadian government survey shows that pond counts this spring across the prairies are the lowest on record (from a recorded high of 6.8 million ponds to the present low of 1.4). "As grim as it looks," said Marcotte, "it's reassuring to know that 70 per cent of DU's over 1,000 prairie projects are holding water for the birds." Marcotte said that the drought, despite its temporary negative effects, did help impress upon a young generation of Canadian farmers (who did not struggle through the Dust Bowl days) just how important water conservation is to the long-term productivity of their land.

"Biologically speaking," Marcotte added, "drought is a natural and necessary phenomenon on the prairies. In fact, many marshes would become stagnant and infertile were it not for the periodic drying of the land which allows nutrients to be released for plant and animal use."

Ducks Unlimited's president went on to say that although the rains did come in time to save the prairie farmer this year, they arrived too late for the producing of ducks, causing many birds to overfly the pothole region to less productive areas further north.

COCA-COLA CATCHER Bill McGann had to stretch to come up with a wide throw as Consumer's Co-op base runner Terry Dyrdal completed a slide across the plate in the fifth inning of Thursday's Division II game in the Thief River Falls men's slow pitch softball action. Consumer's Co-op solidified its hold on second place with a 12-7 win.

TRF Splits With Detroit Lakes, Fergus Falls . . .

Legion Team Ends With 18-12-1 Season Record

Thief River Falls American Legion baseball team completed a 19-12-1 regular season record by coming up with a pair of doubleheader splits on the road over the weekend.

The back-to-back twinbills started with a 7-6 Thief River Falls victory over Detroit Lakes Friday before the defending Ninth District American Legion champions claimed a 1-0 second game win.

Playing Fergus Falls Saturday, Thief River Falls dropped a 4-2 first game decision but bounced back to finish with an 8-0 shutout.

TRF 7
Detroit Lakes 6

Buoyed by a four-run fifth inning, Thief River Falls carried a 7-2 lead into the bottom of the seventh inning in the opener at Detroit Lakes Friday. The win didn't come that easy, though, as Detroit Lakes shaved it to 7-6 and had the tying run at third base before Thief River Falls finally got out of the inning.

A lead-off home run by Steve Bengtson in the second inning and RBI singles by Kevin Sanders and Kerry Wollin in the third gave Thief River Falls a 3-0 start.

It was 3-2 when Thief River Falls broke it open in the fifth. The five base hits that inning included an RBI single by Bengtson and a three-run home run by Jeff Cwikla.

Detroit Lakes collected three of its five base hits in its seventh inning comeback that also included two of Thief River Falls' four errors.

After collecting 15 base hits in the opener, Thief River Falls managed just one hit — a one-out fourth inning bunt single by Scott McKeever — in losing the second half of Friday's twinbill 1-0.

In fact, McKeever was the only Thief River Falls base runner in the scheduled five-inning affair in which Detroit Lakes put two of its three base hits off McKeever together in the second inning for the game's only run.

Fergus Falls 4

Fergus Falls snapped a 2-2 tie with a pair of runs in the top of the seventh inning to beat Thief River Falls 4-2 in the first half of Saturday's doubleheader.

A walk, a fielder's choice play and single by Al Barry loaded the bases in the seventh. Bob Roers' single broke the tie and left the bases loaded. A full-count walk issued to Charley Westby brought in an insurance run.

Thief River Falls scored in the first inning when Scott McKeever reached base on a fielder's choice, stole second and scored on a two-out single by Kevin Sanders.

Errors in the third and fifth innings scored two Fergus Falls runs, with Thief River Falls tying it in the bottom of the fifth on a single by Jim Hallamek, an error and a run-scoring wild pitch.

Tim Bottem, who has spent most of the summer with the Thief River Falls Elks Babe Ruth team, made a mound appearance for the American Legion squad in Saturday's doubleheader nightcap and shut out Fergus Falls 8-0 on three hits.

Thief River Falls jumped out to a 3-0 first inning lead on an RBI single by Kevin Sanders and a two-run error on a ball hit by Dave Kays.

It ballooned to 7-0 in the third when Sanders had an RBI triple as part of a four-hit inning. Final run crossed the plate in the sixth.

OUTDOOR TOPICS
by Bob Brewster
MERCURY OUTDOOR CONSULTANT

In the old days fishermen had some foul-smelling concoctions to ward off insects. Often these repellents offended other humans more than they did mosquitoes.

Today, thankfully, things have changed. The bugs are still around, and in plentiful numbers, but the wizardry of chemical engineering has produced a group of insect repellents that really work. Still, it's not pleasant to have a mosquito zipping around three inches from your ear waiting for the repellent to wear off so he can zoom in and hit the target. Here are some tips from the outdoor recreation department at Mercury outboards that will be helpful to fishermen, campers and others who enjoy being outdoors, but who don't want to fight insects.

Insect repellent sprays or oils should be applied to clothing rather than to your skin. Sweat soon breaks down the composition of the repellent and it quickly becomes ineffective. It will last much longer when applied to cloth, so a long-sleeved shirt, trousers, and a hat make sense when in mosquito country.

Boat campers should pitch their tent where the wind blows. Stay away from heavily-forested areas, and try to find a site where the prevailing breeze is from the water.

Campfire smoke also helps keep bugs away. Although no one likes to be in the direct path of smoke, you can locate the fire so smoke from it will drift through the campsite.

Spray the inside of your tent with insect repellent about 30 minutes before going to bed. This will rid it of any mosquitoes that may have sneaked in and are waiting, and will provide relief most of the night.

13-Year-Olds Lose State Meet Starts

Thief River Falls struggled through one bad inning in both starts over the weekend to drop out of the 12-team, double-elimination state Babe Ruth baseball tournament for 13-year-olds being played at Minnetonka.

In an opening round 7-5 loss to Brooklyn Center Friday night, Thief River Falls carried a 5-2 lead into the sixth inning before surrendering five runs on two hits, two walks and three errors.

Thief River Falls had snapped a 2-2 tie in the fourth on a two-run triple by Billy LeTourneau, who scored himself on a suicide squeeze bunt by Al Erickson.

The hits were even at five apiece, but Thief River Falls was charged with six of the game's eight errors. Losing pitcher Kevin Nelson walked four and struck out four.

In a 7-1 defeat at the hands of Morris in the loser's bracket Sunday afternoon, Thief River Falls gave up five first inning runs on just one base hit, a walk and four errors.

Thief River Falls out-hit Morris 4-3 but could only come up with a single second inning run. Losing pitch David Onkka walked two and struck out three.

"We had two bad innings," explained Thief River Falls coach Scott Bergland. "If it wouldn't have been for those two innings we'd still be down there playing."

Bergland and the rest of the team's followers took pride in Thief River Falls' efforts against a tournament field made up almost entirely of all-star teams made up from the various Babe Ruth leagues across the state. Thief River Falls chose not to follow that available route.

"There wasn't a team down there we couldn't beat," noted Bergland. "We were close to everybody."

Thief River Falls finished the year with a 20-5 record.

HAVING FORCED OUT Consumer's Co-op runner Pat Putz, Coca-Cola second baseman Jim Olson tried to complete a double play with a throw to first base in the second inning of Thursday's Thief River Falls men's slow pitch softball action game between a pair of teams battling for second place in the Division II standings behind the St. Hilaire Bears, the runaway division leaders. Olson didn't get the double play and Coca-Cola didn't get the win, either as Consumer's Co-op triumphed 12-7.

Elks Defeat Independents To Earn State Tournament Berth

In another all-Thief River Falls final, the Elks defeated the Independents 6-4 Thursday to win the Lake Agassiz Babe Ruth District baseball tournament at Roseau, earning a berth in the 1981 Babe Ruth state tournament for 14-15-year-olds.

The Bruce Williams-coached Elks will play host Chaska at 7 p.m. Friday in opening round state tournament play.

District tournament at Roseau, matching the top two finishers in the North and South Half Lake Agassiz Sub District tournaments played the previous week in a double-elimination format, began Wednesday with the Elks beating Roseau 15-2 and the Independents knocking off Sprague 7-3.

In the second round later that same day, the Elks shut out the Independents 4-0 while Roseau eliminated Sprague 8-5. The Independents ousted Roseau 10-1 in a loser's bracket game Thursday afternoon before falling to the Elks in the finals that night 6-4.

It was the third time the two city rivals met in tournament finals this summer. The Elks, who won a pair of regular season games from the Independents, took a 4-1 nine-inning victory in the championship game of the annual Thief River Falls Elks invitational. The Independents pulled off a mild upset by beating the Elks twice in the double elimination South Half Lake Agassiz Sub District tournament, 5-2 in the first round and 4-3 in an eight-inning final.

Independents coach Charlie Cornell will join the Elks as an assistant coach at the state tournament. The Elks will take a 25-5 record to Chaska. The Independents finished 21-9.

Elks 15, Roseau 2

Every Thief River Falls starter had at least one base hit and six of them finished with two hits as the Elks routed host Roseau 15-2 in the tournament opener.

The winners had a 15-6 base hit advantage, with Todd Ortloff, who was among those with two hits, driving in five runs. Winning pitcher Brian Garceau walked two and struck out five. Roseau had four of the game's five errors.

Independents 7, Sprague 3

Independents defeated Sprague 7-3 in a first round match-up, taking a 3-1 lead and making it 6-1 in the third when Joe Blankenfeld had a bases-loaded fielder's choice RBI and Tim Nyland came through with a two-run single.

Winning pitcher Gary Cornell, who gave up eight hits, walked two and struck out eight, was 2-for-3 at the plate. Scott Johnston was 2-for-4 with a pair of RBI's in Thief River Falls' nine-hit attack.

Elks 4, Independents 0

Elks got just one hit off Independents pitcher Scott Johnston — a lead-off single in the third by Todd Ortloff — but Johnston ran into control problems in the fourth inning when he walked seven consecutive batters, producing all of the game's runs in a 4-0 Elks second round victory.

The shutout went to Tim Bottom, who scattered five hits while walking three and striking out five. Johnston set the Elks down in order every inning but the third and fourth. He walked eight and struck out eight.

Brian Kemnitz had two of the Independents' five hits. The Elks had the game's only error.

Independents 10, Roseau 1

Independents scored seven runs with two out in the second inning en route to a 10-1 win over Roseau to stay alive in the loser's bracket.

The winners out-hit Roseau 9-6 with Dave Stimac and Brian Kemnitz both going 2-for-4 and driving in two runs. Gary Cornell and Tim Nyland split the pitching ditues.

Thief River Falls' second inning included a two-run triple by Cornell and a two-run double by Stimac. Roseau topped the error charts 4-3.

Elks 6, Independents 4

Elks, after going up 1-0 in the first inning, built a 5-0 lead by scoring four times after two batters and had been retired in the top of the third and went on to beat the Independents 6-4 in the championship game Thursday night.

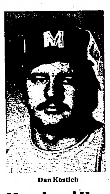
An Independents win would have necessitated a third meeting with the Elks Friday night.

A two-run double by Allan Ness and a two-run error provided the Elks with their big lead.

Three unearned runs crossed the plate without the benefit of a base hit in the bottom of the third as the Independents cut the margin to 5-3.

Trailing 6-3 going into the bottom of the seventh, the Independents scored on an RBI single by Jeff Matson and had the tying runs on base before winning pitcher Todd Ortloff got the side out.

Base hits were even at four apiece, but the Elks picked up six of the game's eight errors. Ortloff walked four and struck out three. Losing pitcher Scott Johnston walked nine and fanned six.



Dan Kostich

Moorhead Has Football Coach For '81 Season

Dan Kostich, a member of the Moorhead coaching staff the past seven years, has been named head football coach at Moorhead high school. Kostich will be replacing Craig McComb, the head football coach since 1977, who recently resigned his coaching position.

Kostich is a 1973 graduate of Moorhead State University where he played football. He was named to the District 13 NAIA Team in 1971 and 1972.

Kostich started his coaching career in the Moorhead schools in 1974 as the head ninth grade coach at the South junior high. He continued at this position for five years, moving to the Senior high school as the head sophomore coach in 1979. In 1980, he became a member of the varsity staff. In addition to his football coaching, he has served as a junior high track coach and as the director of the high school weight training program.

Kostich is a member of the Moorhead senior high teaching staff as the teacher-coordinator of the WORK experience program.

Four Added To MSHSL Board Of Directors

Board of directors of the Minnesota State High School League will have four new members serving the 512 school membership during the 1981-82 school year.

Beginning service August 1 on the 16-member governing body will be Willard Olson, Lake City; Kerwin Engelhart, Rochester; Jody Brandvold, Brooklyn Center; and Russ Adamson, Willmar.

Olson, superintendent of schools at Lake City, will serve the final two years of a four-year term held previously by Donald Andersen, who has left Area 1A (Regions 1 and 2) to become superintendent of schools at Melrose, which is a member school in Area 4AA (Regions 7 and 8). Andersen had been superintendent of schools at St. Charles.

Elected to a four-year term serving Area 1AA (Regions 1 and 2) was Engelhart, the athletic director of Rochester public schools. Engelhart replaces the former Area 1AA representative on the board, Dr. John Feda, ex-superintendent of schools at Marshall, who will stay on the league's board of directors by virtue of being named commissioner of education. Howard Casmey, former commissioner of education, served on the league's board 12 years prior to resigning as commissioner this year.

Brandvold, a Minnesota state school boards association representative on the board, replaces Tom Schafer of Hastings, who had served since 1979. Adamson, athletic director at Willmar high school, is the new activity representative for boys sports. He replaces Jerry Style, athletic director at Glencoe high school, who completed a two-year term.

Lurline Baker Kent, Duluth, the minority representative on the board, was re-appointed by the state department of education's board to another one-year term. She began service on the league's board in 1980.

Other Board members, Fred Switzer, Morris, and Alan Raitor, Sauk Centre, were re-elected to new terms. Switzer, the Area 3A (Regions 5 and 6) representative, will begin a four-year term with the start of the 1981-82 school year, while Raitor, the activity representative for music on the board, starts a two-year term August 1.

Terms expire for four board members during the 1981-82 school year. Those in their final years of current terms include Theo B. Olson, superintendent of schools, Clearbrook, who serves Area 4A (Regions 7 and 8); Robert Miller, superintendent of schools, Stillwater, who serves Area 2AA (Regions 3 and 4); Paula Bauck, Moorhead, activity representative for girls sports; and Karen Howe, Forest Lake, activity representative for speech.

Other members of the 16-member board of directors that will be serving the league during the 1981-82 school year include Richard Froiland, superintendent of schools, Hendricks, who serves Area 2A (Regions 3 and 4); Gene Olive, director of personnel, Richfield public schools, who serves Area 3AA (Regions 5 and 6); Richard Baker, superintendent of schools, Fergus Falls, who serves Area 4AA (Regions 7 and 8); and Elaine Niehoff, Melrose, a Minnesota state school boards association representative.

The board is responsible for administering state tournaments and meets, interpretation of rules, enforcement of rules, establishment and operation of the league office, issuing of publications, and hiring of the executive staff.

Meetings of the board are held eight times during the school year to consider management of programs, finances of the league, eligibility cases and all other matters which constitute issues of interest and importance to the 512 member high schools throughout Minnesota.

Wildlife Group Preserving U.S. Wetlands Areas

Nation's largest conservation organization has launched a major effort to alleviate the destruction of one of the country's most threatened wildlife habitats — its wetlands.

With a grant from the U.S. environmental protection agency (EPA), the National Wildlife Federation has opened two wetland education centers — the Southern Wetlands Project in New Orleans and the Carolinas Wetlands Project in Raleigh, N.C. The centers will be staffed by biologists, legal experts and public education specialists who will assist state and local governments, developers, landowners and other citizens in understanding why the nation's remaining wetlands are vital resources and how they can best be conserved.

"At one time the nation's wetlands — the marshes, swamps and bogs found across the country — were considered to be useless areas, fit only for draining and filling," explained Dr. Jay D. Hair, executive vice president of the NWF. "Fortunately, we've come to realize that wetlands are, instead, priceless natural resources. Our wetlands centers will bring this message to the public teaching them the value of wetlands and how to work with landowners, developers and government officials in preserving them."

Hair emphasized that in recent years scientists have realized that wetlands serve many vital ecological functions. They are breeding grounds and refuges for many species of wildlife and they produce plant life that is the source of much of the organic matter consumed by shellfish and other aquatic life. They aid in the natural purification of water, neutralize sewage and other contaminants and "recharge" ground water resources. In coastal areas, wetlands also act as buffer zones, protecting landward areas against storm damage, erosion and floods.

"Hundreds of species of wildlife are dependent on wetland habitat," noted Dr. Alan Wentz, assistant director for wildlife and fisheries of the NWF's resources defense division. "They include beaver, otter, raccoon, mink, moose, muskrats, ducks, geese and woodcock. In addition, wetlands are absolutely essential to the nation's fish supply. Two-thirds of the fish caught commercially off the Atlantic and Gulf Coasts, and one-half caught off the Pacific Coast spawn and feed in wetlands. The nation's wetlands also serve as recreation areas for sportsmen, photographers, birdwatchers and tourists."

According to Hair, the NWF wetland centers will place special emphasis on the importance of Section 404 of the federal clean water act in conserving wetlands. Section 404 requires the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers to grant permits for wetland development only after it considers such factors as economics, fish and wildlife, flood-damage prevention, recreation, water supply and water quality.

EPA shares enforcement responsibility with the Corps and is also responsible for publishing environmental guidelines used to review the Section 404 permits. "Our wetlands centers will help EPA meet these responsibilities," Hair explained.

"NWF has long fought against needless habitat destruction, which is the major threat to the continued health of the nation's wildlife populations," he said. "It is tragic that we have already obliterated so many acres of wetlands. Nearly half of the wetlands that existed in what are now the 'lower 48' states when the first settlers stepped ashore in America have been destroyed.

"Unfortunately, this alarming rate of destruction continues, especially in Louisiana, where nearly 25,600 acres of coastal marshes vanish each year. In another vulnerable area — the so-called pecosin wetlands in North Carolina, which are important habitat for black bear and other wildlife species — hundreds of thousands of acres are being drained for agricultural use. We're hopeful that our wetlands centers will help slow down this needless destruction."

Minnesota Outdoors
by Stu and Dee Mann

A former Bloomington, MN native, James A. North, helped to save a young Minke whale, beached upon a rocky shore of Cook Inlet, at Point Woronzof, just north of the Anchorage international airport.

It all came about when the early morning high tide stranded the eighteen-foot Minke whale. North, an employee of municipal sewage treatment plant was one of the earlier volunteers upon the scene to instigate others in aiding the plight of the stricken whale.

"A Minke whale is sometimes referred to as a little piked whale; or sharp headed finner," reported Lyn Whitley of the Anchorage Times. The species is medium sized, common in the North Pacific.

North, along with several volunteers from the water and sewage treatment plant provided a water-pump and hose, covering the creature with tons of cold sloshy sea water, while scores of neighborhood volunteers also got into the act, and placed wet towels over the whale shielding it from the sun rays. Others brought mattresses for the whale to lie upon, protecting its vital organs. Veterinarians also took blood samples for evaluation. This may aid decisions as to why the whale became beached. Usually whales come to shore due to great illness or are disoriented, etc., and if pushed out to sea, may locate elsewhere and find another beach upon which to die.

The whale was pushed out into Cook Inlet's rising tide at 3 p.m., swimming away amidst encouraging cheers of its day long rescuers and well wishers.

Outdoors Reports

Regular phoned sports news to WBBM-CBS radio continues to friend John Case, on a weekly basis. Our reports regularly were heard for over 25 years, interrupted by the death of broadcaster-journalist Stu Mann.

I hope to prove valuable to all of Minnesota residents reporting their outdoor events, fishing, hunting and snowmobiling. Kindly feel free to report to 612-431-6062. Blackduck

Orin Wolden of Blackduck has reported his area news to this column for the past 25 or more years.

Blackduck is the heart of some of the greatest fishing and hunting in the state. Blackduck Lake, just at the edge of town, is a great walleye and northern pike lake.

Lakes and streams in the area are well supplied with fish, with an assured supply for years to come, due to the fact that the lakes are all tributary to Red Lake and Winnibigoshish where the supply is almost inexhaustible. The springfed streams lure the angler for trout.

Baudette

Most people are taking home their limits on Lake of the Woods, reports Donna Hamre of Baudette. The fish flies invaded the lake this past week and there's plenty of feed to be found.

Best fishing seems to be around the rocky shorelines and in and along the weeds. Some fish are being taken from the reefs and if this warmer weather keeps up we'll see more fish coming from there. Leeches are the better of the three baits right now.

Big ones weighed in included an eight-pound walleye caught by Joe Boroski of Lancaster on a Leech and Lindy Rig out of Morris Point Gap.

TIP Donations

Donations to finance the DNR's new Turn In Poachers (TIP) program are beginning to flow in but more will be needed to get the program off and running by the target date of September 1.

The program will offer cash rewards and a guarantee of anonymity to persons who tip off the department to the names of violators of state fish and wildlife laws — providing their information leads to an arrest.

Department enforcement officials said the program is primarily aimed at organized poaching rings and other particularly flagrant abuses and violations of the law.

Individuals or organizations seeking to donate funds or gifts, or who wish additional information on the program may write: TIP Inc., Box 47, Centennial Building, St. Paul, MN, or call (toll free) 1-800-652-9747.

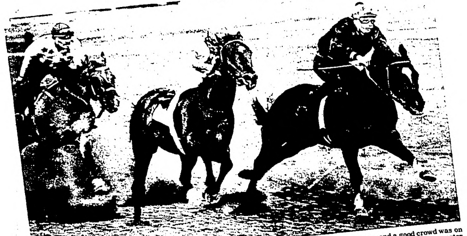
1981 Pennington County Fair — Competition And Entertainment



QUARTER MILE race at the Pennington county fair horse racing program Saturday had these three horses in close formation as they battled for the lead. The fairgrounds track was in good condition for the racing program and a good crowd was on hand to watch the racing action. Quarter, half and three-quarter mile races were run as well as chariot and chuck wagon races and shorter sprints for stock horses and local entries.

As Carver was turning his horses near the grandstand in preparation for the start of the race, one suffered a heart attack and collapsed on the track. The animal could not be revived and was dragged from the track to permit the other entries to start and complete the race.

Chant Is Basic Tool In Lives Of Auctioneers

by Linda St. Thomas
Smithsonian News Service

It may be easy to recognize the tobacco auctioneer's chant; the problem is figuring out exactly what it all means. Yet getting the message across is only half the auctioneer's work.

Whether he's selling dishes or hogs, any good auctioneer is doing several things at once. He's announcing bids, listening for the next highest offer, sometimes watching for non-verbal signals and constantly assessing the mood of the crowd.

The auctioneer's delivery, for example, is nearly as important as the content of his sales pitch. The tobacco auctioneer's spiel is fired off at a pace that is at least 10 times as fast as the average conversational speech. Besides moving along the day's sales, this speed helps create a bit of marketing excitement. (General auctioneer Victor Richardson is said to have set a record in New York with his chant of 888 words per minute. The average bid-caller whizzes along at about 340 words per minute.)

Today, just about everything can be and is sold at auction: personal property, industrial and farm machinery, horses, tobacco, fine art, new and used cars, livestock and commercial and industrial real estate. In fact, whether held in country barns or the rarefied atmosphere of international auction houses, bidding has become big business — so big that some retail antique dealers now feel threatened by the ever-increasing popularity of auction sales.

Whatever their product, many professional auctioneers spend years practicing a sales pitch, often acting as an apprentice or helper with an established auctioneer before beginning their own careers. One such self-made man is Edward "Ned" Murrow, 62, of Shephardstown, W. Va., who became a livestock auctioneer "late in life," at the age of 37, after years of raising cattle.

"I remember spending about six months recording my own voice and playing it back until I got the sounds I wanted," Murrow said. "I had been to auctions all my life but I had never done one myself."

When he started, there were only three people working a huge two-county region of West Virginia. Like other auctioneers, Murrow had one specialty — livestock — but later branched out to sell real estate, furniture, horses, farm equipment and antique cars.

"I can sell anything," Murrow says, "just give me the items, a platform, a microphone and a good crowd and I'll guarantee you some fast action. Once I sold a cemetery, already full, for about $100."

Murrow was one of the auctioneers at the Smithsonian's 1980 Festival of American Folklife in Washington, D.C., where pitchmen, street criers and auctioneers recently demonstrated their considerable verbal skills and also shared trade secrets with Festival audiences.

The best-kept secret, it seems, is that the auctioneer doesn't always know what he's saying. His chant, or roll, as it's called in the business, consists of the prices or bids mixed in with filler words, jokes and a few asides to the audience. The filler phrases, such as "will you give" and "do you want them at," as well as price series, become so routine that the auctioneer is not consciously aware of what he's saying at any given minute.

"The chant is our basic tool of the trade," says Buford Evans, president and founder of the Nashville Auction school and an old bid-caller himself. "Once you get the number brackets down pat, then you worry about increasing your speed and chopping up the filler words. Unfortunately, after just a few weeks of practice, a good auctioneer learns to butcher the English language."

"There are as many different chanting techniques as there are auctioneers. Some are musical and others sound like machines," Evans says. No chant is exactly the same as another, even when delivered by the same auctioneer, because he's always changing his tempo, volume, inflection and word combinations to suit the occasion.

What's not a secret about the profession is that it requires non-stop talking. While the average auctioneer's time on the platform will be about two hours, some auctions may take up to 12 hours — a herculean task for most vocal cords. To prevent horseness or laryngitis, many auctioneers rely on breathing exercises, use a microphone, sip lukewarm water while working (cold water makes the voice raspy), suck on lozenges, avoid the wind and wear scarves on cold days.

Most professional auctioneers care for their voices the same way singers do, by learning to talk "from down here," Evans says. Using diaphrahm muscles helps avoid straining the delicate vocal cords. And like a good singer, Evans and the other auctioneers practice this breathing until it becomes natural.

But nowadays, it takes more than strong vocal cords and an entertaining chant to make a successful auctioneer. He needs to know about fees and comissions, state license laws, advertising, sales contracts, catalogs or circulars, signs, setting up for a sale and, most important, the value of items he sells.

In addition, many auctioneers are specialists in one or more fields — the sale of property, fine arts or livestock. The field of tobacco auctioneering, however, is unique in that its practitioners only sell tobacco. They must have a full knowledge of the product and, because they work exclusively with professional buyers, must be on the alert.

"It's a very demanding job, both physically and mentally," Mr. Evans says. "These auctioneers walk up and down the aisles continuously, calling prices and recognizing bids as they go along, sometimes more than $2,000 worth of tobacco in 60 seconds. It's non-stop activity."

Whatever the specialty, every auctioneer knows how to take bids. At today's country auctions and estate sales, people usually communicate their bid to the auctioneer by voice or by raising numbered cards. The auctioneer recognizes the highest bidder and closes the sale either by announcing the buyer's name or number or by describing the buyer — "sold to the lady in the hat."

Taking non-verbal signal bids, the old wink-of-an-eye, tug-on-the-ear routine, is another matter. Many auctioneers, especially in the fine arts field, where buyers wish to remain anonymous, can recall a mix-up of complex bidding signals.

One of the most famous incidents occurred in London in the mid-1960s when a well-known collector bid on a painting in accordance with his pre-auction agreement. The agreement was given to the auctioneer like this: ". . . when Mr. X is sitting down, he is bidding. If he bids openly, he is only bidding. When he stands up, he has stopped bidding. If he sits down again, he is not bidding unless he raises his finger. Having raised his finger, he is bidding, until he stands up again." Understandably, the auctioneer lost track of those signals somewhere along the line, and the painting went to the second-highest bidder.

Gov's. Wellness Council Is Formed In MN

To promote the health, vitality and well-being of Minnesota residents, Gov. Al Quie has announced the formation of the Governor's council on health promotion and wellness.

The 15-member council was established under an executive order signed by Quie in a Capitol news conference.

"Physical fitness will be one part of the council's work," Quie said, "but the goal of this council is much broader. It will address, in an integrated way, not only our physical health, but our mental, emotional and spiritual health as well. All four of these areas are essential to the total concept of health and wellness."

The council, which will be supported by nonstate funds, will work through existing public and private community resources to promote good health and the prevention of disease.

"With one of its goals being to create a greater knowledge and understanding of what makes and keeps us well, the council will help fight the upward spiral of health care costs," Quie said.

"The council also will examine laws and policies of the state to assure they are consistent with the principles of wellnews.

"Further, the council will set as one of its goals, the encouragement of healthy lifestyles among state employees."

The governor said that while many states have fitness councils, Minnesota becomes only the second state in the nation to organize a council dealing with the total wellness concept. California started the first council last year.

"With the all-inclusive objectives of health promotion and wellness, this council has a tremendous opportunity for success in improving the quality of the lives of Minnesotans for years to come," Quie said.

To set the council in motion, Quie named Wheelock Whitney, 54, as chairman. Whitney, a long-time health activist, is president of the Minnesota council on health, a nonprofit organization established in 1977 to promote health and prevent illness in Minnesota communities and business.

In addition to Whitney, Quie is seeking 14 other members for the council.

"I urge individuals throughout the state who are interested in serving on the council on health promotion and wellness to apply," the governor said.

Applications may be obtained by writing the governor's office, 130 State Capitol, St. Paul, MN 55155. All applications must be returned to the governor's office by August 7.

Public Notices

Card of Thanks
We would like to express our thanks for the kindness shown us following the accident and death of our brother and uncle, Lloyd Hassel. Thanks to those that came to our home with comforting words and with food. Also, to those that gave memorials.
Palmer & Irene Lovly,
John & Rollane Lovly
2t60p

Card of Thanks
I would like to thank my many relatives and friends for their concern and sympathy in the death of my husband, Emil Dyrud.
A special thanks for the food brought to the home, the flowers and the many cards sent. Also thanks to the pallbearers, Green Funeral home, Pastor Liefeld and the Bethlehem ALCW for their part in the funeral.
It was all a great comfort to me and may God bless you all.
Florence Dyrud
1t59c

Card of Thanks
I would like to say many thanks to all my friends and relatives who sent cards and visited me while I was in the hospital. God bless you all.
Allen Iverson

Card of Thanks
We would like to thank everyone at Oakland Park Nursing home who cared for Randi while she was a resident there. Also, to the nurses at Northwestern hospital, to Dr. Berg, and all who visited her. Thanks to Pastor Smerek for his comforting words, to Mrs. Hammer for the beautiful songs, to all who sent memorials, cards and flowers and helped in any way. God bless you all.
The Family Of Randi Smeby

In Memoriam
In memory of our dear mother, grandmother and great-grandmother, Mrs. Florence Stenvik, who passed away four years ago July 28th:
Just a thought of you, dear mother,
Just a memory sweet and true
And a token of affection,
That our hearts still yearn for you.
Sadly missed by her family.

Cataract Removal Safest Operation

At one time people who had cataracts were treated by traveling "practitioners" who provided temporary relief by pushing the cloudy lens backward into the eyeball. After these so-called medics left town, complications usually set in and patients often became blind, report medical authorities at a St. Paul hospital.

Obviously treatment for cataracts has advanced considerably, thanks to improvements in anesthesia, suture materials and surgical techniques. In recent years advances have occurred so rapidly that most people are confused about the various forms of cataract surgery and visual correction, according to an ophthalmologist on the hospitals' medical staff.

In an effort to bring facts and issues about cataracts into "better focus," the doctor responded to the following questions:.

What are cataracts and how can you tell if you have one?

Many people have the mistaken idea that a cataract is a film or "skin" that grows over the eye. Not true. Cataract formation is simply a "clouding" or opacity of the normally transparent lens within the eye. The clouding may affect only part of the lens or all of it.

"When we say a cataract is growing worse, we don't mean it's growing larger as a tumor might grow, but rather that the lens is simply becoming more cloudy," the doctor said.

The loss of transparency in the lens prevents the proper focusing of light on the retina. As a result, blurred vision, influenced by light and glare, occurs. This condition may be especially noticeable at night when vision will seem unusually dim and bright lights can cause an annoying reflection or distortion similar to looking through a fogged windshield. Some people may see double lights. If the cataract is far advanced, a whitish or yellowish discoloration of the pupil of the eye may be noticeable.

Because there are other reasons for visual blurring, persons with this problem should have an examination by an eye physician to ensure that glaucoma, inflammation, retinal detachment or other diseases aren't present within the eye.

What causes cataracts?

The cloudiness in the lens is due to chemical changes which aren't fully understood, the doctor said. But from a practical standpoint most cataracts are due to a combination of age plus heredity. They may also result from injury to the eye, inflammatory eye diseases, some illnesses and drugs. Newborns can be afflicted with cataracts because of heredity factors or as a result of a maternal illness such as German measles during pregnancy.

Are there pills or ointments that dissolve cataracts?

Surgery is the only definitive treatment for cataracts. All claims that cataracts improve after using certain pills or ointments are without basis in fact. Occasionally when the cataract is small and centrally located, drops can be given to keep the pupil dilated so the person can see around the cataract, thus delaying the need for surgery.

"Using the eyes will not make cataracts worse," the ophthalmologist said. "Our patients are encouraged to use their eyes as much as they wish. Reading, sewing and watching television are harmless. As the vision gradually worsens, these activities may become more fatiguing and less pleasureable, but they will do no harm."

What are the reasons for removing a cataract?

The presence of a cataract is not in itself an indication for surgery. The most important reason for removing a cataract is poor vision that significantly interferes with a person's way of living. "Someone who requires very precise vision may wish to have surgery much earlier than one whose visual needs are less demanding," the doctor said.

It's not necessary to delay surgery until a cataract is "ripe", a term that used to mean that a cataract had become so dense that the person could see nothing through it. Today, "ripe" means that the time is ripe for surgery. In other words, the cataract is a nuisance of the "good eye isn't able to provide adequate vision.

How are cataracts removed?

Cataract surgery involves the removal of the lens from the interior of the eye and may be performed in several ways. The decision about which operation is best for a given patient involves individual considerations. Age, type of cataract and the presence or absence of other eye disease often dictate the appropriate type of operation to use.

Most generally a combination of sedatives and tranquilizers is used to make the patient relaxed and comfortable for surgery under local anesthesia (awake), although general anesthesia may be used to put the patient to sleep if desired.

The entire cataract may be removed in one piece, which requires a slightly larger incision than the method involving breaking up the lens into smaller fragments with an ultrasonic needle (not a laser beam) and removing them by suction.

About six to 10 stitches with suture that is finer than a human hair are used to close the incision. Hospital stays can vary from a few hours to several days, depending on the patient's individual situation and condition. Patients can resume most of their normal activities almost immediately after surgery.

How safe are these operations?

"The riskiest part of cataract surgery is probably the trip to the hospital," the doctor said. Although any surgery has potential risks, such as infection, bleeding and anesthesia complications, these are rare with cataract surgery. In fact, cataract surgery enjoys a higher rate of success and lower rate of complications than almost any other type of surgery. Its effect on the body as a whole is minimal. The incision is less than one-half inch long and the blood loss is usually less than one or two drops.

Various methods of visual correction to replace the removed lens may be used after cataract surgery. These include spectacles, contact lenses and lens implants.

NOTHING TO DO but wait for the heat to end. That's the situation faced by his driver Friday evening during the demolition derby at the Pennington county fair in Thief River Falls. Assisted forcibly by another car, this vehicle struck the retaining barrier hard enough to snap a road grader blade, heavy planking and a large post or two. Action was fast and furious with nearly 80 cars entered. More photos will be published in Wednesday's edition of the Times.

ADDING RIBBONS to her grand championship collection, Collette Thune of the Happy Acres 4-H club earned three championships at the Pennington county fair last week. Her top entries were in Unit II home environment, Group 3 clothing construction and advanced foods divisions.

POTATOES entered by Kirby Hamre of the City View 4-H club won a grand championship in the 4-H club division of the Pennington county fair last week.

Nelson Applies For Approval Of Parcel Plat

John L. Nelson of rural Thief River Falls has applied for approval of a preliminary plat for a parcel of land located north of Sixth street and east of Dawn avenue in Thief River Falls, according to Jack Quinlivan, city planner.

A hearing on the request will be held August 3 at 5:15 p.m. in the council room of the Thief River Falls city auditorium. Quinlivan may be contacted for further information at 681-6780 and an exact legal description of the plat is available in his office.

Applicants For Energy Help Are Solicited

Energy crisis intervention program (ECIP) of Northwest Community Action is requesting additional applicants for its program of energy conservation.

A limited number of solar panels will be installed in area homes for those who qualify under the poverty guidelines below. Preference will be given to those applicants who are elderly or have physical limitations. The solar heating units will be installed at no cost to those households selected for this pilot program.

The ECIP program can also provide funds for reconnection of energy cut-offs in dire emergencies.

Poverty income guidelines include the following with size of family, non-farm family income and farm family income listed respectively: one member, $5,386 and $4,600; two members, $7,113 and $6,063; three members, $8,838 and $7,525; four members, $10,563 and $8,988; five members, $12,288 and $10,450; and six members, $14,013 and $11,913.

For family units with more than six members, add $1,725 for each additional member in nonfarm family and $1,463 for each additional member in a farm family.

If you are interested in a solar panel or other alternative energy source call Northwest Community Action (528-3258; for further information or write to Northwest Community action, Inc., Post Office Box 195, Badger, MN 56714.

Nelson, Cuno Awarded SCSU Scholarships

Jodie Nelson, Goodridge and Teresa Cuno, Red Lake Falls were among 24 students who were awarded 1981-1982 academic scholarships by the St. Cloud State university (SCSU) alumni association, according to Thomas Macgillivray, alumni director.

Nelson received the Dudley and Merl Brainard scholarship awarded to incoming freshman and new transfer students with good academic records.

Cuno was awarded the Nick Begich memorial scholarship which provides financial assistance to a political science major, upperclass standing, who will be interning with a U.S. congressman, Minnesota legislator, or in some field of government.

Jodi Martin, Husband Earn Doctorates

Jodi Anne Martin, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. George Martin of Thief River Falls, and her husband David Dickson Stewart were both awarded doctorates in clinical psychology from United States International university in San Diego, CA, June 14.

Drs. Martin and Stewart both previously graduated from Michigan state university with BA degrees in 1971 and George Williams college in Illinois with MS degrees in counseling psychology. Both are currently completing internships at Hennepin county medical center in Minneapolis. They plan to settle in Minneapolis, and Dr. Martin has been accepted as a psychology fellow at the Hennepin county medical center for the coming year.

Dr. Martin was selected to "Outstanding Young Women of America" in 1978 and 1979 and for "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges" in 1980. Her dissertation was titled "Relationships Among Gender, Masculinity, Femininity, and Fear of Success" and received the dissertation award for 1981 for excellence in research in professional psychology from the California Association for Measurement and Evaluation in Guidance.

Dr. Stewart was selected for "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges" in 1979. His dissertation was titled "Scatter Comparability and Form Equivalence of the Verbal Scales of the Wechsler-Bellevue, Form I, and the WAIS-R."

Wiskow Takes Part In Meet

Wallace D. Wiskow of Thief River Falls, Northrup King company territory sales manager, recently attended the company's northern division sales "kick-off" meeting held at Quadna Mountain resort at Hill City.

"Working Together To Keep Farming Profitable" was the sales meeting theme.

Many Events Remain In Jaycee Aquacade Program

Selection of a new Miss Thief River Falls from among seven candidates, opportunity for participation in a number of competitive events, guest appearance by Miss Minnesota Elizabeth Ruyak, and a Saturday afternoon parade are all part of the annual Jaycee Aquacade activities taking place this week in Thief River Falls.

The new Miss Thief River Falls will be crowned Saturday evening at the official Miss America preliminary pageant scheduled for 8 p.m. in the Lincoln high school auditorium. She will succeed Alice Melgard of Warren as holder of the title. Advance tickets are on sale at Ekeren Drug and Larson Music company.

A recently-added event announced this week is the bicycle moto-cross race in seven classes for youngsters age four to their upper teens. The races will be held at 7 p.m. Friday on the 150-yard course located south off Oakland Park road. Trophies will be awarded to the first three places in each division.

Age categories for competition will be 4-5 years, 6-7 years, 8-9 years, 10-11 years, 12-13 years, 14-15 years and 16 years and older. Required equipment to enter includes a 20-inch bicycle in good operating condition with the kick stand removed or taped in the up position; number plate or identification plate on the bicycle; helmet, long-sleeved shirt and long pants.

Although not required, it is strongly recommended that riders also have goggles or a face shield on the helmet, elbow pads and gloves. Hockey equipment is considered excellent for protection.

There will be no entry fee and registration forms can be completed at the track beginning at 6:30 p.m. Forms may also be obtained in advance by calling Erling Thompson at 681-3384 or Jesse Schimke at 681-4683 during the day or 681-6430 evenings.

Water fights will be the next Aquacade event and are planned for 7 p.m. Thursday on Second street between Duluth and Knight avenues. Teams wishing to enter may contact Tom Mickelson at 681-2777 after 6 p.m.

Tennis and racquetball tournaments begin Friday and continue into the weekend. Junior tennis classes will be played Friday with adults playing Saturday and Sunday. Entries in the tennis tourney are due today and may be made with Terry Belch at the east side tennis courts until 5 p.m. or by calling at his home. Entries must be made and fees paid today. No phone entries will be accepted.

Elimination play in the racquetball tournament starts Friday with the finals to be played Sunday. Information on classes, fees and playing time is available by

More Clues Listed For Treasure Hunt

As treasure hunters continue their search for the $100 and $50 treasures hidden this year during the Jaycee Aquacade, additional clues continue to be provided to help make the search easier.

More clues were provided this morning by Don Grabanski, chairman of the annual project. All clues provided up to today are listed below.

Clues for the $100 treasure include: (1) the system always works; (2) only the treasure man knows, and he's happy; (3) Pennington County Fair is a good place to start; (4) the main routes of our city are good clues; (5) the park is close by; (6) go to the chamber of commerce office and they will give you a clue; (7) the west side of the river.

Clues listed for the $50 treasure include: (1) Look for something clear on the bottom; (2) look for something black on the top; (3) look for a white piece of paper with a red line on it; (4) remember the treasures are not very large; (5) the nine square blocks area is where it's at; (6) it is not in a park; and (7) water is needed. Additional clue provided states that both treasures are in a small glass vial with a black top.

GTA Request Approved By City At Special Meet

Two special meetings as well as the regular meeting last evening brought Thief River Falls city council members together this week to discuss a request brought by the Grain Terminal association (GTA) feed division of Sioux Falls, SD, and a number of recommendations posed by various committees.

Council members gathered for a special meeting at 12:30 p.m. Monday with Bob Dondelinger, president of Thief River Falls Jobs Incorporated, for a discussion of the possibility of GTA's feed division locating north of Thief River Falls along highway 32 (near Alfalfa Products, Inc.)

Discussion continued from the last regular city council meeting in which Dondelinger discussed with the council GTA's request for certain data concerning the extension of sewer and electric services to this area if such a facility located here.

Major questions during the discussion Monday included traffic problems, if any, as a result of the facility, amounts and volume of products marketed by the facility, and hook-up charges for sewer service since the facility would be located out of the city limits.

Council members, following the introduction of a resolution by alderman J. J. Womack and a unanimous roll call vote, indicated that GTA would be permitted to extend a private line into the city's sewer system in the vicinity of 13th street and highway 32, with no hook-up charges and that GTA would pay a monthly fee (established by the city council) for sewage to Thief River Falls. It was added that hook-up procedures would correspond to the city engineer's specifications.

Council members agreed to permit GTA to hook up to the city sewer without annexing the property to the city.

Monday meeting was followed by a 12:30 p.m. meeting Tuesday when city

IN PREPARATION for her trip to Sweden under the Rotary International youth exchange program, Kathy Dyrdal has been studying about the country and assembling necessary materials. Her passport, airline tickets and an encyclopedia with information on Sweden are included in the above photo.

Kathy Dyrdal To Study In Sweden

It's been a scramble, but Kathy Dyrdal thinks she is about ready to leave for a year's stay as a Rotary International youth exchange student in Sweden. She leaves Thief River Falls Friday for a brief visit with relatives in Wisconsin, then departs from Minneapolis August 4 to begin her new experience.

Kathy is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donavon Dyrdal of rural Thief River Falls. Under normal circumstances, the 17-year-old would have been a senior at Lincoln this fall. But she crammed a number of extra courses into her junior year and, with three credits for her exchange studies, she

Manitoba Day Features Par Currency Rate

"Manitoba Days" will be observed in Thief River Falls on Monday when participating stores will permit Canadian visitors to make purchases with Canadian currency at par value with U.S. currency.

The good will promotion is a follow-up to the visit made to Winnipeg recently by a Thief River Falls delegation. Signs designating participating stores will be placed in the stores and will state: "Canadian Exchange Par Today on Purchases Only. Welcome to Thief River Falls. Retail Businessmen's Association."

The par value purchase promotion will be for Monday only. Current exchange rate is 16 to 19 per cent.

Thief River Falls Jaycee Women are sponsoring a baby photo contest with photos of children up to five years old eligible. All photos must be postmarked by August 7 and should be sent to P.O. Box 112, Thief River Falls. Include a self-addressed, stamped envelope to have the photo returned.

Photos will be displayed at the First Northwestern state bank from August 10 to August 14 and at Northern state bank from August 17 to August 21. Winners will be notified by phone on August 22 and prizes will be awarded.

For more information call 681-6973 or 681-6012. Rules will be posted at Bostwick's, Penney's, Piggly Wiggly, Hartz, Northland Foods, Northern state bank, First Northwestern state bank, Pamida, Al and Wally's and Red Owl.

Jaycees Plan Production At Park Sunday

Six-member Pillow Theatre company, an international ensemble touring Minnesota this summer, will present a special theatrical production at the Floyd B. Olson park, across from Hardee's in Thief River Falls, this Sunday as part of the annual Aquacade celebration.

Production sponsored locally by the Thief River Falls Jaycees, will begin at 3:30 p.m. Presentation, "Les Fourberies de Scapin (The Trickery of Scapin)" is an adaptation of a work by Moliere, who produced comedies of exaggerated passions and social satire in mid-17th century France. Production will include mime, acrobatics, chases and tomfoolery.

Action revolves around a roguish servant named Scapin, whose task it becomes to trick two self-possessed fathers into accepting the romantic choices their children have made without their consent.

Pillow Theatre Company tour is being presented this summer as an outreach effort by Bemidji State University and the Paul Bunyan Playhouse.

Film Program For Children At The Library

Northwest regional library will begin a weekly film program for children on Monday, August 3. Entitled "Movie Mondays", the program will run each week for the month of August, starting promptly at 1:30 p.m., and lasting for one hour.

Movies to be shown on August 3 are as follows:

"Tap Dance Kid" — 8-year-old Willie wants to dance more than anything. His father, a successful lawyer who 'shuffled' his way through the Depression, disapproves. Willie's legal-minded sister intervenes for Willie's rights. She takes him to a summer stock audition, and his parents arrive in time to see talents and desires they never realized before.

"Moose Baby" — He is followed from his first wobbly steps through several seasons during which he learns how to survive in his valley. "Stone Soup" — Using the pictures and text of Marcia Brown, relates the story of the soldiers who trick the townspeople into feeding them.

School Hires New Personnel Monday

Thief River Falls board of education hired a number of instructors, accepted several resignations and approved eight extra-curricular assignments at the regular meeting Monday evening in the school district service center.

Hired were Don Stanislawski, long-term substitute in English at Franklin school; David L. Peterson, one-year mathematics instructor at Lincoln school; Judith Schmit, one-year English instructor at Lincoln; Diane Anderson, part-time women's physical education and health instructor at Lincoln; William Poole, English instructor at Lincoln; Sandra Harris, one-year science instructor in grades six, seven and eight at Franklin; and Nancy Shanahan as senior cosmetology instructor at the AVTI. Dennis Dahl was also hired as head custodian at Lincoln.

Resignations were accepted from Bev Thygeson, health occupations instructor at the Northwest vocational center; Georgene Hiller, Lincoln counselor; Kathryn Trickle, English and mathematics instructor at Franklin; and Zonie Easton, management aide at Knox elementary school.

Extra-curricular assignments approved for the coming school year were as follows: Tom Hunt, head boys' basketball coach; Walter Redinger, sixth and seventh grade boys' basketball at Franklin; Bill Blankenfeld, seventh and eighth grade football at Franklin; Ron Novak, sixth and seventh grade football at Franklin; Barry Liimatainen, sixth and seventh grade football at Franklin; Don Fugleberg, seventh and eighth grade football at Franklin; Howard Thorson, assistant boys' track at Franklin; and Jeanne Olson, assistant girls' tennis at Lincoln.

Two-year military leave of absence was approved for Wilton Swenson from his position as assistant principal at Franklin. One-year leaves of absence were approved for Bill McGann, physical education instructor at Lincoln, and John Kopari, social studies instructor at Lincoln.

NORTH COUNTRY queen of the North Country Appaloosa club (NCAC), Rona Broten will be featured in a special queen's ride at the NCAC territory I show this Saturday and Sunday at the Pennington county fairgrounds in Thief River Falls. Rona, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ron Broten of this city, was named NCAC queen during a Grand Rapids show last August. Her three-year-old companion purchased last April is "Jack-Fire-Cody."

Rona Broten Reigns As North Country Queen

by Bonnie Wentzel
Times Reporter

At the age of three, when she received her first horse as a gift from her parents, Rona Broten was able to begin the one dream that she plans to carry with her until she's "old and gray", she stated with a smile during a recent Times interview.

Enthusiasm and warmth touch the 16-year-old at the mention of her hobby of training and showing Appaloosas.

"I just like them," she smiled as she explained her admiration for horses — especially for Appaloosas.

Rona, who was crowned queen of the North Country Appaloosa Club (NCAC) in Grand Rapids last August, is preparing this week for the NCAC Territory I show to be conducted at the Pennington County fairgrounds Saturday and Sunday. During the show, she will represent the NCAC as she participates in a special queen's ride.

The thought of her participation in various classes in the show can hardly frighten one who has been showing horses since the age of 11.

"I used to get nervous (before a show) but I don't anymore," she commented, "unless there are lots of kids (showing) or I've had a bad day. My stomach used to get in knots but now I just go in there and do my best."

As North Country queen, Rona received a silver platter and a large poster of herself with her companion, "Jack-Fire-Cody," the Appaloosa she received last April; was honored in the queen's ride following the horse show in Grand Rapids; served as hostess at the annual NCAC banquet last December; and has participated in several NCAC horse shows in such places as Crookston, Fargo, Barnesville, Valley City, Bemidji and Proctor. NCAC 1982 queen will be announced in December.

Queen candidates are judged on appearance, personality and knowledge of the Appaloosa breed along with the riding ability at the Grand Rapids show. Included in that show as well as in most other shows are various classes, most of which Rona has been a part of during her involvement with horse training and showing.

Classes include halter, in which mares, geldings and

SOCIETY and CLUBS

Morris Owens Observe Their 50th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Morris Owen of this city observed their 50th wedding anniversary recently at an open house at Trinity Lutheran church.

Hosting the open house were their children: Morris Owen, Jr., of Seattle, Wash.; Marlene Peterson, Provo, Utah; Betty Laufman and Judy Peterson, both of Thief River Falls; Janice McGovern, Millington, Tenn; and Angeline Gronseth and Lorray Tupy, both of Minneappolis. All were present as were 26 of their 23 grandchildren and 11-great-grandchildren.

Also present was Mrs. Clara Loer, Humboldt, who was attendant when the couple exchanged marriage vows 50 years ago.

The brief program, given by the children, included the presentation of a family tree, given by the children, a poem in scroll form given by Angie Gronseth, and a family quilt made by the children with Angie Gronseth in charge. The quilt was composed of blocks with each of the seven children embroidering their own.

Following the open house activities, the family assembled at Valhall for a five o'clock supper and the viewing of family movies.

Approximately 200 relatives and friends attended the celebration. Out-of-town guests were from Washington, Utah, Arizona, California, Tennessee, Wisconsin, Minneapolis and Canada.

An archery tournament is scheduled for Saturday and Sunday at the club range located south of Thief River Falls and west of the regional airport. To reach the course, go south on the airport road (Pennington avenue) from First street for four miles and follow the directional signs. Tournament information is available from Dana Klos at 681-7128.

Saturday's parade is scheduled to start at 1 p.m. with formation at the Pennington county fairgrounds. Local Girl Scout leaders have noted that all members of Brownie, Junior, Cadette and Senior troops who wish to walk in the parade should report to the fairgrounds at 12:30 p.m.

Sunday events will include a 10-kilometer (6.2 miles) running race, canoe race and shortstop golf tournament.

The 10-kilometer race will have four classes for men and one for women with starting time at 10 a.m. and registration at 9:30 a.m., all at LaFave park.

The canoe race will start at 9 a.m. at the Smiley bridge landing with pre-registration by Friday required. Contact Tim Faver at 681-5441 after 5:30 p.m. Finish line will be by the swimming beach at LaFave park.

Pre-registration is also required for the golf tournament which will have a limit of 36 golfers in the 27-hole championship flight and eight other flights of eight golfers each in nine-hole play.

Final event of the Aquacade will be the Pillow Theatre company's presentation of "Les Fourberies de Scapin" in a large tent located in Floyd B. Olson park in downtown Thief River Falls. The performance will be at 3:30 p.m. Sunday. The professional theatre group is sponsored by Bemidji state university and the Paul Bunyan Playhouse.

As an added interest item Saturday, Roy Gjovik of Strathcona will give a wood sawing demonstration Saturday following the parade in the Floyd B. Olson parking lot on Knight avenue. He will use a one-third scale replica of a 1915 Case steam engine to power the sawmill. There is no admission charge.

Special Events Being Readied For Crazy Days

In addition to sidewalk sales and spectacular bargains on merchandise, several special events are being planned for Crazy Days in Thief River Falls Thursday by the retail business association (RBA) of the chamber of commerce.

Additional encouragement for employees to dress in costume will be provided by an expanded prize offering to costume contest winners. First place prize will be $40 with $30 for second place, $25 for third, $15 for fourth and $5 for four fifth place winners.

Any store which holds membership in the RBA may enter the costume contest and should notify the chamber of commerce office today (Wednesday) that its employees should be judged. From the roster of entries the judges will be able to schedule their rounds on Thursday.

Several food stands will be operated throughout the day. Thief River Falls regional library will provide free movies for children from 9 to 11:30 a.m. and 1 to 3 p.m., allowing their parents time to shop while the youngsters are being entertained.

Jaycees will add to the fun with operation of the dunking stand in the downtown area. KTRF radio will again conduct its crazy auction at 2:30 p.m. on LaBree avenue.

Competition for youngsters is also planned with Hot Wheels races to be held at the Kmart parking lot on highway 59 south. Registration will start at 12:30 p.m. with racing from 1 to 3 p.m. Age groups will be from four to five and six to seven years of age. Hot Wheels cycles will be furnished and given away following the contest.

Competition is open to both boys and girls with a 25-cent registration fee being charged and donated to Police Explorer Post 200 and Northwestern Hospital Explorer Post 46, co-sponsors of the races with Kmart. First place winner will receive a trophy.

Pizza Hut has entered into the Crazy Days program with a spaghetti eating contest limited to 100 entries, all of whom must be 18 years of age or older. Winner will be the contestant who can eat the most spaghetti in two minutes without use of hands. Registration will begin at 2:30 p.m. at the Pizza Hut and competition will start at 3 p.m. Men's and women's divisions will be offered.

ASSORTMENT of trophies line the walls of the Broten home of rural Thief River Falls, with a good share of them belonging to Rona Broten, 16, the oldest of the three Broten children. Rona, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ron Broten, was named queen of the North Country Appaloosa club (NCAC) last August in Grand Rapids, and since that time has represented the NCAC in numerous horse shows. She will be featured in the NCAC Territory I show at the Thief River Falls fairgrounds this weekend.

Rona Broten North Country Saddle Queen

stallions are judged on conformation; most colorful horse; showmanship, leadline (for those aged six and under) in which participants are judged while walking their horses; walk and trot (ages nine and under); horsemanship; Western Pleasure, based on the horse's movements; Western Riding, in which proper leads are checked; Jack Benny (for those 39 and over); English Equitation; English Pleasure, which involves riders fully clothed in English attire; trail, which includes obstacles horses would encounter while on a trail; reining; and timed events such as poles, barrels and keyhole in which the rider maneuvers his or her horse around obstacles without knocking them over.

The Brotens, including Dad (Ron), Lynnae, 9, and Aaron, 6 are all horse enthusiasts, with a room full of trophies and ribbons to prove their efforts.

"This one's mine," exclaimed Aaron, as he lifted a huge trophy, nearly half his size, from its niche on the shelf. As for Mary, one who doesn't ride horses herself, there is much work to be done with four riders in the family. There are always shows to attend, and appearance is an important part of those shows.

"You kind of get to like them (horses) after a while," she admitted while helping her daughter, Rona, saddle the Appaloosa which stood in the family's backyard waiting patiently for his photo to be taken with his rider.

In the driveway rested a tiny horse trailer bearing the sign, "Broten's Appaloosas" with the insignia of an apple painted over the first four letters of the word. The trailer contained the names of the three Broten children as well. The stable, a short distance away, housed the Broten's seven registered Appaloosas.

To Rona, training horses is a challenge. "I enjoy working with them (horses)," she said. "Training and showing is not something everyone does."

Rona has been placing in nearly every class she has entered in recent shows. Recently in Fargo she placed first in the gelding and Western pleasure classes out of 20 horses, as well as placing in every other class she entered in the show.

Training horses is a "round the clock" job, she said, but the effort is worth it all, especially when show time arrives. "Riding relaxes me as well as the horse," she commented.

Along with her love for horses and being a member of the NCAC for four years, Rona has been a 4-H member for the past five years, has been with the Girl Scouts since she was a Brownie, and has been a member of the student senate since the sixth grade. She has also been active in basketball, cheerleading, swimming, and is a member of the High League at Zion Lutheran church in Thief River Falls.

She also enjoys sewing, cooking, hiking, swimming, photography and babysitting when she is not with her Appaloosas.

As far as her future is concerned, Rona isn't certain what she will do, although she does plan to continue her hobby of training and showing horses. "They're (Appaloosas) all so unique," she said.

"I just hope that when I have kids some day, they'll like horses, too," she smiled.

All entries in the NCAC Territory I show at the Pennington County fairgrounds this weekend will be accepted until the class before is called into the ring. Judges for the event will be Francis L. Johnson, Chesterfield, MO (Saturday) and Dick Graham, Rapid City, SD (Sunday) Show will begin at 7 a.m. Saturday and at 8 a.m. Sunday. Expected to attend the show are 125 to 150 families from Wisconsin, Canada and North Dakota.

Kathy Dyrdal Off To Sweden As Student

will be a member of the 1982 graduating class.

"I could have come back for a last year of school here," she said, "but then I would have been a year behind in my plans for college. This way it was a tough last half of the year but I won't lose a year of my education by making the trip."

Although there are a number of students leaving on the exchange program sponsored by Rotary clubs (Thief River Falls Rotary is sponsoring Kathy), there is no charter flight and no travel coordination. Kathy will fly United Airlines from Minneapolis to LaGuardia field in New York, make a short hop to Kennedy International airport there, then leave at 7 p.m. for Copenhagen, Denmark. She will arrive in Copenhagen at 8:30 a.m., then leave at 10:05 a.m. for Stockholm, Sweden, arriving at 11:15 a.m.

While in Sweden she will stay with Sven and Birgitta Berthilson in the tiny village (six families) of Olsta, but will attend school in Sala. She will get a two-week crash course in Swedish in Stockholm. The Berthilson family has several children but none are living at home. The youngest daughter, in fact, will be an exchange student in Oklahoma this year.

In the last few weeks Kathy has had to make a number of arrangements. In addition to travel, passport and other arrangements — including selection of what to take with her and packing it — she has had to arrange with a friend for ordering graduation announcements, had her senior photos taken and tied up other loose ends in preparation for her year away from home.

Friends who wish to write Kathy at her home away from home may address letters to Kathy Dyrdal, in care of Sven Berthildson, Olsta P1 4166, 733 00 Sala, Sweden.

State To Build 42x88 Grygla Truck Station

Bids for the construction of a 42 x 88 foot equipment storage building will be received by the state procurement office in St. Paul Wednesday, August 5, with the structure to serve as a truck station for the Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT). It is to be built on a 4.7-acre site at the county state-aid highway (CSAH) 28-TH 89 junction in Grygla in Marshall county.

The building will be of wood frame construction and will have a truss roof with asphalt shingles and stucco siding. It will also have a six-inch concrete floor. There will be 200 ampere electrical service and the building will be equipped with two electrically operated overhead doors. Heat will be provided by an infrared propane gas heating system. Gasoline pumps with underground storage tanks will provide fuel for department vehicles.

Two trucks, a motor grader, a pickup truck, a front-end loader and miscellaneous equipment will be housed in the building. Four highway maintenance workers will work out of the new facility. It is estimated that the building will be ready for occupancy by the end of the year.

Daniel Halsa Rites Held At Melo Church

Daniel E. Halsa, 72, of Warren, a lifetime resident of Helgeland township, Polk county, died unexpectedly July 24 at his home.

Funeral services for Daniel Halsa were held today (Wednesday) at 10:00 a.m., at the Melo Lutheran church with Rev. David Christensen officiating. Mrs. Myron Carlson was the organist and Mrs. Mylo Carlson, the soloist. Interment was in the church cemetery with the Quanrud Funeral home of Warren in charge of arrangements.

Pallbearers were Olaf Solvik, Edward Solvik, Leslie Seward, Lowell Hamrick, Jim Pearson and Dale Huderle.

Daniel E. Halsa was born June 23, 1909 in Helgeland township, Polk county, to John and Marie Halsa. He lived his whole lifetime in Helgeland township, where he was engaged in garming. He never married.

He was a member of the Warren American Legion post 27.

Surviving are a sister, Mrs. Bennie (Dorothy) Rood of Warren; a brother, Norman Halsa, Thief River Falls, and several nieces and nephews.

He was preceded in death by his parents, three sisters and two brothers.

Emil Syverson Services Held At Strathcona

Emil O. Syverson, 62, of Strathcona, died Sunday morning at the Greenbush Community hospital.

Funeral services for Emil O. Syverson were held today (Wednesday) at 2:00 p.m., at the Gustaf Adolph Lutheran church in Strathcona with Rev. Donald Fredine officiating. Mrs. Milo Coltom was the soloist and Miss Joni Thompson, the pianist. Interment was in the Greenwood cemetery at Strathcona with the Collins Funeral home, Greenbush, in charge of arrangements. Military honors were by the Greenbush American Legion post 88.

Pallbearers were Orlean Anderson, Jerry Biskup, Curtis Haugtvedt, Orton Brekke, Harry Nelson and Gene Connelly.

Emil Olander Syverson, a son of the late Carl and Anna Syverson, was born Feb. 18, 1919 in East Park township of Marshall county, near Strathcona. He attended school in that community and was baptized and confirmed at Middle River.

He was a veteran of World War II, serving in the U.S. Army in the Pacific Theatre and in the Philippines. While in the service, he was awarded the Purple Heart. After his discharge in December of 1945, he returned to the Strathcona community.

On Oct. 20, 1948, he was united in marriage to Mildred Dahl at Wannaska. Since then, they have lived and farmed in Lind township, Roseau county, near Strathcona.

He was an active member of the Gustaf Adolph Lutheran church of Strathcona and served for a time on the church council. He was also a member of the Greenbush American Legion post 88.

Surviving are his wife, two daughters: Mrs. Bill (Malvern) Taylor, Spicer; and Mrs. Peter (Sharon) Duncan, Greenbush, five grandchildren, a brother, Leonard Syverson, Karlstad; and one sister, Mrs. Clifford (Clarice) Hagen, Anoka.

One sister preceded him in death.

Mrs. L. Hruby Dies Tuesday At Her Home

Mrs. Lewis (Myrtle "Susie") Hruby, 76, of this city, died unexpectedly Tuesday afternoon at her home.

Funeral services for Mrs. Lewis Hruby will be held Friday at 10:00 a.m., at Trinity Lutheran church with Rev. Berton Hushagen officiating. Interment will be in Greenwood cemetery.

The body will repose at the Green Funeral home, beginning Thursday noon, and at the church for one hour prior to the time of services.

A complete obituary will be published in Monday's edition of the Times.

A SUITCASE full of blue jeans? Not quite, but Kathy Dyrdal of Thief River Falls plans to be well supplied with the popular item when she leaves next week for nearly a year's stay as a student in Sweden. Prices of such items as blue jeans in Sweden are said to be several times what they are in the United States.

Wheat Council Elects 1981-82 Officer Slate

Minnesota wheat research and promotion council, at their annual reorganization meeting in Moorhead, elected its slate of officers for the 1981-82 year.

Einer Satter, a farmer from Norcross was re-elected producer-chairman of the wheat council. Satter, a member of the council since it was formed in 1977, was first elected chairman last year.

Roland Brule, Red Lake Falls, was elected council secretary, replacing Tom Runholt, Marshall, who did not seek re-election to the wheat council. Brule was elected to the Minnesota wheat council in 1980.

Kermit Stahn, Morris, one of the original nine wheat council members, was re-elected to the position of treasurer. Satter, Brule and Stahn will also serve as the executive committee of the council.

The wheat council also elected representatives to serve on the board of directors of the regional market development organization, U.S. Wheat Associates, for the 1981-82 year. The three council members elected to represent Minnesota on the U.S. wheat associates board of directors include chairman Einer Satter of Norcross, Ed Ross, Fisher, and Rich Kruse, Sr., Breckenridge. Fourth representative on the U.S. wheat board of directors from Minnesota is the president of the Minnesota association of wheat growers, Fred Kreps, Felton.

Other Minnesota wheat council members include Ed Pester, Fisher, Larry Bogestad, Donaldson, Jerry Kruger, Warren and Robert Starr, Red Wood Falls.

Vehicle Bumper Law Changes On August 1st

Minnesota law regulating vehicle bumpers has been revised by the 1981 legislature and takes effect August 1, according to public safety commissioner John P. Sopsic.

The law requires, as it did previously, that passenger automobiles must have front and rear bumpers.

A new part of the law states that every automobile, station wagon, jeep type automobile or truck with a gross weight of 9,000 pounds or less, which was originally equipped with bumpers as standard equipment, must have those bumpers or bumpers equal to the original bumpers.

After August 1 it will be unlawful to operate one of the above vehicles if the suspension system, body, wheels or tires have been modified in any manner causing the front or rear bumper to vary more than three inches from the original manufactured bumper height for the vehicle.

A variation of more than three inches due to spring sag because of a vehicle load will not constitute an offense if the original bumpers or equivalent are in place and no modifications have been made, Sopsic said.

State patrol chief Roger Ledding said the patrol would issue warnings to violators until September 1 and make formal charges after that. "I would advise those who feel they have illegal bumpers to make necessary alternations now in order to avoid possible arrest after August 1," Ledding said.

The revised law does not apply to collector vehicles which are equipped in accordance with the laws in effect at their time of manufacture. Generally, these are vehicles of classic design or early vintage operated for show purposes and not used in general transportation.

William Hustad To Interlochen

Interlochen Arts Academy, Interlochen, Mich., has announced the acceptance of William Paul Hustad, son of Mr. and Mrs. John P. Hustad of Thief River Falls, as a student for the 1981-82 academic year. He was previously attending Lincoln high school and will pursue special interests in tuba.

Horticulture Groups Meet At Crookston

Tours of gardens in Winnipeg, Manitoba, and the International Peace Garden in North Dakota will highlight the Minnesota state horticultural society joint convention with the North Dakota horticultural society in Crookston August 6-9. The meeting is open to the public.

Also featured on the program will be two days of garden classes, a flower and vegetable show, and an awards banquet on August 8 with State Senator Roger Moe (majority leader from Ada) the featured speaker.

Among those conducting classes will be Robert Askew, extension horticulturist, North Dakota state university; Neal Holland, pothologist, North Dakota state university; William C. Rogers, director of the University of Minnesota world affairs center; and Leon Snyder, director emeritus of the Minnesota landscape arboretum.

Registration fee for the convention is $6 for Society members and $8 for non-members, with meetings and lodging accommodations at the University of Minnesota Technical College, Crookston. For more information, contact the Minnesota State Horticultural Society, 1970 Folwell Ave., St. Paul, Minn. 55108.

August Paper Drive Planned

St. Bernard's school is planning another paper collection drive for late August, according to Mrs. Donna Olson, organizer for the event. People saving newspapers for the drive are asked to store them and donate them in cardboard boxes.

Some contributors have used plastic garbage bags in the past and this requires students collecting the papers to remove them from the bags, Mrs. Olson said, because the bags are not recyclable. Papers should be boxed or tied securely in bundles for easiest handling.

Hamerlinck Is Selected For Fellowship

Institute for Development of Educational activities, a division of the Charles F. Kettering foundation, has announced that Frank Hamerlinck, principal at Lincoln senior high school in Thief River Falls was recently selected as a member of its "Academy of Fellows."

Hamerlinck was chosen as one of 750 outstanding American educators to receive this honor and has just participated in a week-long seminar held at Colorado women's college in Denver.

During the week, a faculty of nationally prominent educational leaders addressed the members and met with them in small groups for the purpose of exploring new research and ideas about teaching and learning.

The academy of fellows is the oldest, continuing in-service program for school administrators in the nation.

Old Mill Will Grind Flour This Weekend

Old grist mill at Old Mill state park near Argyle will be in operation this weekend, August 1 and 2, from 1 to 4 p.m. The 103-year-old Case steam engine which has recently been repaired will once again power the mill.

Labor for the grinding is provided by members of the Marshall County Historical society through the V.I.P. (Volunteers In Parks) program, according to Leonard W. Anderson, park manager.

Letters to The Editor

To The Editor,

My 11-year-old son and nine other male school safety patrol members from five elementary schools in Thief River Falls recently completed a week-long camping experience at Legionville school safety patrol camp near Brainerd.

It was an excellent experience for the boys. They had fun and learned more about school patrol, safety and first aid. Because of Legionville camp, these 10 boys and the 10 girls who will be attending Legionville later this summer, will be better qualified to assist new patrolmen in the school safety patrol program to make Thief River Falls a safer place for our children.

I would publicly like to thank Cliff Mattson, local Legionville chairman, the Minnesota state patrol, the local school system and the American Legion Post, for sponsoring the school safety patrol program. A special thank you to the Legion post for totally sponsoring the week-long Legionville camp for the 20 boys and girls.

I would also like to thank the American Legion for the numberous contributions (over $17,000) to other organizations, charities and causes that help both our youth and elderly.

Keep up the good work.

Sincerely yours,
Art Heinze

"LES FOURBERIES de Scapin (The Trickery of Scapin)" will be the theatrical production staged this Sunday beginning at 3:30 p.m. at the Floyd B. Olson park as part of the Thief River Falls Aquacade celebration. Event is sponsored locally by the Thief River Falls Jaycees. Six-member Pillow Theatre Company, an international ensemble touring Minnesota this summer, will present the special production as an outreach effort by Bemidji state university and the Paul Bunyan Playhouse. Pictured, left to right, are Dave Calder, Jim Calder, director, and Jenny Klion.

Senior Meals Weekly Menu

Monday, August 3: Breaded pork chops, au gratin potatoes, spinach, white combination salad, vanilla pudding, bread with margarine, coffee, milk, tea.

Tuesday, August 4: Swiss steak, baked potato with butter, squash, tossed salad, apple pie, bread with margarine, coffee, milk, tea.

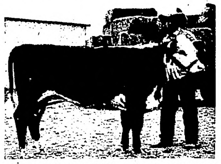
Meals are served Monday through Friday at noon at Northwestern hospital. Anyone 60 and over is welcome to attend. For more information call 681-4240, extension 429.

Senior meals and activity program is sponsored by Tri-valley opportunity council, inc. and is made possible in part by Northwest regional development commission area agency on aging, the state of Minnesota, by Title III-C of the Older Americans act through a grant from the Minnesota board on aging and the support of local communities.



JUNIOR SHOWMANSHIP champion in the 4-H club beef division at the Pennington county fair was Daryl Rupprecht of the Silverton 4-H club who showed this Hereford heifer.

Seminar Slated At Bemidji On City Tax Levy

League of Minnesota Cities is sponsoring a seminar to explain new state levy limit laws which restrict cities' ability to levy property taxes. One of the seminars will be held at Bemidji city hall from 12:30 to 4 p.m. Monday, August 3, and will be attended by local officials and others who are interested in the city budget preparation process.

In the past, only one annual seminar has been given — in St. Paul. This year the league is taking the seminar "on the road" because the new law applies to all 855 cities in the state, not just the 167 cities over 2,500 population.

In addition to explaining levy limits, the seminar will present information on local government aids, the homestead credit program and other matters affecting local budget and finance decisions.

appointed as attorney for the school district for the coming year. Enrollment increase in the AVTI sales and marketing class resulted in increasing the instructional contract from half-time to full-time. Ken Skold was named to continue as architect for the district on all projects in process.

Reduction in open swimming fee from $1 to 50 cents was approved, effective immediately.

Two nine-month bus driver positions were terminated due to reduced need and budget reductions. The board granted permission to advertise for bids for three diesel-powered buses at an approximate total of $140,000 and to advertise for sale of two present buses.

Report was given on structural problems in the vacated portion of the Lincoln building and a citizens' committee is being formed to study present building problems. New superintendent Robert Block informed the board that there will be a number of Laotian students in the district this fall and there is concern for housing these students. The administration was instructed to continue seeking a solution to the housing problem.

Proposed business office reorganization plan presented by the administration for the AVTI was approved by the board. Renewal was made for workers compensation insurance with the Minnesota School Boards association insurance trust and for the employees blanket bond with Thune-Upham and associates.

Bids accepted were from Schumacher Tireland for tires for the transportation department; K. E. Erickson for shear-power squaring for the AVTI; Dow for iron worker for the AVTI; Mr. and Mrs. Donald Thyren for a lot for the AVTI house project; Langlie Lectric for electrical wiring and Home Lumber for materials on the AVTI house project No. 1; Sun Electric for a performance analyzer for the AVTI; St. Paul Book and Stationery company for resource center furniture for the AVTI; Gaffaney's for five modular office clusters for the AVTI; and Tony Dorn for transcribers and electronic typewriters for the AVTI.

Bids were rejected by the board for a reconditioned truck forklift, plumbing supplies for the new AVTI house project and 12 calculators for the AVTI.

Prudential Insurance company's bid for group health coverage was accepted at $40.14 for single coverage and $98.04 for family coverage, effective Aug. 1, 1981 through Aug. 1, 1982.

The board approved plans for the proposed AVTI house project No. 2 and authorized bid advertisement for plumbing, heating, electrical and materials for construction. Authorization was also given the administration to advertise for three reading teachers, one of which is to be a lead teacher, and for one special education management aide.

Next regular board meeting will be August 10. A teacher and board negotiations session will be held August 11 at 7 p.m. in the Lincoln library.

Farmers Union Oil Co. Notes Record Sales

Total sales of Farmers Union Oil company of Thief River Falls topped the $4 million mark for the first time in the fiscal year ending March 31, members were told at the cooperative's annual meeting Thursday in the Thief River Falls city auditorium.

Sales of $4,400,894 were an increase of $568,000 from a year ago. Net savings for the year totaled $281,504, including $190,552 generated locally and $90,552 received in patronage refunds from other sources. Total net savings a year ago were $218,428.

At the end of the year the cooperative showed total assets of $2,134,451 and total liabilities of $547,530. Assets are up from $2,018,485 and liabilities are down from $632,561 a year ago. Total member and patron equities are $1,586,921 this year compared to 1,385,924 a year ago.

Kenneth Kalsnes was elected to board of director membership to succeed Irwin Asseby who retired from the board. Melvin Melin of Red Lake Falls was reelected.

Other members of the board are Jarvis Torgerson, George Panek and Vernon Rogalla. Cyril Stenerud is manager of the fertilizer and chemical department, Dave Rasmussen manages the station at St. Hilaire and Ferdie Mandt is general manager of the company at Thief River Falls.

Rural Electrification Administration

APPENDIX A

Statement of Nondiscrimination

"Wikstrom Telephone Co., Inc., has filed with the Federal Government a Compliance Assurance in which it assures the Rural Electrification Administration that it will comply fully with all requirements of Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 and the Rules and Regulations of the Department of Agriculture issued thereunder, to the end that no person in the United States shall, on the ground of race, color, or national origin, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be otherwise subjected to discrimination in the conduct of its program and the operation of its facilities. Under this Assurance, this organization is committed not to discriminate against any person on the ground of race, color or national origin in its policies and practices relating to applications for service or any other policies and practices relating to treatment of beneficiaries and participants including rates, conditions and extension of service, use of any of its facilities, attendance at and participation in any meetings of beneficiaries and participants or the exercise of any rights of such beneficiaries and participants in the conduct of the operations of this organization.

"Any person who believes himself, or any specific class of individuals, to be subjected by this organization to discrimination prohibited by Title VI of the Act and the Rules and Regulations issued thereunder may, by himself or a representative, file with the Secretary of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. 20250, or the Rural Electrification Administration, Washington, D. C. 20250, or this organization, or all, a written complaint. Such complaint must be filed not later than 90 days after the alleged discrimination, or by such later date to which the Secretary of Agriculture or the Rural Electrification Administration extends the time for filing. Identity of complainants will be kept confidential except to the extent necessary to carry out the purposes of the Rules and Regulations."

Vet Counseling Service To Open Minot Office

Vet center counseling service for Vietnam-era veterans is planned for Minot, N.D., Veterans administration chief Robert P. Nimmo announced today.

Nimmo, who took the oath of office July 15 as administrator of veterans affairs, said 42 new counseling facilities will be added to the program under terms of the Reagan bipartisan budget resolution — expanding the popular program by 50 per cent.

New Minot office will be one of the 42 new facilities which will bring to 133 the number of counseling facilities available to Vietnam-era veterans who may be suffering readjustment problems following military service during the Vietnam conflict. One of the original Vet centers in the state is located in Fargo.

As he had during his confirmation hearings before the Senate Veterans affairs committee July 9, Nimmo stressed the fact that, "While the vast majority of our Vietnam veterans have successfully returned to our working society, a substantial number still suffer various degrees of readjustment difficulty."

It is those veterans, he said, "whom we will continue to reach out to through this expanded Vet center program."

Nimmo said the centers typically have staffs of three to five persons who operate on an informal, person-to-person basis with Vietnam-era veterans experiencing emotional and other readjustment problems.

"We hope to have all of the new centers in operation within three to four months," Nimmo said. Some are almost ready to begin operations and others will be opened as suitable space can be arranged and personnel recruited.

Since the Vet center program began operation early in 1980, approximately 72,000 Vietnam-era veterans have been counseled. Nimmo said VA officials believe the new centers will be much more efficient than the original ones because contacting and counseling efficiency have been improved.

The expectation, he said, is that the new center teams will be able to provide assistance to approximately 12,000 Vietnam-era veterans in their first year of operation.

The Vet center program has a budget of $29,580,000 for fiscal year 1982.

Other new Vet centers in this area will be located at Sioux City, IA; Lincoln, NB; Rapid City, SD, and Madison, WI.

GTA Request Approved By City Council

council members met with members of Jobs Incorporated and representatives of GTA, including Karl Butzer, vice president and general manager of the feed division of GTA, and Tom Gaffney, director of production at GTA.

At that meeting, Mayor Bob Carlson informed the representatives of the city's resolution to allow the firm to extend a private line into the city's sewer system with no hook-up charge.

Butzer indicated at the meeting that, at present, the firm would use on-site disposal if located here, following which the city informed him that their offer would remain open in the future if GTA decided to locate in Thief River Falls and needed the sewer service.

Butzer explained to members what would be included in the livestock feed manufacturing plant, if such a facility were to locate in Thief River Falls. The plant, if constructed, would cost approximately $2,000,000 and would employ from 15 to 30 persons. "The 15 to 16 people hired in the beginning would be mainly local persons," Butzer said. Business would cover a 125 to 150-mile radius.

He further discussed with council the major questions of concern during the city's Monday meeting by indicating that there would be no traffic problems created by the facility if located here, and that no pollution or dust problems would result from the plant.

GTA board members will meet August 4 during which a decision on the plant and its location hopefully will be made, Butzer indicated. At present, the city of Fosston is also under consideration for locating the plant. A report will be made to the city following the GTA meeting.

Discussion of Dutch elm disease in the city of Thief River Falls, an item of concern during the city's last regular meeting, was presented by Mike Mongoven, park and recreation director and John W. Johnson, city tree inspector. Recommendation from the park board requested the city's adoption of tree regulations to help control the disease.

"I believe we can do a fairly good job of keeping the disease (Dutch Elm) under control by adopting these regulations," Johnson said.

Regulations not only describe methods to prevent Dutch Elm disease but offer information on where and how to properly plant other types of trees. At present, Johnson said, there are 15 suspected cases of the disease in the city of Thief River Falls, but added that a decline in the number of cases would be noted as the summer season comes to an end.

Mongoven indicated also that tree planting information is available from the park and recreation department for those desiring it. He also suggested last evening that a license and fee should be considered for persons desiring to commercially cut down trees within the city.

Following discussion, alderman Bill Penning introduced the resolution to turn the issue over to the legal department for proper wording of the regulations and further study with a report back to city council members at their next regular meeting August 11.

Council members, last evening, approved the request by Tim Bischke of Anoka for a fruit and vegetable license (truckload sales); Dan Royal, book salesman for a peddler's permit; and John Zukatis, for a flea market in the Floyd B. Olson park in Thief River Falls August 15.

Recommendations from the building committee for fees charged to various agencies for the use of city owned facilities on weekends and holidays was tabled by members to the next regular city council meeting.

Ken Froschheiser, Thief River Falls chief of police, discussed the need for a two-hour parking zone on the east side of south LaBree near the CNC unit at Northwestern hospital and a no parking zone on the east side of Atlantic and Sixth street. Both recommendations were approved by city council members following the introduction of a resolution by alderman Womack.

At the conclusion of the meeting, Mayor Bob Carlson mentioned the proclamation of Manitoba Day in Thief River Falls August 3 in conjunction with the Thief River Falls Jaycee Aquacade and Crazy Days.

Ihle Reviews Law Changes For Realtors

Attorney Paul Ihle discussed current changes in contract for deed laws, assumption laws, listing and purchase agreements at a meeting of the Thief River Falls board of realtors recently.

The board is making plans for a program of giving awards in a home beautification program. It also listed the new house being built by the area vocational technical institute and made plans for helping to sell it.

Represented at the meeting were Thief River realty, Gibson realty, Four Seasons realty, Thune-Upham, Action realty and Phelps Farm Sales of Thief River Falls and Johnson realty of Hallock.

Contemporary Life...
A remarkable new concept that puts you—not the insurance company—in control of your life insurance.
Offers advantages traditional life insurance simply cannot!
FLEXIBILITY. You determine your premium payments: How much—how long—when to pay—or, even if payment is to be made at all. Cash Value can be adjusted up or down. Coverage can be increased or decreased—all to meet changing financial needs.
COST SAVINGS. Two new innovations make Contemporary Life the most cost effective policy you have ever seen:
1. One policy can serve all your life insurance needs—and, those of your family—thus saving issue and administrative costs involved in owning several policies.
2. The Cash Value in Contemporary Life is credited monthly with Current Interest as determined by the Company. Presently this is 9%. Interest credited will never be less than the guaranteed rate of 4%.
TAX BENEFITS: Contemporary Life enjoys all the tax advantages of traditional life insurance—Tax deferred interest accrual and tax free death benefits.
Contact us today, so we can provide you with additional information. You'll be amazed at what a difference Contemporary Life can make in your life.

Survey Shows Public Favors Reagan Tax Cut

Senator Rudy Boschwitz announced today that 83.7 per cent of Minnesotans responding to a "Rudy Wants To Know" media survey he recently conducted favored the President's budget and tax cutting program.

Boschwitz initiated the survey to garner his constituents' views to help him represent them during the Senate's consideration of the President's plan.

"People back home are still responding to my survey," Boschwitz said. "I'm pleased that their overall response has been favorable and think it shows that the November mandate of voters nationwide remains."

In addition to his initial survey question, Boschwitz asked nine others. The Senator found:

(1) 82.4 per cent believed reduced federal spending is necessary to bring inflation under control;

(2) 69.7 per cent want to reduce federal spending the budget deficit by $41.1 billion;

(3) 72.8 per cent believe that cuts can be fairly spread among all Americans;

(4) 58.9 per cent want individual income tax cuts of 10 per cent a year for three years;

(5) 56 per cent believe in a constitutional Amendment balancing the budget;

(6) 71.2 per cent want to return more authority to state and local governments to determine how federal funds should be spent;

(7) 63.5 per cent want business tax cuts and accelerated depreciation schedules;

(8) 71.9 per cent want a strong national defense;

(9) 57.3 per cent want a law limiting federal spending to a percentage of the gross national product.

SPECIAL RULES were invoked for the mud wrestling championships Sunday at the Pennington county fair. No kicking, kneeing, eye gouging or drowning were permitted, but this contestant appears to have difficulty believing the no drowning rule is being enforced. Plans are already underway for another event next year.

FAIR BOARD MEMBER Bill Ulrich (top photo at right) learned the basics of mud wrestling in one easy lesson Sunday afternoon at the Pennington county fair. Referee Jim Hallamek called Ulrich to the microphone for a few compliments, then toppled the white-garbed victim into the soup which all wrestlers shared that afternoon.

DEMONSTRATION given during the county fair last week was presented by Cindi Solem of the City View 4-H club. While most of the competitive demonstrations were given prior to the fair, Cindi presented this demonstration for the fair-going public.

CHAMPIONSHIP match in the middleweight division of the mud wrestling tournament at the Pennington county fair Sunday afternoon was fought to a 2-2 draw between Galen Anderson of Trail (left) and Steve Jorstad of Thief River Falls.

BETH BLANKENFELD showed her talent as keeper of the vinyard by winning an open class grand championship with these grapes at the Pennington county fair last week.

MARY JANE GOLDSTRAND of Lake Bronson entered the grand champion oil painting at the Pennington county fair open class competition last week with this scenic entry.

LLEWELYN TROSKA of rural Goodridge earned a grand championship ribbon at the Pennington county fair open class competition last week with this knit sweater entry.

ROBERT JOHNSON of rural Goodridge built this miniature doll house which won an open class grand championship in the novelty division at the Pennington county fair last week.

EMMA PETERSON was again among the open class grand champion winners at the Pennington county fair last week. Her winning entry this year was a collection of various types of jelly.

FIRST ROUND WINNER in her match, Joann Conners was all hosed off and waiting for her next match when this Times photo was taken Sunday during mud wrestling action at the Pennington county fair. Joann eventually lost the women's 130-pound and lighter class to Lori Kaml but claimed $40 in prize money.

AMBER RICHARDSON of Thief River Falls showed the champion open class flowers in child's division open class competition at the Pennington county fair with this gloriosa daisy entry.

MUD WRESTLERS made quite a splash a number of times Sunday afternoon at a new event for the Pennington county fair. Referee Jim Hallamek watches closely as Joann Conners (in control above) grapples for the women's lightweight championship with Lori Kaml. Lori won the division, however, and says she expects to be back to defend her title next year.

GRAND CHAMPION

BRENDA ODE was a double winner in open class competition at the Pennington county fair this year. The Thief River Falls youngster won the children's sewing division with a skirt and vest and cross stitch division with a small wall hanging.

MARILYN HANSON won the adult sewing division in open class at the Pennington county fair last week with this suit entry.

HOME ENVIRONMENT championship was won by Jill Stenberg of the Steiner 4-H club in 4-H club competition at the Pennington county fair last week.

CROP ENTRIES in the Pennington county fair this year were exceptionally nice with the early spring and cooperative weather since that time contributing to good crop development. Tim Mickelson of the Kratka 4-H club shows his grand championship entry in the 4-H club division.

"THE EXECUTIONER", a masked mud wrestler from parts unknown, decked referee Jim Hallamek during the mud wrestling program at the Pennington county fair Sunday afternoon.

OLGA JOHNSON of Thief River Falls won the senior citizen division in open class competition at the Pennington county fair last week with this afghan entry.

Area Players Shine In All-Star Game

Crookston's Les Drechsel, who served as head coach of the Out-State team that played the Metro team in the annual high school all-star football game Saturday at Parade Stadium in Minneapolis, took an awful lot of pride in the performances turned in by northwestern Minnesota players in the surprisingly easly 30-13 Out-State team win over the Metro squad, made the favorite going into the game by the metropolitan press.

Four area players named to the Out-State team were all starters Saturday. Crookston's Steve Johnson was the game's top star, gaining headlines for his ability as a runningback that netted him 153 yards on 32 carries. He scored twice and caught two passes.

"Stats point it out — I think he (Johnson) had to be one of the better runningbacks in the game, and I assume most of the better runningbacks in the state played in the game," said Drechsel about his former Crookston star who will be playing college hockey this year at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute in Troy, N.Y.

Other area players in the game were Bob Lubarski, a defensive back from Warren who will play football at the University of North Dakota; Greg Lavoy, an offensive guard from Mahnomen who is headed for North Dakota State University; and Daryl Tysdal, a defensive tackle from Fergus Falls who has indicated he will play football at Fergus Falls community college.

"Lubarski started at safety and played very, very well," mentioned Drechsel, who also said that Lubarski was the team's No. 2 kicker, ranking on par in that category with Joe Christopherson of Austin Pacelli, who is headed for the University of Minnesota.

"Lavoy is one super football player," explained Drechsel. "He's 240 pounds and very quick. He could end up playing a lot of football at NDSU this year."

"Tysdal played exceptionally well on defense," noted Drechsel. "I didn't realize he was that strong."

Sponsors were delighted with the crowd of 12,000. They indicated that the outcome of the game may heighten the rivalry between the two squads and create additional interest. Prior to the game most observers had made the Metro team a heavy favorite.

"A lot of people figure that when they get north of Highway 10 there isn't any good football being played," said Drechsel. "And that's not true. I think we play very good football in this part of the state."

Drechsel should know what he's talking about. His Pirates were unbeaten Class A state champions last fall and he was named Minnesota football coach of the year.

In talking about various players in the all-star game, which features players who graduated the prior spring and who were nominated by their high school coaches before being chosen by a selection committee, Drechsel noted that Barry Wohler of Bird Island-Lake Lillian, who quarterbacked his Out-State team, "has the quickest feet of any quarterback I've ever seen." But he's an option-type quarterback headed to a passing-orientated offense at the University of Minnesota.

Drechsel also feels the University of North Dakota is getting two quality quarterbacks in Mike Moe of Minnetonka, who played most of the time for the Metro team, going 9-for-22 for 119 yards passing, and Neil Stock of New Ulm, a passing wiz who missed a couple of days practice to care for an in-grown toenail. Stock, who didn't get to throw the ball Saturday because of the Out-State team's success on the ground with Johnson, might be the Sioux quarterback of the future, though.

Drechsel said that Jack Schlichting of Brooklyn Center, a runningback-quarterback-receiver who is headed for the University of Minnesota, was the best football player on the Metro team.

Oldest known living thing on earth, according to the National Wildlife Federation, is a bristlecone pine tree in the White Mountains of East-central California. Scientists have determined that this tree is 4,800 years old.

TRF Hosts Sub District Games

Unbeaten regular season pennant winner Crookston plays Newfolden at 6 p.m. while evenly-matched rivals Thief River Falls and East Grand Forks tangle at 8 Friday in the 1981 Northwest League Sub District American Legion baseball tournament on the Thief River Falls fairgrounds diamond.

Championship game will be played here at 7 p.m. Saturday, but it's the Friday games that are really meaningful because both the Sub District champion and runner-up advance to the Ninth District tournament August 6-9 at Moorhead.

The five-team Northwest League playoffs began Tuesday when Newfolden posted a surprisingly easly 10-0 win over Warroad to round out the semifinal field.

Eugene Kaml pitched a two-hit shutout for the winners, who lost a pair of high-scoring regular season games to Warroad: 15-11 and 11-10 in nine innings. Kaml struck out seven and walked three.

Newfolden jumped out to a 5-0 first inning lead when Kaml and Donovan Larson both produced two-run doubles. One run crossed the plate in the third and four more scored in the fourth. The winners had a 5-2 base hit edge and were 9-for-9 in the stolen base department, with Brad Cook stealing three bases. Warroad committed five of the game's seven errors.

Coach Ron Ueland feels his 2-8 Newfolden squad has made vast improvements this summer and can be competitive with the rest of the tournament field.

However, Crookston went 8-0 in Northwest League games this summer and will bring a 25-7-1 overall record into the tournament, which included a 10-0 rout of East Grand Forks Monday. Crookston edged East Grand Forks 2-1 in an early season game.

"Crookston is definitely the favorite," acknowledged Thief River Falls coach Nick Drees, who watched his club lose 8-2 and 3-1 games to the league champions. "They have 4-5 real good ball players who know what they're doing out there. Crookston isn't overpowering, but they're a good ball club; solid defensively."

"But we're not afraid of them," continued Drees. "I'm confident we can win — I'm not sure that we will, but I'm confident we can."

The Thief River Falls - East Grand Forks match-up could be a dandy. Thief River Falls pulled out a pair of last-inning wins when the two clubs met during the regular season, winning a 4-3 game here July 2 when Dave Kays hit a seventh inning home run and taking a 2-1 decision out of East Grand Forks July 22 as the game ended with the tying run being thrown out at the plate.

"We hope that our two wins over them will have an affect on both teams," explained Drees, who hopes that the "It's-tough-to-beat-somebody-three-times-in-a-row" feeling will be overcome by "We-can't-seem-to-beat-these-guys" feelings on the part of East Grand Forks.

Thief River Falls goes into tournament play with a 19-12-1 record.

"We don't seem to do a whole lot of things well," admitted Drees, "but we win ball games. The kids just don't quit; that's their biggest asset."

Thief River Falls finished the season in solid fashion. The club played good ball in losing to Crookston 3-1 and beating East Grand Forks 2-1 to finish up Northwest League play, then split a pair of doubleheaders on the road over the weekend, winning 7-6 and losing a 1-0 five-inning game at Detroit Lakes, then losing 4-2 but winning 8-0 against Fergus Falls.

Lefthander Kevin Sanders is scheduled to start on the mound for Thief River Falls Friday. Delray Ness has been the team's top righthanded pitcher.

East Grand Forks is the defending Sub District tournament champion.

Elks Play Chaska In First Round State Meet Game

Thief River Falls Elks, carrying a 25-5 season record, will face the host Chaska team Friday at 7 p.m. in the first round of the 1981 state Babe Ruth baseball tournament for 14-15-year-olds.

An opening round victory in the 12-team, double-elimination tournament would put Thief River Falls back on the playing field Saturday at 4 p.m. An opening round loss would keep the Elks idle until Sunday afternoon at 4.

Coached by Bruce Williams, the Elks will be making their third straight state tournament appearance, but will be looking for their first state tournament win.

Playing in the 1980 state Babe Ruth tournament at Morris, the Elks lost to Shakopee 6-4 and fell to Burnsville 9-3 to end a 22-6 season. In the 1979 state meet at Maple Lake, Thief River Falls lost to East St. Paul 15-3 and fell to Prior Lake 9-2 for a 23-10 season finish.

The Elks earned a state tournament trip by beating the Thief River Falls Independents 6-4 in the finals of the Lake Agassiz District tournament played last week at Roseau. The week before the Independents knocked off the Elks 4-3 in the finals of the Lake Agassiz South Half Sub District tournament at Red Lake Falls, although both teams were already assured district tournament spots.

Elks, Independents and Crookston Gold finished in a three-way first place tie in the final regular season Lake Agassiz South Half standings.

Roseau Plans MD Slow Pitch Tournament

Roseau Jaycees will be holding their fifth annual invitational MD (Muscular Dystrophy) slow pitch softball tournament on Sunday, August 23. All proceeds from the tournament will go to help Jerry's Kids fight MD.

Last year's tournament raised over $2,300 for Jerry Lewis and his MD kids, with the Roseau Jaycees receiving state and national awards for this project.

Entry fee will be $50 per team. Each team may have up to 13 players on their roster. A $1 admission fee will be charged everyone at the gate (pre-school free). This admission fee also is to help Jerry's Kids fight M.D. Sixteen teams have already entered for the 32-team event. Deadline for signing up is Wednesday, August 19. Send entry fees to the Roseau Jaycees, P.O. Box 217, Roseau, MN 56751.

Tom Hunt Named Basketball Coach

Search for a new head basketball coach at Lincoln high school ended Monday when Tom Hunt was named by the Thief River Falls school board to succeed Glen Peters as the Prowlers' coach for the 1981-82 season.

Hunt moves up to the head coaching spot here after serving one year on the Prowlers' staff as coach of the sophomore squad.

"I'm enthused. I'm looking forward to the opportunity," Hunt said by telephone Tuesday from his rural home near Crookston. He plans to commute between the two sites — Crookston and Thief River Falls — again this school year.

A graduate of John Swett high school in Crockett, Calif., Hunt received a BA degree in business from Gonzaga University in Spokane, Wash. in 1971 and earned his teaching degree from Montana State University in 1976.

Hunt's coaching career began as a freshman assistant basketball coach at Gonzaga. He served as an assistant basketball coach at Montana State for three years and coached at the high school level at Casselton, N.D. where he directed the girls basketball team for two years, the boys basketball team for one year and was boys head track coach one year before accepting a position at Lincoln high school as a distributive education instructor and an assistant basketball coach.

Peters, named Thief River Falls basketball coach prior to the 1975-76 season, resigned following the 1980-81 season, a frustrating year in which the Prowlers struggled to a 4-15 record.

Hunt said he had no preconceived goals or expectations heading into the 1981-82 basketball season. His top priorities, he said, pectations heading into the terest, pride and enthusiasm into the program. If we can play with those things, we'll be able to take whatever comes — winning or losing."

Far North Softball Tournament Is Set

Thief River Falls softball association's 19th annual Far North fast pitch tournament will be held Sunday on the Pennington county fairgrounds diamonds.

The 16-team tournament will feature entries from Detroit Lakes; Bemidji, Grand Forks, Fargo and Clifford-Galesburg, N.D., along with the Thief River Falls league teams and perhaps some Canadian entries.

Defending champion Molstad Excavating, along with runner-up Bonanaza Sirloin, a pair of Grand Forks teams, are both scheduled to be here Sunday. Molstad Excavating took Bonanza Sirloin 5-3 in the 1980 title game, but only one team has been able to successfully defend its title in the 18-year history of the event: the East Side Merchants of East Grand Forks who won back-to-back titles in 1964 and 1965.

Tournament pairings have not yet been set. First round games will begin at 9 a.m. Championship game is tentatively set for 5 p.m.

RON OSTBY DIDN'T get this Jeff Hendrickson pitch in the first inning, but he was the top offensive performer in Tuesday's Thief River Falls fast pitch softball league game with a 3-for-4 effort that included two home runs and four runs-batted-in to carry North Star Transport to a 5-1 victory over Popplers. The winners climbed into a first place tie with idle Action Realty while Popplers fell two games off the pace.

North Star Transport Is 5-1 Winner Over Popplers

North Star Transport climbed into a first place tie with idle Action Realty Tuesday in the Thief River Falls fast pitch softball league by claiming a key 5-1 victory over pennant challenger Popplers.

Schmidts edged TG Sporting Goods 6-5 in 11 innings in Tuesday's doubleheader nightcap.

Popplers 1

North Star Transport used the bat of Ron Ostby in beating Popplers 5-1. Ostby was 3-for-4 at the plate, hitting two home runs and driving in four runs.

The winners gained a 1-0 lead in the top of the first inning when Nick Nelbauer singled to left, advanced to second on a ground-out, stole third and scored on Ostby's single to center.

A two-out solo home run on an 0-1 pitch by Ostby in the fifth inning made it 2-0.

Popplers cut the gap to 2-1 when Don Balmer laced an 0-1 pitch over the left field barrier in the bottom of the fifth, but North Star Transport picked up a run in the sixth and Ostby hit his second homer of the game, a two-run shot in the seventh for the final 5-1 tally.

TG Sporting Goods and Schmidts battled for 11 innings before Schmidts scored a run in the bottom of the inning to pull out a 6-5 win.

Schmidts had scored a pair of runs in the second inning and a lone run in the fourth for a 3-0 lead.

In the fifth, TG Sporting Goods used singles by Steve Geatz, Dean Lawrenz and Brad Kosel, plus Gordie Markstrom's double and a Terry Sullivan triple and an error to score five runs.

Paul Walker evened the score at 5-5 in the bottom of the fifth with a two-run home run.

Court Says Wildlife Group May Purchase N.D. Pothole Habitat

Federal acquisition of habitat vital to the millions of migratory ducks which breed in North Dakota every year can continue as a result of a decision recently handed down by the U.S. Court of Appeals in St. Louis, Mo.

The court decided in favor of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, which had sued the state of North Dakota in 1980, charging that bills passed by the state legislature in 1977 violated federal statutes protecting migratory birds.

"This decision represents a significant victory for wildlife and wildlife habitat," said Thomas Tomasello, attorney for the National Wildlife Federation, which along with the North Dakota Wildlife Federation, an NWF affiliate, had filed a friend-of-the-court brief on the side of the government. "It establishes the important precedent that states cannot enact legislation which would eliminate the Fish and Wildlife Service's ability to implement national wildlife programs. Specifically, the decision allows the Fish and Wildlife Service to acquire prairie pothole habitat in North Dakota, thus protecting it from further agricultural development."

Migratory bird hunting conservation stamp act protects migratory birds by providing funds from the sale of duck stamps to hunters for the acquisition and preservation of their habitat. Fish and Wildlife Service now owns about 768,000 acres of prairie pothole easements in North Dakota, purchased from willing sellers. Under the leases landowners may not drain these areas during the duck nesting and breeding season. The Interior Department agency stopped acquiring easements in July, 1977, after North Dakota passed legislation limiting the duration of the purchased easements and requiring gubernatorial consent before any additional easements could be purchased. It is this legislation which the Court of Appeals found to be illegal.

Prairie potholes are depressions in the land left behind when the mammoth glaciers which blanketed the northern great plains during the last ice age melted. Potholes are found over thousands of miles of central Canada, and about three million acres of the Dakotas and Minnesota. According to Tomasello, thousands of these potholes in the U.S. have already been drained and the land converted to agricultural use.

"Potholes provide habitat for all kinds of prairie wildlife, but millions of migratory ducks could not survive without them," he emphasized. "Almost 50 per cent of all North American Ducklings are born in the pothole region. These prairie wetlands prevent flooding in years of heavy rainfall, and provide farmers and ranchers with important forage crops. They also act as buffers against water pollution. This decision will allow the Fish and Wildlife Service to purchase enough prairie potholes to meet the needs of the nation's migratory waterfowl."

The eighth judicial circuit served by the federal appeals court in St. Louis includes the U.S. district courts of Arkansas, Iowa, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska and the Dakotas. Unless overturned by the U.S. Supreme Court or successfully challenged in another area, the court's ruling becomes, in effect, the "law of the land."

Fish, Wildlife Service Issues News Reports

In keeping with the Interior Department's commitment to eliminate unnecessary federal regulations, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service has proposed dropping the requirement for permits to import or export migratory birds, eggs, parts, or products. The present import-export permit requirement was established in 1961, prior to other statutes such as the Endangered Species Act and provisions in various international treaties which now regulate international shipments of wildlife.

Waterfowl propagators, migratory bird researchers, and falconers are among those most likely to be affected by the proposal, which was published in the May 29, 1981, Federal Register. Interested individuals, groups, or agencies with pertinent information on the proposed change are asked to send their comments to the Director (LE), U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Department of the Interior, Washington, D.C. 20240, before June 29, 1981.

Saints Win Division I Title With 12-2 Victory

St. Hilaire Saints clinched the Division I regular season title Tuesday in the Thief River Falls women's slow pitch softball league by beating pennant challenger Dwight's Hartz 12-2.

The Saints' attack featured five triples: two by Lonie Tollefson and one each by Marlys Huot, Diane Drury and Kristy Peterson.

In another key Tuesday make-up game, the Mush-a-rettes wrestled first place away from Pizza Hut with a 9-6 win in a match-up of Division II leaders. Sue Olson homered for the winners while Lin Christensen hit two home runs in a losing effort.

Schmidt Stealers edged Ekeren Drug 9-8 as Rosemary Naeseth and Sue Spicer homered. Paula Hanson hit a home run for Ekeren Drug.

Walseth Construction routed Rusty Nail 33-7 with a home run attack that saw Julie Odegaard hit two round-trippers while Kim Hamilton, LeAnn Peterson and Mavis Miller each hit one.

Tuesday's schedule made up games originally slated last Wednesday on the fairgrounds diamonds that were postponed because of the Pennington county fair. Games played on the East Side and Northland community college diamonds that night saw Northern Employers Agency beat Roseau Transport 7-4, Ridge Runners stopped American Legion 9-6, Honeybees handled Brodin 21-10 and Health Hustlers outscored Hydra-Mac 20-11.

Monday's regularly scheduled league games featured an upset as Gwen Nylen homered to lift the Health Hustlers to a 9-8 victory over Pizza Hut.

And in a couple of near-upsets, Lonie Tollefson homered to give the St. Hilaire Saints an 8-7 triumph over Roseau Transport while Dwight's Hartz pulled off a seventh inning double play to preserve a 4-2 triumph over Ekeren Drug.

Five home runs were featured in the Schmidt Stealers' 16-9 win over American Legion. Carrie Budke, Ruth Ostby, Kelly Storhaug and Linda Mercil homered for the winners while LeAnn Paetznick hit one for the losers.

Two home runs by Sue Olson and a triple and a homer by Carolyn Peterson carried the Mush-a-rettes past Rusty Nail 23-5.

Linda Rux homered and tripled while Georgine Troska came up with a bases-loaded triple in leading Northern Employers Agency past the Ridge Runners 13-5.

Home runs by Julie Odegaard and Kim Hamilton were part of a 14-3 Walseth Construction victory over the Honeybees.

Hydra-Mac beat Brodin 16-12.

Tips To Prevent Drownings Are Offered By DNR

Minnesota's waters have claimed 50 persons so far this year, according to Kim Elverum, boat and water safety coordinator for the Department of Natural Resources.

This total is broken down in 31 non-boating fatalities and 19 boating deaths as of July 13.

Elverum said that nearly all of the boating fatalities involve small open boats where the victim fell overboard or capsized the craft.

To prevent these types of tragedies, Elverum advises:

+ Always wear a personal floatation device or life preserver. In several of the more recent accidents, persons who were wearing these decives survived while their unfortunate companions drowned.

+ Watch the weather. In Minnesota, summer storms can easily capsize a small boat. These storms usually come from the west or southwest. If you are caught out in rough weather, head the boat into the waves at an angle.

+ Use the proper navigation lights at night. State law and common sense dictate that you "light up your life" when boating after sunset.

+ Remain seated in a small boat when starting an outboard or netting a fish.

+ Don't mix booze and boating. Even in moderate amounts, alcohol (including beer) adversely affects such vital body functions as balance, coordination and judgment.

+ Learn more about boating safety. Rmember, most boating deaths in Minnesota involve fishermen. Even though you may not be a boater in the true sense of the word, you should take the time to learn the basics of boating safety.

Most swimming or wading related deaths occur to persons less than six years of age and to males from 13 to 25 years old, Elverum said. Youngsters get in trouble when there is a lack of supervision by parents or persons in charge of swimming facilities and the child wades or falls into deep water. The 13 to 25-year-olds tend to overestimate their swimming abilities, swim in unsupervised areas and consume alcohol before and during swimming activities.

+ Parents of young children should keep track of them, especially when at the beach, pool or cabin. Even if the area has lifeguards, parents should still keep on eye on their youngsters.

+ Learn how to swim and know what your swimming abilities are! Swimming lessons for adults and youngsters are available at schools, parks, the local Red Cross, YMCA or YWCA.

+ Always swim in supervised areas when possible and during the hours when lifeguards are on duty. Swimming in unsupervised areas and after dark greatly increase the chance of a fatality.

+ Alcohol (or drugs) and swimming do not mix. Sober near-drowning victims may have a chance to be rescued as they usually struggle on the surface from 20 to 60 seconds before going under.

The person under the influence of drugs or alcohol, however, does not struggle on the surface or thrash his arms in an instinctive drowning manner.

He merely sinks quietly below the surface.

Who Invented The Chair That You're Sitting In?

by David M. Maxfield
Smithsonian News Service

Chances are you're reading this in a favorite easy chair. Or maybe you're sitting on a new modular unit, heirloom rocker, old Windsor, wingback or director's chair.

Have you thought much about that chair — who "invented" it, what sort of history it has? And what about your other furniture: How did that sofa-bed, highchair, chaise lounge and tilt-top table "arrive" at your house?

Though many people probably reserve their admiration and curiosity for the inventors of such gadgetry as electronic calculators and video equipment, there are also creative individuals quietly at work devising and refining the household objects that directly affect our day-to-day convenience and comfort.

Meet one of them — Peter Danko of Alexandria, VA, the 32-year-old designer of an innovative plywood chair molded from a single sheet of laminated wood under 16 tons of pressure. designed in 1976, the museum-quality chair is simplicity itself, the product of this craftsman's inquiring mind, an inspired moment and a dash of luck.

"I wanted to design a chair that was ultra-functional, good-looking and also inexpensive," Danko said recently at his studio. "But I had no idea what I was doing; I was never aware of the history of furniture design."

The creator of limited-edition sculptural furniture, Danko felt that both his own work and the production process he observed at factories was too time-consuming, a result of laborious assemblage steps. "Why should it take so long?" he thought.

One evening, Danko sat at a neighborhood bar downing a beer and toying around with a 3-by-5 menu card, bending it back and forth. "The idea — the single piece chair — just came to me," he recalled.

He approached several manufacturers, but they were skeptical, convinced that wood would split as the molding pressure was applied. Danko turned to the Museum of Modern Art in New York City. The museum quickly accepted the chair for its design study collection, then put him in contact with a receptive manufacturer, who is putting the chair into mass production.

Along with dozens of other household objects, many of them chairs that revolve, rock, fold up, stack and inflate, Danko's work also has found its way into a Smithsonian institution traveling exhibition service show entitled "Innovative Furniture in America."

The exhibit focuses on the technological changes in furniture design and production during the 19th and 20th centuries in terms of materials, comfort, portability, multiple use and fabrication techniques. Danko's chair, as it turns out, is the descendant of a pioneer bentwood model so modern in appearnace that the two look like contemporaries.

Many of the innovative furniture pieces in the show, which first appeared at the Cooper-Hewitt Museum, the Smithsonian's national museum of design in New York City, are registered with the U.S. patent office in keeping with the long-held American tradition recognized by the Constitution that citizens should be rewarded and protected for new ideas and ways of doing things.

Though patents have been awarded over the years for all sorts of things, including a 19th-century sofa-bathtub advertised as the "common sense invention of the age," innovation seems to occur in chairs more often than in other forms of furniture, the exhibit's curator, David Hanks, says. "The chair," he explains, "always has been a challenge for designers, though it is something everyone uses." Peter Danko agrees: "They are the hardest things to design."

If the task is difficult, the aim for most designers always has been the same, reconciling comfort with the manners and whims of each generation's own taste. Changes in clothing styles, for example, often influence the shape of the chairs we sit on, design critic Russell Lynes notes in an introduction to the exhibit's extensively researched catalog. "A lady in a bustle in a sling chair is as unthinkable," he writes, "as a man in a frock coat in designer-architect Eero Saarinen's 'womb' chair."

In 1957, Saarinen himself wrote about the large, comfortable chair he had designed a decade earlier to fit modern lifestyles. "People sit differently today than in the Victorian era," he said. "They want to sit lower and they want to slouch."

Comfort, a major priority today, was given little thought until the 1800s. The ubiquitous easy chair, for example, hardly existed before the Victorian Age, primarily because the most important invention until that time relating to comfort — the spiraled or coiled inner spring — was not introduced until 1828.

The rocking chair, an American invention, has also offered its owners a comfortable seat, along with something else. "The chairs," Lynes says, "had an obvious appeal to Americans, a restless people who found it difficult to sit still, a people for whom mobility was part and parcel of freedom — and still is." (President Kennedy, a rocker devotee, once recalled a line about the rocker: "It gives you a sense of motion without any sense of danger.")

Technological advances in the 19th century also opened the way for catalogs of new furniture designed to serve not one but several purposes. Designers created tables that expanded, chairs that turned into library steps and, more bizarrely, beds concealed in piano backs. One such convertible — a child's highchair — was ingenious and amusing, but to Lynes "perhaps the most hideous example of the futniture type." It could be contorted into a folding table, rocker, or incredibly, a baby carriage.

Even in its day, the convertible furniture trend got to be a bit "excessive," Hanks notes, and such items as the piano-bed became objects of ridicule. The craze for many of the cross-breeds eventually receded, but the multi-use design concept, he points out, seems here to stay, appearing now in the form of elaborate home entertainment centers and kitchen "islands" that serve as both work and storage units.

Portable furniture found new customers in the 19th century as Americans began to travel and move more often and needed light, durable and inexpensive chairs. The portability concept perhaps has reached its final stage with the invention of the "Wearable" chair. It is strapped to the legs and is always ready for instant sitting, albeit with dubious comfort at times in between.

The development of new materials for furniture in recent decades has stretched the imaginations and alternatives open to furniture designers. Besides wood, metal and few other traditional materials, today's home furnishings often as not are fashioned from rattan, paper, tubular steel, cardboard and plastic, the last a material whose boundaries only now are being explored. (For sheer fantasy, though, the chair aficionado might pick out a chair made of animal horns which was popular in hunting lodges and trophy rooms a century ago.)

What's new and innovative in American furniture today? Very little, say curator Hanks and critic Lynes. "Just dead in recent years," craftsman Danko adds. And Hanks says "it is the consensus that U.S. technological and aesthetic innovation in this field is on the decline, with Japan, Germany and Italy now the leaders."

The three agree that most U.S. furniture manufacturers now are too concerned with cosmetic changes. "With a few notable exceptions," Lynes says, the industry "feels that technological innovations are unrelated to profits."

Consider Where To Live On Retiring

Where are you going to live when you retire? Will you stay where you are now, sell your home and move to more economical housing in the same locality, or move out of the area? The choice you make will affect all aspects of your retirement, so consider each carefully, says the Minnesota Society of CPAs.

Look at home ownership in a different light, because your housing needs in retirement will change. Your house may be too big for you and your spouse, now that the children are gone. An older home usually costs more to maintain, and property taxes, utilities and insurance coverage grow more costly. If you are on a fixed income, ask yourself, can you afford the home you have?

A home is a sound investment, especially with the mortgage paid. But your money is tied up in the property and not available to you until you find a buyer. If you need more income during retirement, it may make sense to sell the house and invest the profits. (After 55, up to $100,000 of profit may be exempt from capital gains tax.) Of course, not everyone sells their homes — in 1977, about 82 per cent of people 65 and older were homeowners.

One way to reduce the costs of staying in your present home is to "share" it. Rental income can help you meet rising real estate taxes and maintenance costs. If you're undecided about selling your home, think about renting it out for awhile and moving somewhere else. (Any mortgage interest, property taxes, utilities and maintenance costs you pay while the house is rented are deductible on your federal income tax return.) Be sure to ensure that you'll still be able to take advantage of the capital gain exclusion, should you later decide to sell.

If you sell your home, you can move into a smaller residence or you can rent an apartment. Renting eliminates worries about upkeep, and is generally less expensive than home ownership, but you can't control your costs. When rents increase, you have little choice but to pay, unless you're willing to move again. If the building converts to a co-op or condominium, will you have to buy in order to stay there?

Many people dream of moving away to a new environment when they retire. Before making this big decision, use this checklist, whether you're moving across the country or across the state.

+ Do you want to live amidst city bustle or rural calm? If you want a parcel of land for growing vegetables, you should consider that aspect.

+ How many other retirees are living there? You'll make friends with your peers, but you may also want to live near people of other age groups.

+ What type of climate do you prefer? Find out the temperature ranges and the amount of rainfall (and snowfall) for each season. Visit the area you're interested in at various times of the year.

In 1978, 45 per cent of persons 65 and older lived in seven states: California, Florida, New York, Illinois, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Texas. States with a growing 65-and-older population include Nevada, Arizona, Hawaii and New Mexico.

+ What type of housing is available and what does it cost? What is the local property tax rate? In some locations, senior citizens' property is taxed at a lower rate. How much would it cost to rent a house or an apartment? If you've always wanted to build your own home, find out about the cost of land and building materials and what contractors charge.

+ What is the cost of living for the area you're considering? Prices for food, clothing, transportation, housing, utilities, medical and entertainment vary from one region of the country to another. Don't forget to check the sales and income taxes. Contact the local chamber of commerce for recent figures, and inquire how rapidly the cost of living is going up. Find out if you can pay less for some things as a senior citizen, such as lower bus fares or movie tickets.

Word has been received here that Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Evenson of Yuma, Ariz. were involved in an automobile accident during a recent visit to relatives in Portland, Ore. Mr. Evenson was not injured but his wife received a bad cut on her head. Edwin is a former resident here and is a brother of Lester Evenson.

Minnesota 3rd In Production Of Hogs, Pork

Minnesota continues to maintain its third place position as a top pork producing state, according to the Minnesota agricultural statistics service.

Over one-fourth of these hogs came from the nine counties on the Minnesota-Iowa border. Minnesota hog production is concentrated in southern Minnesota's "corn country", according to Carroll Rock, director of the service.

This means that the top 10 producing counties pulled in cash receipts in excess of $10 million each — just from hogs. These counties are Freeborn, Martin, Fillmore, Jackson, Mower, Nobles, Renville, Redwood, Blue Earth and Stearns. "This is clearly a good measure of how farmers directly contribute to the economic well-being of their rural communities," Rock states.

Unfortunately, this will be the service's last tally of county hog inventories because the Minnesota state legislature has cut funds to the service, Rock added. The service gets about 88 per cent of its funds from USDA — the rest comes from state approprirations to the Minnesota department of agriculture.

"Dollar-wise, it was a very small cut," sayd Rock, "but the result is that our entire livestock-dairy-poultry county estimates program was wiped out. Not only does this hurt the farmer but it means a big infirmation gap for county planners and for businesses that supply inputs, feed, transportation and other services.

"Establishing or relocating such businesses also requires good county data and with out it, many companies just won't take the risk."

Currently, all midwestern states except South Dakota make livestock county estimates each year for these purposes. These last hog and pig county estimates are available free from the service by writing P.O. Box 70068, St. Paul, MN 55107.

Staff In Emergency Room Must Be Prepared

by Leslie Martin

A children's hospital emergency room staff must be prepared for anything: accidental poisoning, respiratory failure, fractures, burns, near drowning, eye injuries, fevers, sprains, sore throats, candy or a small toy in a three-year-old's nose, or a phone call from worried parents wondering what to do with their child who ate a worm.

With patience and empathy, the doctors and nurses who work in the emergency room at Minneapolis Children's Health Center soothe the sometimes painful consequences of children's curiosity, mischief and ingenuity. With love, dedication, skill and speed, they perform every miracle they know to save those children who arrive in the delicate balance between life and death.

"It takes a lot of common sense to work here, and a broad scope to take it all in," says Gail Davison, R.N., head nurse of the emergency room. "You have to know animal control laws in case of bites, poison control procedures, child abuse laws. And that's in addition to keeping up with the latest emergency techniques, and having the skill and confidence to make decisions in a hurry."

Minneapolis Children's hardly resembles the flashy Hollywood version of the modern emergency room, with fleets of ambulances pulling up to the door day and night, and people racing about shouting orders. It's a small area compared to what you see on TV, with three examining rooms containing five beds. It's staffed by several nurses, a doctor and on-call residents who see between 30 and 50 children a day.

At times it's very quiet, but it's a stillness that can be broken at any moment by a child's anguished cries.

Norma Toombs, R.N., remembers the cries of a preschooler who was run over by a car last summer. The girl had been sitting on a curb when a car turned the corner, hugging the side of the road. One of the tires ran over her pelvic region. The driver brought her to Minneapolis Children's.

"When she came in," Toombs recalls, "the top layer of skin was off, and the wound was full of gravel and dirt. It was the worst thing I've seen in my eight years here. But it was our job to remain calm, and reassure the girl and her mother that she would be all right. We took her vital signs — temperature, blood pressaure, pulse and respiration — called the surgeon, and prepared her for surgery. At that point we couldn't tell what internal injuries she might have. As it turned out, she was lucky. Her pelvis wasn't fractured, and her bladder wasn't punctured at all. In surgery they cleaned the wound, and within two days she was doing just fine — with no permanent scars."

Most of the children who come to the emergency room do not have a "medical emergency" or life-threatening problem, says Dan Kohen, M.D., director of the emergency room and assistant director of medical education.

"However," he says, "they are often frightened of discomfort from injury or illness. And they are accompanied by parents, who, in their loving concern, also are frightened and very worried about the problem."

Perhaps the most important message the "ER" staff tries to give patients and their families, Kohen says, is that when they believe they have an emergency or urgent problem, they should call the emergency room or their family physician, or come to the ER.

The nurses who work in the ER list many reasons for choosing emergency care: variety, independence, decision-making responsibilities, close working relationship with physicians in a variety of subspecialties, the challenge of treating patients in emergencies without the advantage of knowing their whole medical history, and the special challenge of working with patients who usually are too young to tell you what exactly is wrong.

"Usually you see some progress in the patient, which is satisfying," said Martha Lawton, R.N. "You see some immediate results, because in almost every case the children leave the emergency room better off than when they arrived, even if they've only been sent to another area, such as the Life Support Unit. At least now they're in the right place, getting the care they need."

Explaining procedures to the patients and teaching their parents health tips are important components of emergency room care at Minneapolis Children's, Pam Radle, R.N., explained one night between caring for a child with an ear infection and another with a sprained thumb.

"We look at the total patient, not just the primary cause of their visit," she said. "By doing that, we sometimes spot other problems, such as scoliosis (curvature of the spine), or child abuse."

One child arrived in the emergency room with a nosebleed that had started the night before. Nathan Kobrinsky, M.D., found the child had a blood disorder, ordered further tests for a suspected, complex — but treatable — hereditary blood disease, and arranged for a follow-up visit in the outpatient department.

"Part of caring for the total child," Radle said, "is understanding their emotional needs. We try not to separate the child from the parents, and we do our best to explain things in terms a child can understand, because the more children understand, the less afraid they'll be and the more cooperative with the examination and treatment."

SENIOR CITIZEN award for 1981 was presented at the Pennington county fair talent night program Thursday. Morris Owen (right) made the award to Mr. and Mrs. Julian C. Lendobeja of Thief River Falls.

Convert Liters To Gallons By Using Chart

Although efforts to bring the metric system into general use in the U.S. have been going on for years, it still is a mystery to most motorists, especially when it comes to buying gasoline by the liter instead of by the gallon.

A gallon is the equivalent of 3.78 liters.

With more and more stations converting to pumps which register sales in liters, the Automotive Information Council (AIC) has prepared this chart to assist motorists to convert the price per liter to price per gallon. AIC suggests keeping it in the glovebox for easy reference.

SMOKE AND STEAM billowed forth from entries in the annual demolition derby Friday night at the Pennington county fair. The event attracted more than 2,400 customers and 80 cars. Feature race was won by Craig Engelstad of Fertile and grand slam was won by Mark Nelson of Thief River Falls.

Yes, Fat Is Important, Says U.S. FDA

Despite all you may have heard, fat is important. In fact, fat is classified as a nutrient. In some of its forms, it is essential to our diets, according to a recent release from the United States Food and Drug Administration (FDA).

Fat is the most concentrated source of food energy. It supplies nine calories per gram (there are 28.5 grams in an ounce). By comparison, the other two sources of food energy, protein and carbohydrate, supply four calories per gram.

Fats are the chief sources of some essential fatty acids, such as linoleic acid which is necessary for proper growth and a healthy skin. Linoleic acid must come from food as the body is unable to produce it. However, only small amounts are needed.

Fats are also carriers of some vitamins in the body, including, A, D, E and K, and aid in their absorption. Further, fats contribute to the enjoyment of foods because they add flavor and improve texture.

Of course, an excessive intake of calories (that is, more than the body uses up) will result in fat deposits in or on the body. Fat deposits may be good or bad; some fat in the tissues helps to cushion body organs and also helps to prevent heat loss through the body's surface. Too much fat, of course, leads to being overweight.

A recent study by the U.S. Public Health Service indicates that Americans consume about 37 per cent of their calories in the form of fat. In itself, that percentage is not a problem — calories are calories whether from fat, protein or carbohydrate. However, some fats are high in cholesterol, which has been linked to heart disease, strokes and other problems.

Cholesterol is a fatty substance that is important to the body. However, too much cholesterol can end up as fat deposits on the inner linings of the arteries. Normally, the arteries permit blood to flow freely, contracting and relaxing to regulate the rate of flow.

As the deposits of fat, or cholesterol, collect in the lining, the artery may become rigid and lose its ability to regulate the flow of blood. The heart is forced to work harder and harder — maybe too hard. In addition, damage results to the tissue that is being deprived of enough blood by the narrowed, cholesterol-choked artery.

To avoid these problems, cholesterol intake should be limited. Cholesterol levels are linked to the amount of fat eaten, and it may be that the 37 per cent fat in our diet is too much.

But the type of fat eaten also makes a difference. Polyunsaturated fats (so named because of their chemical structure) are better from a cholesterol standpoint than so-called saturated fats, which come mainly from animals. Polyunsaturated fats are usually oils and come mainly from plants and fish. That essential linoleic acid, mentioned above, is a polyunsaturated fat.

Keeping cholesterol levels low through the diet usually means eating lean meat, fish and poultry, dry beans and peas as sources of protein. Moderate amounts of eggs and organ meats (such as liver) and limited amounts of dairy products are also recommended.

For extreme cases, cholesterol-lowering drugs are also available. They are used only in extreme cases because of the side effects associated with them.

Short Stay Unit Eases Child Fears Of Hospital

by Leslie Martin

"Mommy, I want you to stay with me."

Four-year-old Jamie Weber was near tears. In a little more than an hour, she would undergo surgery to drain her ears of fluid that had accumulated and caused painful infections. She'd also have tubes inserted in her ears to prevent further problems. Afterwards, her ears wouldn't hurt anymore, and she would be able to hear much better. But for the time being, she was scared.

Jill Weber took her daughter's hand, gave her a hug, and reassured her that she would stay right by her side until it was time for Jamie to "take a nap."

Because Jamie's ailment required a very simple surgical procedure, she would have her operation on an outpatient basis through the Short Stay Unit at Minneapolis Children's Health Center. Rather than stay overnight in the hospital, away from her parents and her home, she would spend only a few hours at the hospital — and her mom would be able to stay with her for most of that time, because a hospital experience is less scary for a child when Mom or Dad is there.

This Short Stay Unit was designed with children like Jamie in mind. One of the first of its kind in the United States, the unit specializes in "same-day surgery," but provides other services as well, such as chemotherapy, blood transfusions and observation of children with head injuries. It also substantially reduces the cost of hospital care because the child's stay is a matter of hours — usually three and one-half to four rather than days.

Major operations cannot be performed on a Short Stay basis, and even a minor procedure can require an overnight stay if the child is otherwise in poor health. But for many children requiring minor excisions, cystoscopies (examination of the urinary tract), hernia repair, dental restorations or "myringotomy and tubes" — the surgery Jamie had — the Short Stay Unit is just the thing.

The Short Stay Unit is a cheerful room where children can color, read or play a game with parents or other children in the pre-op area before surgery, and hear a puppet or cartoon character explain germs or other health topics on the in-house TV station, Channel 13, after surgery. Jamie had taken a "pre-op tour" so she was already familiar with much of what she saw.

She changed into a pair of yellow pajamas with clowns on them, and sat in her mom's lap for her pre-op interview and examination. The nurse encouraged her to watch the numbers registering her temperature on the thermometer, and asked Jamie to "help" afterward by removing the disposable "plastic straw" part that had been in her mouth. Jamie also helped by holding the blood pressure monitor while her blood pressure was measured.

After a quick trip to the lab for a simple blood test, Richard Waterbury, M.D., director of anesthesia at the Short Stay Unit, explained what would happen next.

"What we're going to do, Jamie, is take a little nap so nothing hurts," he said. "When you wake up, your ears will be all better, and you can have a popsicle."

In the anesthesia induction room, Jamie sat in her mom's lap, as some patients do, while Waterbury told her about the "magic air" that would make her fingers and toes feel sleepy. Jamie picked "red" as the flavor for her anesthesia, and Waterbury coated the inside of the anesthesia mask with cherry-scented lip gloss. First he held the mask up to her hand so she would feel the air, then he put it next to her cheek.

"When you're ready, Jamie, we'll put the mask by your nose so the air won't blow in your eyes. Pretty soon, you'll start to feel tingly all over. It makes you feel sleepy, and so good. You're doing real good, Jamie. If you start to feel sleepy, you can just rest your head on Mom's shoulder and take a nap."

Jamie drifted off to her "nap" in her mother's arms. Waterbury and the nurse anesthetist put her on an operating cart, and took her to the operating room, where the surgical procedure itself took about five minutes. After about 20 minutes in the recovery room, she joined her mom, dad and grandmother in the Short Stay Unit, where she ate not one, but two post-op popsicles. Because anesthesia can upset the stomach, it's important to make sure the patient can tolerate fluids before going home, and a popsicle is just the right type of fluid for a child who has just had an operation.

After resting and playing for about an hour, Jamie changed into her own clothes, accepted an "I passed my operation" badge, waved goodbye to the nurses, and, with her family, headed home.

WHAT'S IN IT FOR YOU?

Marine Ecology

That beautiful broiled fish you had for dinner last night was healthy when they caught it, wasn't it? The fishing industry is concerned with the answer to that question to the tune of billions of dollars a year.

Not surprising that some veterinarians are beginning to specialize in Aquatic Veterinary Medicine — looking after the food animals who happen to be fish.

A four week program of the University of Pennsylvania School of Veterinary Medicine teaches those vets about marine ecology, fish diseases, and the public health aspects of aquatic animals. Penn boasts one of the finest schools of Veterinary Medicine in all the world.

How To Manage Money During Retirement

How will you manage your retirement nest egg when you retire? To make your money last, you have to find ways to keep it working for you, and at the same time, consider the tax implications of your financial decisions, says the Minnesota society of certified public accountants.

Cash you don't need immediately should be earning maximum interest. A savings account is a safe parking place for some money, but retirees should think about investing in the money market or bonds or in stocks of companies that yield solid dividends over a long period of time. You want your investments to produce a regular income. Don't be afriad to shift from one form of investment to another to take advantage of more attractive interest rates.

You may have contributed to a thrift plan with your employer while you were working. A thrift plan is like a savings account; you don't have to close it out when you retire, and it continues to earn interest. That money can be taken as a lump sum, or you can make withdrawals as needed.

JUNIOR SHOWMANSHIP in the dairy division of 4-H club competition at the Pennington county fair was won by Monica Rausch.

If you have a large sum of money in an individual retirement account (IRA) or thrift plan, how much do you withdraw? Take a look at your monthly income. This can include social security benefits, income from investments, and perhaps your spouse's pension check. If your monthly budget is $1,500, and you have an income of $1,200 from combined sources, you could withdraw $300 from your IRA each month.

There are two ways to handle a lump sum payment from your employer's pension plan. You could roll it over into an IRA within 60 days of receiving it and not pay any tax on the money until you start making withdrawals. How much tax you'd pay each year would depend upon the amount you took out of the IRA and what tax bracket that and other income sources put you in. If you expect your annual retirement income to be $15,000, your yearly tax bill might be about $1,200.

Another option with a lump sum pension payment is to pay tax once on the entire amount. For example, if your lump sum of $125,000 qualifies for ten-year averaging, you might pay a relatively small one-time tax. By investing all or part of the large amount remaining, you'll pay tax on dividends and interest. As you may be able to deduct up to $400 of dividends and interest on a joint return (up to $200 on an individual return), you may still save dollars in the long run this way.

Leaving your money in an IRA and investments and "paying" yourself a certain amount each month means you've created your own "annuity." This gives you the flexibility of increasing your withdrawals if necessary. You can buy an annuity from an insurance company, or convert your life insurance policy into one. You, and perhaps your spouse, will receive a set amount for as long as you live. How much you get depends upon your age and what you paid for the annuity, and payments don't increase with inflation.

You can get extra money for investments by cashing in your life insurance policy or reducing your coverage. Cash in your policy only if your other resources could support your spouse should something happen to you. If you have more insurance than you need to protect your spouse, reduce your coverage and cash in the remainder.

Another source of cash is your home. As long as you're at least 55 years old when you sell, and you've lived in the home for three of the past five years, as much as $100,000 of profit from the sale is exempt from capital gains tax, CPAs say. You can only use this exclusion once, so be sure you won't be buying another residence.

If you bought U.S. retirement bonds, cash them between age 59½ (the earliest they can be redeemed) and 70½, when they stop earning interest. The proceeds of each bond are taxable as ordinary income in the year you cash it.

Manage Dual Pensions For Best Tax Deal

How to get the most from retirment income poses special problems for two-paycheck pensioners. Tax rules are changing, as are social security regulations. Minnesota Society of CPAs advises couples with dual pensions to plan their financial affairs with great care.

First, let's take a look at the social security changes. An 11.2 per cent cost-of-living adjustment taking effect in July will increase the average monthly social security retirement benefit from $337 to $374. Beginning next year, the annual increase may be delayed until October.

Another change in social security will eliminate one of the inequities between men and women workers. A woman who worked for her husband's unincorporated business and didn't have her earnings credited to her social security account, must now have those earnings credited. This could mean larger benefits.

It used to be that a widow or widower who remarried forfeited social security benefits. As a result, many retirees simple lived together. Now there is no marriage penalty for recipients of survivor's benefits, if you are 60 or older when you remarry.

If you have other forms of retirment income to supplement your social security benefits, keep in mind some of this may be taxable. Because there is no "withholding" from pensions and self-employment income, for example, as there is with job salaries, you'll have to budget carefully and plan in advance for your federal income tax bill, say CPAs. When you have such income, you have to make timely payments of estimated tax.

What is taxable income? Social security benefits are not taxed. Money you withdraw from an individual retirement account (IRA) or Keogh is fully taxable as oridinary income in the year you withdraw it. Pensions and annuities from employer plans are partly taxable, depending upon how much you paid in and what earnings acculuated over the years. If you receive a lump-sum payment from your pension plan when you're older than 59½, check with you tax advisor about special tax treatments.

Interest and dividends from investments and savings are taxable. Beginning this year, you can exclude up to $200 of some interest and dividend income, or up to $400 on a join return. If you sell any of your collectibles or real estate, remember the capital gains tax. Income from rental property is also taxable.

If you and your spouse are both 65 or older, you can each earn $5,500 this year without reducing your social security benefits. (If you earn more, you lose one dollar in benefits for every two dollars you make above the earnings limit.)

Retirees who are not yet 65 can earn up to $4,080 this year before their social security checks are affected. These earnings ceilings may increase in the next few years and then be lifted entirely. If you are 72 or older, there is no reduction in benefits no matter what your annual earnings. Next year, the age limit drops down to 70, but this change may be eliminated before it takes effect.

The first step in planning your tax bill, say CPAs, is to list your income as well as your spouse's income and compute what is taxable. Depending upon the amount of taxable income each of you has, you may want to calculate your income tax on separate returns as well as jointly. For example, you may save tax dollars if one of you has unusually large medical expenses this year. Because medical expenses must exceed three per cent of your income to be deductible, you may not reach that amount on a join return.

Don't forget to figure in the special tax breaks you are entitled to if you are 65 or older. You get an additional exemption, which, on a joint return, means four exemptions. This reduces your taxable income by $4,000. You qualify for a tax credit for the elderly at 65. How much, if any, credit you'll receive depends upon total income and filing status. If you're calculating your income tax on separate and joint returns, see which way gives you the greater credit.

Diplomats In Buckskins Chronicled By Historian

by Thomas Harney
Smithsonian News Service

The five Jicarilla Apache Indians posed in silence as the photographer took their picture in Washington, D.C.'s Corcoran Gallery of Art April 2, 1880. Unprepossessingly clad in buckskin and shapeless hats, coats and trousers, they nonetheless had a dignity and presence about them far more impressive than their ornate surroundings.

The Indians were, in fact, diplomats, in Washington to discuss the establishment of a new reservation for their tribe in New Mexico. After decades of bitter struggle with white settlers and the U.S. Army, the remnants of the Jicarilla Apache tribe were trying to adjust to a new way of life.

For the Jicarilla Apaches and hundreds of other Indian delegates who came to the Nation's capital to council with the White Man, the trip to Washington brought moments that were both proud and frustrating, humorous and tragic.

These dramatic confrontations have been chronicled comprehensively for the first time in a new book, "Diplomats in Buckskins" (Smithsonian Institution Press). Written by historian Dr. Herman J. Viola, director of the Smithsonian's National Anthropological Archives, the book traces the adventures of Indian delegations from Colonial times through the present day.

Accounts focus on the 19th century. The Indians who braved the journey to Washington in this period had to cope with tremendous cultural shock. For starters, there was often the trip east on the "puffing wagon," one of the Indian names for the train, a strange machine that initially terrified and disoriented them.

Arriving in Washington, the Indians were greeted by crowds of gaping, curious citizens and government officials. The latter had arranged a bewildering kaleidoscope of meetings, conferences and excursions. The itinerary included tours of museums — with the Smithsonian and Corcoran leading the list — where photographs were sometimes taken to give to the Indians as mementos of their visits.

A trip to the Capitol was a must. So were inspections of military installations where cannons, gatling guns and other weapons were demonstrated to the amazed Indians.

Each stop had a purpose, Viola points out: to assure the delegates of the friendship and good will of the whites, to demonstrate the advantages of white culture over their own and to convince them of the superior strength and resources of the United States government.

Although some of these goals were accomplished, the government failed to convince the Indians of the benefits of white civilization, Viola says. "Few Indians returned home with a desire to trade places with their white brothers," he notes, a fact that "never ceased to puzzle their benefactors."

When they were not sightseeing or enjoying their first class hotel accommodations and a bountiful supply of liquor and food, the Indians smoked the peace pipe at meetings with government officials, and most importantly, with the president. He was the central figure in the delegation story, who contrary to legend and countless Hollywood movies was never referred to as "the Great White Father" but simply as "the Great Father," in keeping with the seemingly magical powers of the white man.

In the early days, access to the president was relatively easy, and no trip was complete without a visit to the White House. At these meetings, medals and American flags were presented to the Indians and they, in return, bestowed on their hosts buffalo robes, peace pipes, moccasins and feathered headdresses. In 1872, one Teton Sioux chief literally took the shirt off his back when he met President Grant at an evening reception at the White House. Chief Medicine Bear was about to slip his most valued possession, a war shirt adorned with the scalp locks of his fallen enemies, over the startled president's head when one of Grand's aides intervened.

Most presidents apparently had little conception of Indian culture, however. Even Abraham Lincoln, who met with several delegations during his tenure, assumed all Indians spoke the same language and usually greeted his visitors with the two or three Indian words he knew. Once, in 1861 when Lincoln met with a group of Potawatomi Indians from Iowa, Lincoln asked in broken English, "Where live now? When go back Iowa?" despite the fact that the leader of the delegation spoke fluent English. One presidential aide thought Lincoln's awkward efforts were "amusing," Viola says. "What the Indians thought was not recorded."

Before returning to his tribe, each Indian could expect a gift of a new suit of clothing. Government policy, after all, was aimed at turning the Indians into white men; presumably making them look like white men was a major step in the right direction.

"Everyone from the president on down stressed the need for the Indians to adopt citizen's dress," Viola says. "This succeeded to the extent that the Indian delegates became self-conscious and embarrassed by their traditional dress. The Poncas, who visited Washington in 1880, even refused to enter the city until they received citizen's dress. By the end of the century, few Indians even attempted to do business with the government unless attired in new clothing."

Hence what happened to the Jicarilla Apaches was typical. After they had their photograph taken April 2, 1880, they were taken to A. Saks & Co., a leading Washington clothier, and outfitted with new suits, shirts, ties, hats and boots. Thereupon, they returned to the Corcoran Gallery of Art, where they proudly posed for a second portrait in the fashionable garb of Victorian gentlemen.

Nevertheless, the transformation was largely temporary since as soon as the Indians returned to their tribe they discarded their new clothing and donned traditional garb, becoming once more, according to a government agent, "Indians among Indians."

Many could have been rightfully embittered by their experiences in Washington, Viola says. Swindlers cheated them of their money and possessions, and all risked life and limb on the perilous journey. Disease was an even greater threat and many succumbed to measles, smallpox, pneumonia and even the common cold. Viola's research indicates that 30 Indian chiefs died while in Washington; many were burried in Congressional Cemetery, a picturesque, little-known burial ground less than two miles from the Capitol.

In spite of all the painful misunderstanding and mistreatment the Indians endured, Viola believes that they did benefit from their visits to Washington, generally returning to their tribes with feelings of pride and accomplishment. And with each visit, the Indians became more adept in their relations with the white man's government.

By the end of the 19th century, the reasons for coming to Washington and the times themselves had changed. The Indians were no longer paraded about to gape in wonder at the white man's world. In fact, many found it advantageous to adopt some of the white man's ways, and today, Indians have developed a cadre of leaders and lawyers, making them among the most effective lobbyists on Capitol Hill.

"The delegation story has no ending," Viola says, "only new chapters. Indians now visit Washington whenever they wish and for a multitude of reasons."

In tracking down information for his book, Viola relied on government records buried in the National Archives and uncovered other facts through interviews with Indians and searches of libraries and archives in the United States and Britain. For illustrations, he had to look no farther than his own office, since the National Anthropological Archives, part of the National Museum of Natural History-Museum of Man, has one of the best collections of Indian pictorial material in the world.

Eventually, Viola hopes to publish the best of delegate photographs available in the Anthropological Archives and the National Archives in a picture book. "The only problem," he says, "is that almost all of the photographs of the delegates were formally posed and thus appear rather stilted. I'm hoping that "Diplomats in Buckskins" will stimulate the public to canvass their attics for old candid photographs of Indian delegations.

PHOTOGRAPHY division champion in 4-H club competition at the Pennington county fair was Tom Colby of the Steiner 4-H club who also won a championship in the conservation category.

Something Greater

Bonanza . . . Mrs. Jones dropped the phone and fainted . . She had just won first prize for naming a new detergent. Dame Fortune had smiled her way . . . and smiled sweetly.

Yes, money is nice to have. It can make realities out of dreams and kings out of paupers. To some, it's a new car, a fur coat or perhaps the freedom to travel. Others see it as an education, security or the birth of a new business.

But what about the lack of money? Earning and holding on to enough of it is often a problem. Money problems can dissolve marriages, wreck promising careers and keep millions unhappy.

As money comes and goes in our lives, a vital truth remains constant. There is something greater than all the riches of this world; the love of an understanding God.

Renew your life with true and changeless riches. Worship this week.

Mrs. Alan Koop, Sara and Christopher visited on Tuesday at the John Wayne home.

Guests on Tuesday evening at the home of Jane Mackenroth were Marcelene Grundhaus, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Grundhaus and Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Kleinvachter. The occasion was to help Marcelene celebrate her birthday.

Wade Bergerson of Oklee was an overnight guest on Monday and Tuesday at the Jerry Jenkins home.

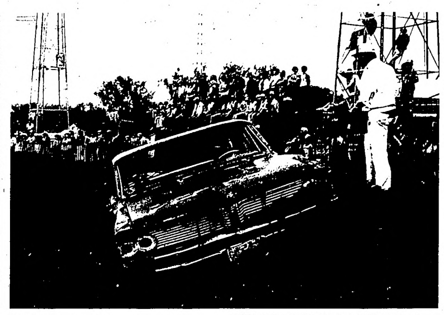
Wednesday evening Mr. and Mrs. Richard Stegeman were guests at the Dan Drevlow home.

Brad Powell was a supper guest on Wednesday evening at the Mark Jenkins home. Guests later in the evening at the Jenkins home were Mr. and Mrs. Gary Reed and Jerry Jenkins.

Mrs. Norman Peterson and Francis Wold were guests at the Alvin Wold home on Wednesday evening.

Mrs. Estelle Grinde visited at the Dennis Brinkman home on Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Melvyn Bergerson and family of Oklee were guests on Wednesday at the Jerry Jenkins home.



CONTESTANT TURNED SPECTATOR was this entry in the demolition derby Friday night at the Pennington county fair. Just as the heat was getting well underway, this entry received a solid boost from another contestant which landed it well up on the earthen embankment. Unable to extract the car from the suspended position, the driver could only watch as others demolished their vehicles.

MRS. JAMES GAVEN of St. Hilaire entered this large and unusual cactus in the adult flower division at the Pennington county fair and earned special recognition with a grand championship selection.

MARKET POULTRY champion at the Pennington county fair 4-H club division last week was Kyle Kisch of the Black River 4-H club.

Paying To Save And Invest

Following editorial is from the Ortonville Independent:

Why is it that the economies of Germany and France, which once lagged far behind the U.S. have been moving ahead, while the American economic machine has been slowing down?

One basic reason is that leaders in these two European countries understand that in order to curb inflation and increase employment, it's vital to increase the capital invested in industry, so companies can step up their hiring and production; and these European nations also realize that one of the best ways to do this is with laws that encourage personal savings and investment.

For example, in Germany, the importance of savings is not only ingrained in their culture (they say it's "something Germans get with their mother's milk") but encouraged by law. At current interest rates, a family is not taxed on the earnings of the first $9,796 saved, and thus for most Germans, savings account interest is essentially tax free. By contrast the U.S. taxes interest earnings from the first dollar.

In addition, there's a popular "644" Law, which allows employees to save up to 644 German Marks ($368) a year income-tax free. This generates an immediate bonus of 19-33 per cent over what the moderate income American would have.

Other German policies encourage investment by people of higher income. In the U.S. an investment in common stocks faces both a corporate income tax and a personal income tax. But in Germany, the corporation tax is passed through to the individual as a tax credit for the individual investor.

In France the general population is encouraged to invest in industry by a law that permits taxpayers to reduce their taxable income by up to 5,000 francs (about $1,200) each year—provided they invest that amount in the stock of French corporations. The investment can be made either directly or through mutual funds that have at least 60 per cent of their assets in French companies.

During 1978 this law brought about 3.5 billion francs ($850 million) of new money into the French stock exchange and the amount is currently running at an annual rate of about 7 million francs ($1.7 billion). The program has attracted about 400,000 new investors to the securities market, an increase of nearly 20 per cent in France's shareholders.

Other nations also encourage securities investment through tax incentives. In Belgium, Italy, Japan, The Netherlands and West Germany, no tax is levied on long-term capital gains from the sale of securities.

For years, Europeans have been learning from America — about everything from political freedom to mass production. Isn't it time we learned something from the people in Europe — and how to boost prosperity by encouraging personal saving and investment.

Falwell Provokes Goldwater

Following editorial is from the Morris Sun:

When President Reagan announced his nomination of Sandra Day O'Connor to fill a vacancy on the United States Supreme Court, Mr. Reagan quickly became the target of criticism from spokesmen of the so-called "New Right", notably Jerry Falwell of the Moral Majority.

Falwell's condemnation of the president's action provoked a sharp response from the dean of American conservatives, Senator Barry Goldwater. Describing the fanaticism of authoritarian right-wing groups, Goldwater said that a president "could offer the Lord's name for some position and you would find some of these outfits opposed."

Mr. Reagan, in his choice of O'Connor, and Senator Goldwater in his defense of the president's action, have represented legions of American conservatives who do not accept the notion that government should be the all-powerful arbiter of behavior. Goldwater, whose beliefs are rooted in the ideas of Thomas Jefferson, has made it clear that American conservatives reject the Far Right in the same way that they reject the Far Left.

The words and actions of Senator Goldwater and Mr. Reagan, which probably pleased most Americans, must have caused some disappointment among the left-liberal groups that have been attempting to get maximum political mileage from the antics of the Far Right.

Since the conservative victories in the 1980 election, a plethora of liberal-oriented political action committees has emerged, led by such well-known liberals as former Senator George McGovern of South Dakota. Some of these groups have been promulgating the ridiculous notion that Mr. Reagan owes his political allegiance, and success, to groups like the Moral Majority.

Actually, the Moral Majority and the National Conservative Political Action Committee, which received a great deal of publicity for its "targeting" of prominent Senate Democrats, had much less effect on the recent election than the liberals would have us believe. In any case, the right-wing fringe groups do not speak for the millions of conservatives and moderates who elected President Reagan.

The president's historic nomination of Sandra Day O'Connor and the exchange between Falwell and Senator Goldwater should give Mr. Reagan's critics second thoughts about their attempt to tar conservatives and Moral Majoritarians with the same brush.

No August Vacation?

Following editorial is from the Iowa Farm Bureau publication:

The tool of government, it's been said, is to take money away from the haves, in the least painful way, and give it to the have nots in the most conspicuous way.

For example, consider the federal withholding tax. If we were given that money in our weekly paycheck and then forced to pay it to the government, we wouldn't have near the size of tax we now have. But it is taken out of our check, and although we see the numbers on the stub, it is not as painful.

So far Congress has passed a budget resolution that cuts $37 billion. But that resolution only means Congress has set a goal for itself. The resolution has no force as law. The resolution is not binding.

Congress is beginning to mesh the "needs" of various agencies with a proposed budget. Each agency, department and special interest group will plead before congressional committees and subcommittees for funds. Each committee must divide available money among the hundreds of agencies and programs. It's not an easy task.

It is a task, however, that must be done. Hopefully, it is a task that, when completed, will allow taxpayers to keep a little bit more of our hard earned money.

President Reagan is correct in asking Congress to give up its August vacation if an acceptable budget hasn't been passed.

Work-Oriented Accident?

Following editorial is from the Princeton Union-Eagle:

In a recent decision our state Supreme Court held that our state workers compensation law covered an "accident" that must have every employer in the state wondering what ever happened to common sense.

A bus driver took a group of students to a northern Minnesota community for a school function. During the evening, while off duty, the bus driver went to a tavern or bar for relaxation. During the course of the evening, he got into an argument which led to a scuffle which led to a shooting and serious injury to the bus driver. In fact, he became a paraplegic as a result.

The employer felt the "accident" occurred while the driver was on his own time and engaging in activity that had nothing to do with his job. The injured bus driver sued for protection under the workers compensation law and the court held he was covered and therefore the employer and his insurance company were liable for the extensive costs that will arise out of the bar shooting.

One cannot criticize the court; it must interpret the law, but it is an example of how far afield our law goes and why workers comp premiums are at such prohibitive levels.

Early in the last legislative session there was much publicity on the compromise achievement between the labor, management and legislators relative to reform of the workers compensation law that would reduce premiums by 20 per cent. It now appears that there was little foundation for the euphoric announcement. A very slight modification was accomplished but the basic excessive burden remains.

Of all economic issues in the state the tax burden on employers and consumers because of an incredibly bad workers compensation law continues to be one of the most serious.

CAROL DELAP of Thief River Falls earned a grand championship in open class competition at the Pennington county fair last week with an entry of dark rolls in the culinary division.

Looking Backward

1921 — 60 YEARS AGO

First rye to be threshed in this locality was marketed July 25. — G. Howard Smith was a delegate from the local Elks club to the national convention in Los Angeles. — I.T. Simley, new supt. of the local schools, arrived with his family from Rugby, N.D. — New women's building on the county fairgrounds was dedicated, with Mrs. A.W. Swedenburg in charge of arrangements.

1931 — 50 YEARS AGO

A.M. Holte announced plans for building a new movie theatre on Third street near Main avenue, with seating capacity of 550. — County board approved a budget of $102,000 for the coming year. — E.M. Bennes and A.E. Mattson were unanimously reelected to the school board, 41 votes being cast. — A total of $27,372 in business volume was handled by the TRF post office in the fiscal year ending June 30.

1941 — 40 YEARS AGO

Seventeen Pennington county residents were admitted to U.S. citizenship in proceedings conducted by Judge Oscar Knutson. — A.B. Stenberg, TRF chief of police the past ten years, resigned effective August 15 to resume working for the Soo Line railroad. — Local drive for scrap aluminum was termed a success.

1951 — 30 YEARS AGO

Cpl. Marlow Davidson was one of the 40 enlisted men chosen from the 47th Infantry Division at Camp Rucker, Ala. to serve as military escorts for queen candidates at the Minneapolis Aquatennial. — A dozen objectors appeared at a city council hearing to oppose a storm sewer project on the west side of the city. — Fred Protz, for the past 15 years treasurer of the Minnesota state letter carriers association, was reelected at its annual convention in Moorhead.

1961 — 20 YEARS AGO

Unit citations for music, Americanism, poppy sale, national security and civil defense were presented to the Thief River Falls American Legion auxiliary unit at the 43rd annual department convention in St. Paul — Grant Gulrud, 59, long-time resident of Thief River Falls, was the tragic victim of fire in his home at 620 Horace avenue N. — Future of the Pennington county fair remained uncertain in the wake of a disappointing turnout for the 1961 event. — Gradual change in phone numbers for Thief River Falls residents will begin this month with the elimination of the letters MU-1 for 681.

1971 — 10 YEARS AGO

Exhibits were up in nearly every department in the 70th Pennington county fair. — Roy Langevin retired as chief of the Thief River Falls fire department after serving with the department for almost 30 years. — Ekelund Lutheran church southeast of Goodridge noted its 65th anniversary — Mr. and Mrs. Willis H. Roese of TRF celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary. — Mr. and Mrs. C. Victor Ranstrom of the Rosewood community observed their golden wedding anniversary.

Saving Social Security
Is it going broke?
It could but it needn't.

People tell me Social Security is going broke. I consider that an exaggeration or just plain scare tactics by someone trying to get your attention (or your vote). Clearly, Social Security is having financial difficulties and if you look at the figures and how the program operates, it is not hard to understand why problems exist. Something must be done to put Social Security back on its feet.

There are four principal problems we have to address. First, when Social Security was started back in 1936, there were 14 people paying into the system for every person who was retired and drawing benefits. Today only three people are working for every one on Social Security. And, by the year 2015 or 2020 when our children and grandchildren will be contemplating their retirement years, the ratio of working-to-retired will be 2-to-1.

Secondly, people are living an average of 14 years longer today than they did back in 1936, due to better health, diets, and advances in medicine.

So the system is being hit with a double whammy: there are more people retiring and relatively fewer people working. Our obligations are increasing (people are collecting benefits far longer than anticipated) while the amount of incoming revenue is rapidly diminishing (the size of our workforce is shrinking in relation to the number of retirees).

A third element is that the Social Security system is indexed — that is, the size of the benefit check automatically increases with inflation, and in recent years has been adjusted for inflation semi-annually. Since inflation has been going up a good deal faster than wages, "indexing" has also contributed to the problem. Social Security benefits have increased faster than the incoming revenue based on payrolls.

Finally, a major problem is that the program has been vastly expanded beyond its original scope. When the system was originally designed it was intended to simply be a supplementary pension program — what you pay in while working, you take out during retirement. But, over the years, a number of additional obligations have been added: disability benefits, survivor benefits, student benefits, and health care benefits (medicare) to name a few. These are all worthy and valuable programs, but the Social Security trust fund cannot afford to support them all by payroll tax alone.

Is Social Security going broke? It could, but it needn't. People are always eager to pinpoint the date when it will be insolvent. Some predict it could happen as early as 1982. Technically, the system will be broke when obligations to be paid for the year are a dollar less than the projected revenue. But, as a practical matter, that's a long way from being broke, and the system will still be reparable even at that point.

The bottom line, however, is that the Social Security system needs reform. Our commitments for monthly checks will soon exceed what the system can afford to pay. If we don't reform it soon, then clearly, we will not be able to keep one of the major promises the American people have made to themselves.

Five principal reform packages have been offered to the Congress. The President's is the only one that has received any publicity (so it's drawn all the fire), though the other four are even tougher.

I haven't personally worked out a plan on how best to approach this issue, but I will do so in the coming months. We're going to have a lot hearings here in the Senate in July on the different reform proposals that will add to my knowledge and data base. At the conclusion of those hearings, I hope to have a better idea of the most effective and equitable means to restore sound health to the Social Security system.

I hope Minnesotans with ideas on how to improve Social Security will contact me at the Senate in Washington D.C. (20510) as well.

The Social Security system is the single largest social program in our country. It's part of the bedrock of this nation. Politically and properly, neither the Congress nor the President can let this system go broke.

PEDALING THEIR WAY down the racetrack on their Hot Wheel cycles were these youngsters who participated in Hot Wheels races in the Kmart parking lot Thursday as an added attraction during Crazy Days. Competition was open for both boys and girls with age groups from four to five and six to seven. Hot Wheels cycles were given away following the contest.

225 4-H Members Enter 706 Exhibits At Co. Fair

Participation in the Pennington county fair by members of county 4-H clubs totaled 225 exhibitors with 706 exhibits this year, according to a compilation made by the Pennington county extension office.

Happy Acres club had the largest number of exhibitors (35) and the greatest number of exhibits (117) among the 14 clubs in the county. Silverton club had 32 exhibitors and 94 exhibits while City view had 26 exhibitors but 104 entries. Oldest club in the county, Star 4-H, had the fewest exhibitors ~~(4) and the fewest exhibits (7).~~

Frontage Road On Schedule For 1983 Contract

Frontage road project on highway 59 south in Thief River Falls is programmed for 1983 bid letting and construction, according to Bob Wolfe, district engineer with the Minnesota department of transportation at Bemidji.

Wolfe told the Times Friday that the frontage road and traffic signal at the intersection of highway 59 and First street would be the first part of a three-part program. It is likely the frontage road would extend from First street to Sherwood, he said, in the first stage of the project which is estimated to cost $250,000. A meeting to further discuss the project is being planned for Thief River Falls in October.

The district engineer also noted that highway 59 from Thief River Falls to highway 2 at Erskine is being designated as a seasonal 10-ton route effective August 3. This is being done in response to a demand from grain shippers and haulers who previously had to haul west from Thief River Falls on highway 1 to highway 75 and south to Crookston to reach highway 2 for transport to Duluth. The 10-ton designation is expected to remain until spring load limits go into effect.

Programmed for 1982 in this general area is widening of the eastbound lane of highway 2 from Mentor to Erskine to 24 feet and installation of bituminous shoulders.

While some patching may be done on the rough area of highway 59 on the boulevard area within Thief River Falls, no major improvements are planned until about 1985. At that time is it possible that the street may be rebuilt, Wolfe said, and consideration is also being given to work on the Third street bridge at the same time while traffic would be interrupted.

Commissioner Richard P. Braun of the department of transportation said that ap-

This Is Last Times Issue Until Aug. 12

Times readers are reminded that this will be the last issue of the Times published until Wednesday, August 12, due to the closing of the business for a one-week vacation period.

Today's issue is being printed Saturday, which accounts for the absence of news coverage on the Miss Thief River Falls pageant Saturday night and other weekend Aquacade events. Some of the Aquacade activities will be covered in photos and articles in the August 12 issue.

There will be no paper published on Wednesday, August 5 nor Monday, August 10. The Times staff and management appreciates the cooperation and understanding of advertisers, news sources, subscribers and other readers which permit all company employees a full week of vacation time.

Clues To JC Treasure Hunt Are Announced

Clues for the Jaycee treasure hunt continue to be provided for treasure seekers who are searching for $100 and $50 prizes this year. Clues submitted by Don Grabanski, chairman of the annual project, so far, are listed below.

For the $100 treasure, the following clues have been submitted; (1) the system always works; (2) only the treasure man knows, and he's happy; (3) Pennington County Fair is a good place to start; (4) the main routes of our city are good clues; (5) the park is close by; (6) go to the chamber of commerce office and they will give you a clue; (7) the west side of the river; (8) business is important; (9) at one time the parade route will go in that direction; (10) the horse show is on the right street; and (11) you pass under the arch to go in.

Clues listed for the $50 treasure include the following: (1) look for something clear on the bottom; (2) look for something black on the top; (3) look for a white piece of paper with a red line on it; (4) remember the treasures are not very large; (5) the nine square blocks area is where it's at; (6) it is not in a park; (7) water is needed; (8) pressure is always there; and (9) the smiling face in the west can keep an eye on it.

Clues pertaining to both treasures include: (1) both treasures are in a small glass vial with a black top; and (2) remember public property can be a building too.

Local 4-348 To Meet Tuesday

Regular monthly meeting of International Woodworkers of America, Loca 4-348, Arctic (T.R.F.) employees, will be held on Tuesday at 2 and 3:45 p.m. at the Eagles hall.

NW Hospital To Hold Benefit Auction Thur.

Northwestern hospital, Thief River Falls will be sponsoring a benefit auction Thursday at 1 p.m. in the hospital parking lot. Bidders will find a variety of items including furniture, lamps, doors, door frames, sinks, hospital beds and cash registers.

Proceeds from the benefit auction will go to support the Northwestern hospital scholarship loan fund and purchase of the cardiac monitoring system donated to the hospital by the auxiliary. The scholarship loan fund is designed to assist health careers students, particularly nursing students, finance their education and to encourage their return to Northwestern for employment.

In addition to the hospital donating furniture and equipment, staff and auxiliary members and others are donating items for the fund raiser. Items of special note include a 1971 Oldsmobile "98" luxury sedan in good condition, a built-in oven and range top, workbench-desk, davenport and recliner chair, air conditioners and a large, heavy duty car top carrier. Refreshments will be served by the hospital auxiliary.

Variety Plots To Be Toured On Wednesday

Twenty-five varieites of small grain crops and several varieties of sunflowers will be the topic of discussion and object of attention Wednesday at the Pennington county varietal demonstration plot tour.

Variety plots are located at the Clyde Christensen farm along highway 1 about four miles east of Thief River Falls. Interested persons may visit the plots from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. and discuss the varieties with Terry Courneya, county extension director, and Marlin Johnson, northwest district crops and soils agent.

Courneya said that there will be no formal speaking program and that farmers and others are invited to stop by whenever they can during the three-hour tour time.

Library Party Ends Summer Reading Event

Northwest regional library will wind up it's summer reading program for children by holding a party on Wednesday, August 12 from 1:30 to 2:30 p.m. at the library.

Refreshments will be served while the children watch a special film selected for that day. The library invites all children who participated in the Charlotte's Web board game to join the fun at the library August 12.

Change Meet At Goodridge

Council meeting for the city of Goodridge is changed to August 5 at 8 p.m. at the Goodridge city hall.

Edith Etter Is Named As NEA Board Director

BOARD MEMBER elected recently to the National Education Association is Edith Etter of Thief River Falls, who recently attended the 119th annual meeting of the National Education Association Representative Assembly in Minneapolis. Etter's list of organizational credentials throughout her lifetime is endless with a collection of awards, compilation of contributions and membership in various professional organizations to prove her efforts.

by Bonnie Wentzel
Times Reporter

Returning recently from the 119th annual meeting of the National Education association (NEA) Representative Assembly in Minneapolis was Edith Etter, elementary school instructor in Thief River Falls, who was recently named to the board of the National Education association.

Selection of Etter to the national board is only one of several accomplishments in a life rightfully comprised of awards, outstanding contributions and membership in numerous professional organizations.

Compilation of books and other forms of literature included in Etter's study in her home in Thief River Falls acknowledges the many accomplishments included in her life — the red book bindings signifying honorary society and NEA information, and the black Minnesota Education association (MEA) and NEA involvement. A unique history extends from the many momentos, including special gifts from friends, co-workers and former students, throughout Etter's home.

The board member expressed her "excitement" at assuming her position in NEA during a recent Times interview. Although announcement of her position was made in April, Etter will begin her three-year term as board member of the national association beginning September 1.

"I look forward to serving Minnesota (on the board) for the next three years," she said.

Recent annual meeting centering around the theme "Public Education; America's Strength" included six full days of activities including a series of meetings, exhibits and candidate displays, workshops, hearings, presentation of awards and trophies, presentation and adoption of rules and minutes, voting for officers, and nomination of candiates for NEA office.

To Etter, who has served on NEA's resolutions committee for five years, the organization is an important one. Present membership of NEA is 1.9 million. The organization is unique in that it is being led by locals and states at the same time, according to Etter. On the national level, Etter has also been a delegate at nine NEA representative assemblies.

Resolutions committee is the body providing direction to NEA, Etter explained. "Committee serves as a formal expression of opinion, intent, belief or position of NEA adopted by the representative assembly and provides the direction for the Association," according to information supplied by the member.

Etter is one of three teachers representing Minnesota who reviews and writes the beliefs and positions of the National Association.

Among the resolutions desiring particular attention discussed at the annual meeting which are included on the 1981 NEA resolutions list, are public understanding and support of education; energy programs; hazardous materials; radiation and chemical pollution; foreign language education; family stability; student evaluation;

Newfolden Girl Shot By Student In New Mexico

A former Thief River Falls meter maid, Cindy Waterworth, is recovering in New Mexico after being shot in the face by an assailant following a disturbance at the New Mexico state university campus in Las Cruces. Miss Waterworth, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Waterworth of Newfolden, is a campus police officer.

The man accused of doing the shooting, university freshman Dalton L. Ennis of Jamaica, age 27, has been charged with attempted murder of a police officer and aggravated assault. He is being held in Dona Ana county jail in New Mexico on $80,000 bond.

According to reports, Miss Waterworth had responded to a call about a disturbance on the campus involving two women and a man, believed to be Ennis. About half an hour later Ennis reportedly waved down Waterworth's patrol car and, as the officer talked to him from the car, fired a large caliber weapon at close range.

Doctors said the bullet entered her left nostril, went through the nasal passage, traveled around the right cheekbone and exited about an inch in front of her right ear. Plastic surgery was performed to reconstruct the shattered right cheekbone. After being shot, officer Waterworth radioed the report of the shooting to the campus police dispatcher. Ennis was arrested about 40 minutes later. The weapon used in the shooting had not been found.

Miss Waterworth became interested in police work as

Manitoba Day Is Observed Today

By proclamation of Mayor Bob Carlson, today (Monday) is Manitoba Day in Thief River Falls with a special welcome mat put out for visitors from north of the border.

In appreciation of shopping done in this community by Manitoba residents, a number of participating merchants are accepting Canadian currency at par value on purchases for today only. Current exchange rate being charged under normal circumstances varies from 15 to 20 per cent.

Retail businesses participating in the program are displaying window signs welcoming Canadians and advising them of the par exchange rate.

The mayor's proclamation notes that "many Manitoba residents have been visiting and shopping in Thief River Falls for the past several years" and "it is the desire and intent of the business community and residents to show appreciation to their Canadian friends."

"Therefore," the proclamation states, "I, Bob Carlson, mayor of the city of Thief River Falls, Minnesota, hereby proclaim Monday, August 3, 1981, to be officially designated as Manitoba Day in Thief River Falls."

Pam Myers-Dean Joppru Marriage Vows Spoken

Miss Pamela F. Myers and Dean Joppru exchanged marriage vows recently at a five o'clock ceremony at Zion Lutheran church in this city.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Lykken of Thief River Falls. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Joppru, also of Thief River Falls.

Rev. Richard Larson officiated at the double ring ceremony with Jerry Joringdal and Steve Anderson as organists. During the ceremony, Anderson sang "Always and Forever," and Percy Hangen, an uncle of the groom, sang "The Lord's Prayer." For the recessional, Anderson played and sang, "Follow Me."

The bride and groom were escorted to the altar by their parents. For her wedding, the bride wore a gown of white crystal organza featuring a Queen Anne neckline and full bishop sleeves with lace appliques. Matching Venice lace accepted the bodice and headed the flounced hemline that flowed into a chapel-length train. A dainty crystal pleated ruffle edged the back of the queen collar and trimmed the fitted cuffs. Her headpiece and elbow-length veil were also trimmed in Venice lace. She carried a bouquet of white roses and daisies with ivy streamers.

Penny Myers, a sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a mint green dress with a pleated floor-length skirt topped by a softly draped blouson bodice tied at the shoulders. Scalloped lace created a sleeve effect. In her hair, she wore a cluster of miniature flowers. She carried a basket of ivy and daisies, accented with mint green ribbon.

Wearing similar attire in yellow, lavender, blue and pink, respectively, were the other attendants: Patty Myers, a sister of the bride; Bonnie Aaseby, a cousin of the bride; Lance Corporal Cindy Joppru of Camp Pendleton, Calif., a daughter of the groom, and Dawn Joppru, also a daughter of the groom.

Attending the groom as best man was his brother, Donald Joppru. Groomsmen were Gary Anderson, a friend of the couple; Rocky Joppru, a brother of the groom; Steve Muzzy, a friend of the couple; and Dean McNatten, a brother-in-law of the groom. Serving as ushers were Randy Bruggeman of Thief River Falls and Reggie Bruggeman, Minneapolis, cousins of the bride. All wore light gray tuxedos with colored shirts corresponding with the gowns worn by the bride's attendants.

Becky Bruggeman was the bride's personal attendant.

Honor guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Lykken, grandparents of the bride, and Mrs. Lillie Hagen, grandmother of the groom.

A reception at the Thief River Falls Country club followed. Hosts and hostesses were Mitch and Jan Hams and Bob and Mary Olson. Debbie Bruggeman registered the guests and Tracey Joppru, Cindy Bruggeman and Ann Lykken served the punch.

Highlighting the serving table was a three-tiered chocolate wedding cake, iced in white and decorated with garlands and pastel-colored flowers. Between tall Roman columns was a glass dome featuring a bridal couple backed by pastel flowers. A miniature bridal party graced the stairways which extended to cherry flavored, heart-shaped cakes inscribed with the names of the bride and groom. The cake, baked and decorated by Margaret Rupprecht, was cut and served by Fern Bruggeman, aunt of the bride, and Vi Joppru, aunt of the groom. Lucille Myers, aunt of the bride, and Dory Hagen, aunt of the groom, poured the coffee.

Waitresses were Marlys Moose, Sue Carpeter, Debbie Wik and Kay Berberich. Kory Joppru, Noel Joppru, Shane McNatten and John Hams carried the gifts which were arranged by Kyle Joppru and Cookie McNatten.

Local Women Attend ALCW Meet In Mpls.

Call to stand with all God's people, especially the oppressed was sounded in the keynote address at the seventh triennial convention of the American Lutheran Church Women (ALCW) held in Minneapolis.

Among the more than 3,500 delegates and guests were Myrtle Solberg, Bernice Trochman, Ida Rupprecht, and Geneva Overum, all from Thief River Falls.

Fr. Fred W. Meuser, president of Trinity Lutheran Seminary, Columbus, Ohio, the keynote speaker, urged the women "to make common cause" with the whole family of God, in and out of the church.

The convention, meeting under the theme of "People of God for a New Day", also heard addresses from Katherine Koob of New York, one of two women among the 52 persons held hostage in Iran for 444 days; Dr. Una Kroll of London, a physician and advocate of women's rights; and Dr. Merton Strommen of Minneapolis who had conducted an extensive survey of attitudes among ALCW members.

Wm. Waynes Of Goodridge Note 40th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. William Wayne of rural Goodridge were hosted recently on their 40th wedding anniversary with an open house and supper at the Goodridge town hall.

The event was hosted by the couple's children: Gerald and Dorothy Wayne and Rodney and Sharon Wayne, all of Goodridge; Margaret and Amor Gosfield of Santa Barbara, Calif.; and John and Mary Wayne of Thief River Falls.

The social hour was spent greeting the relatives and friends and viewing the display of pictures. A buffet supper followed with the Rachel circle of Faith Lutheran church in charge of serving.

A pillared, four-tiered anniversary cake, baked by Mrs. Janice Peterson of Grygla, graced the serving table. It was cut and served by Karen Fredrickson and Kathy Vatthauer, nieces of the couple. Pouring coffee were Sylvia Wayne, a sister-in-law, and Frances Aandal, a friend.

Granddaughters Julie and Kimberly Wayne served the punch, and a friend, Judy Machal, presided at the guest book. The flowers and centerpieces were made by Mrs. Floyd Fredrickson of Thief River Falls, a niece.

Seated at the head table with the Waynes were Marie and Charles Svendsgaard of Thief River Falls and Galen Wayne of Babbitt, Wayne's sister and brother; Mrs. Olga Kohn, Mrs. Wayne's aunt and her daughter Ruby Danielson of Duluth, and Blanche and Reynold Olson of Cambridge, Mildred and Lawrence Olson of Stanchfield, Hildred Skadsem of Thief River Falls, and Curtis and Cleannine Anderson of Karlstad, Mrs. Wayne's sisters and brother.

Other out-of-town relatives and friends attending were from Grand Rapids, Ely, Babbitt, Hancock, St. Louis Park, Coon Rapids, Paynesville, East Grand Forks, Fertile, Plummer, Karlstad, Red Lake Falls and Oklee.

The event concluded with an anniversary dance with music provided by Vernon Rogalla's "All in the Family" band.

Among the many gifts received by the couple, was a memory book, designed by Margaret Gosfield, and composed by relatives and friends.

Stop, Drop And Roll Puts Out Clothing Fire

More than 150,000 people are seriously burned each year when their clothing catches fire. Children under 15 years of age and people over 55 years of age are the most frequent casualties. Flame-retardant and flame-resistant fabrics have been developed and are being used increasingly in the manufacturing of clothing.

However, personal behavior is an extremely crucial element of protection from severe burns. For example, a recent survey of 1800 clothing fire cases compiled by the consumer product safety commission shows that in over half the cases, clothes had been contaminated with flammable liquids or vapors when they ignited.

Examples: Lighter fluid is sprayed on a charcoal fire to speed it along. The vapor falls on the clothing; or someone working on an automobile wipes off gasoline onto his clothing, and then lights a cigarette.

The best course is to remove clothing that may be contaminated with a flammable liquid and wash the skin — and do it immediately. If a person's clothing does ignite he should not run or stand. He should keep calm, quickly drop to the ground, and smother the flames by rolling over and over. It is essential to keep the heat and flames away from the nose and mouth.

Rolling with hands crossed over the chest or with one hand over the face may deter the flames and heat from reaching the face. If a heavy blanket, rug, or coat is handy, the individual should roll up in it, or others should roll it around the person.

One of the essential ingredients for a fire is oxygen in the air. This oxygen is restricted from reaching the fire by the stop, drop and roll technique. In the absence of oxygen the fire will go out. However, running will increase the exposure of the flame to the air (oxygen) and increase the rate of burning.

Never use your hands to put out a fire. Hands are very delicate, easily injured and difficult to heal. The hands should, of course, be used to protect the face. The face is even more sensitive and critical because of the respiratory system openings — the nose and mouth.

You now know what to do if your clothes catch fire! What about your children; do they know what to do? Teach your children that stop, drop and roll can save their life.

First complete wage scale was presented by the Franklin Typographical society of New York City in 1799, according to "Labor Firsts in America," a U.S. department of labor publication.

Trail Side Oatmeal Treats

- 1¾ cups flour
- 1 teaspoon soda
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ½ cup butter or margarine, softened
- ½ cup chunk style peanut butter
- 1 cup granulated sugar
- 1 cup packed brown sugar
- 2½ cups uncooked oatmeal
- ½ cup semi-sweet chocolate pieces
- ½ cup raisins
- 2 eggs
- ⅓ cup milk
- 1 teaspoon vanilla

Method: Stir together flour, soda and salt and set aside. In a large bowl beat shortening, peanut butter and sugars until creamy. Beat in eggs, milk and vanilla. Stir in flour mixture, oatmeal, chocolate pieces and raisins. Drop by rounded tablespoonsful a full three inches apart on an ungreased baking sheet. Bake in a preheated 350 degree oven for 15 minutes or until lightly brown. Remove to rack to cool. Makes about 42 cookies.

The Hedens live one and one-half miles south of Highlanding where they are engaged in grain farming. The family consists of four children. They are Mary Lynn, who lives in Gulfport, Miss., and has one son; Larry, at Fort Hood, Tex., who also has a son; Shirley, in Thief River Falls, who has a daughter; and John, at home.

Mrs. Heden stated that she is an outdoor person and enjoys gardening and working in the fields. She also likes to sew and crochet.

Water Projects For Area Toured

Members of the Lower Red River watershed management board hosted their North Dakota counterparts, the joint water management board, to a tour of water retention projects in the Red river valley recently.

The tour was part of an ongoing effort by the LRRWMB to promote water control, in this case on both sides of the Red River. The tour covered 10 different watershed projects in Polk, Norman, Mahnomen and Clay counties.

While visiting the various structures, the North Dakota delegation learned about the many different funding packages utilized in the construction of these sites. Local watershed districts and the LRRWMB have been able to arrange federal, state and local participation on many projects. Some of those sources include, Minnesota department of natural resources, the soil conservation service, soil and water conservation districts, the U.S. army corps of engineers, and county boards of commissioners.

With joint participation in these sites also came the concept of multi-purpose use. One of the first stops on the tour was at the Olson-Agassiz wildlife area. This site will combine a wildlife area with a floodwater storage area when completed. This area, located in Spring Creek township of Norman county had been the source of extension downstream flooding and erosion problems.

In 1980, a group of petitioners asked the Wild Rice watershed district to consider a project in the state owned wildlife area. After meetings with the DNR the site was officially designated Project 13 and is currently in the latter design stages.

Besides cooperation from the DNR, the project is also receiving engineering assistance from the soil conservation service and local assessment. The Olson-Agassiz project involves the construction of a low earthen dam to create a permant wildlife and flood water impoundment. Other related work will see channel improvements to Spring Creek.

The tour also saw several small peojects which play an integral part in watershed management. The Kiltie, Kenneth Holum and Sunny Hill projects are located in eastern Norman county and designed to control flooding and erosion problems on small tributaries.

These projects not only provide water control but also wildlife and other benefits such as stock ponds and road protection. All three projects were constructed through cooperative efforts by the county, SCS and local landowners.

Two of the largest and the most recently completed projects are the Becker county dams. These two detention structures were finished late last month and should provide significant impact on the south branch of the Wild Rice river.

Several sites under construction and being considered were also part of the tour. In the morning, officials looked at Sand Hill project I which is currently under construction. This structure located near the Norman-Polk-Mahnomen county lines was built through equal efforts by local funding sources and the legislative committee on Minnesota resources. When completed, it will provide benefits to downstream landowners along the Sand Hill river. The structure has been designed so that a road dam eliminated the need for a costly bridge replacement.

Another potential project in the Sand Hill watershed is the Winger dam. This proposed site would create a man-made lake capable of holding floodwater storage while providing year-round recreational benefits. The design plans call for a bridge replacement structure on U.S. Highway 59. This portion of the project would be paid for through joint funding by the Minnesota department of transportation and the Lower Red River watershed management board. The project was a preliminary cost estimate of $1.5 million and could get underway as early as 1983.

The project came to watershed officials' attention after landowners petitioned for the project. Since then, local groups have championed the site and have been able to negotiate most of the land acquisition.

The final three stops were in Norman county. The group looked at the Lake Ida project a site utilizing wildlife lands for temporary storage; and viewed the Twin Valley dam site, a potential holding area on the Wild Rice river. A final stop was at the U.S. corps of engineers project in the Borup area. This massive project involves channelization of the south branch of the Wild Rice river. Currently under construction, this project will provide substantial constrol of this substream.

During the day's activities, guests and officials also learned about the role the department of natural resources has played in flood control in the Red River valley.

The LCMR work program began in 1979 as a pilot project to assist LRRWMB in the implementation of local initiatives to reduce flood damage. The program sees the DNR participating in a 50-50 matching fund basis on construction of projects and also with planning and development.

Both touring groups have scheduled twice a year meetings, one in Minnesota and one in North Dakota, as part of their cooperative efforts.

Centralizing BN Service Is Hearing Topic

A public hearing will be held Thursday, August 13, to determine whether a centralized rail freight agency should be established at Crookston, according to Gordon Boldt, director of the railroad administration, Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT).

Testimony on the proposed freight agency centralization will be heard by a state hearing examiner at 9 a.m. in the Northwest regional correction center, 600 Bruce Street, Crookston.

Under the proposal, most communities in Clay, Kittson, Marshall, Norman, Pennington, Polk, Red Lake and Roseau counties will be affected by the freight agency centralization. The hearing will also consider whether depots should be closed and removed.

Burlington Northern, Incorporated has asked Mn-DOT to make a determination in this matter. The determination will consider whether an adequate level of rail freight agency service can be maintained in the area if the proposed changes are made.

Mn-DOT has notified interested parties of the hearing. After the hearing examiner's report is issued, exceptions may be filed by parties to the proceedings. Mn-DOT issues the final order adopting, amending or rejecting the report.

Kays In Final Play By Straw Hat Players

Straw Hat players of Moorhead state university will close their eighteenth season of summer theatre entertainment with "Something's Afoot", a wild musical spoof of Agatha Christie-type murder mysteries.

The plot revolves around seven guests invited to a remote English country estate, where one by one they are dispatched by "fiendishly concocted devices." Tongue-in-cheek humor abounds.

"Something's Afoot" opens Wednesday, August 5, with performances through Saturday, August 8, in the air-conditioned center for the arts auditorium. Curtain time is 8:30 p.m. nightly and tickets may be reserved by calling 236-2271 or purchased at the door.

Chris Kays, Thief River Falls, will alternate in the role of Geoffrey, the stalwart juvenile.

Farmland Is Issue In Power Plant Debate

Preservation of prime farmland must be an important requirement in the siting of future power plants in Minnesota, a representative of the Minnesota Farmers Union said recently at St. Cloud.

At a public hearing on a proposed change in the rules used by the Minnesota environmental quality board (MEQB) to site power plants, Mark McAfee, legislative and programs coordinator for the state Farmers Union submitted testimony on behalf of the 24,000 farm family member organization about the proposed rules.

"Current loss of agricultural land threatens the well-being of our state and national economies," McAfee said. "Each year we are losing three million acres of farmland nationwide to competing uses, much of it development on highly productive prime farmland. Up to 100,000 acres are lost annually in Minnesota. We must reduce the loss of this vital resource to unnecessary development."

Currently power plant sites must be approved by the MEQB. The existing rules consider agricultural land as one of several factors to be balanced in the selection of a site. The proposed rule would increase the protection given to prime farmland, as it is defined by the U.S. soil conservation service.

The proposed rule recognizes the importance of farmland by placing prime farmland in an "avoidance" category, meaning it can be considered for power plant siting only after other options have been exhausted. Further, the rules would limit the amount of prime farmland that could be used in a given site, should the inclusion of farmland be necessary, through an acreage-per-megawatt limitation.

Within the range of figures that have been suggested by the MEQB staff, McAfee recommended that future power plant sites should be allowed only on land that would require converting no more than one-fourth acre of prime farmland per megawatt in plant size. "This figure would provide greater protection to prime farmland and provide opportunities to site 400 MW and 800 MW power plants in all of the test site areas studied by the MEQB," McAfee said.

"There are options in power plant design available which would further minimize the loss of prime farmland, while allowing for plant development, McAfee added. "Much of the land used by the developed portion of a power plant is for waste storage ponds and by using higher dikes for the ponds, the amount of land required can be greatly reduced.

We recommend that the power industry and the MEQB study and implement this and other design factors that might contribute to a reduction in the amount of land needed for future power plant sites."

"The proposed MEQB rules are a step forward in protecting Minnesota farmland," McAfee added. "Application of the rules must be reasonable in order to insure the continued production of food as well as power. The future of Minnesota depends on our having adequate supplies of both."

Recent hearing in St. Cloud was the second of four stage one hearings held by the MEQB on the proposed rule. Future hearings will be held July 27, 1 p.m. to 7 p.m., Holiday Inn, Grand Rapids; and July 29, 1 to 7 p.m., YWCA, Austin. Second round of hearings will be held beginning at the end of August.

UND Sets Free Workshop For Older Students

Free evening workshop for adults thinking about going back to college or enrolling for the first time will be held from 7 to 9:30 p.m. Tuesday, August 4, in the Chester Fritz auditorium at the University of North Dakota in Grand Forks.

Workshop organizers stress that it is not too late to enroll for either part-time or full-time study this fall at UND.

August 4 workshop will consist of four half-hour sessions, each focusing on specific questions facing "older than average" students returning to school or attending for the first time. Child-care services will be available for workshop participants.

Topics of discussion will include college application and course registration procedures, personal and family changes resulting from the adult's return to school, financing an education and special continuing education opportunities, such as evening and off-campus courses.

UND departments participating in the workshop include the counseling center, enrollment services office, student financial aids office, division of continuing education, admissions office and university college.

Further information is available from the Office of Enrollment Services, Box 8135, University Station, Grand Forks, ND 58202; phone 777-4463. The toll-free number in North Dakota is 1-800-732-4374; out-of-state callers should dial 1-800-437-5379.

Grant Requests Accepted For Aging Program

Northwest regional development commission's aging program is currently accepting grant proposals for the establishment of social services for elderly persons under Title III-B of the older Americans act. Grant proposals will be accepted until September 1 from units of government or non-profit corporations in region I.

This grant round is based on the 1981-83 area plan with the priorities being: Information and awareness; nutrition; legal; transportation; senior employment service; and in-home services. This grant cycle is for continuation grants and for new and expanded services in those areas.

The grants will be reviewed initially at the September 9 aging advisory committee meeting followed by a problems-solving period. The final review by the aging advisory committee will be conducted at its October 14 meeting. Funding decisions will be made at the October commission meeting and funding will begin Jan. 1, 1982.

For more information about the grant process, the amount of money available, what it can be used for and where, contact Michael Moore at 281-1396.

Seminar To Study Senior Legal Rights

Future of senior citizens' legal rights will be discussed by Dale Craft, director of Northwest Minnesota Legal Services, at a free seminar scheduled August 11, at 10 a.m. in the Newfolden senior citizen center.

Seminar will involve a discussion by Craft of the legal rights and responsibilities of senior citizens and the future of these rights. Topics included will be: social security, wills and estates, consumer matters, and how to fill out a Medicare form.

Craft will use the newly published handbook covering Minnesota's senior citizens legal rights titles, "Knowing Your Rights," to supplement his talk. These handbooks, which are especially designed for senior citizens, will be available for $1 at the time of the seminar.

A question and answer period will follow Craft's presentation.

Northwest Minnesota legal services is a non-profit organization which provides legal services in 22 counties of northwestern Minnesota. Seminar is free and open to the public.

Edith Etter Named To NEA Directorship

protection of retirement system assets and earned benefits; the right to vote; Vietnam Veterans; the Holocaust; Universal teacher rights; education in El Salvador; and Education in Guatemala.

NEA's board of directors is made up of one director from every affiliated state association which includes the 50 states, the District of Columbia, Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, the Overseas Education Association and the Student NEA.

Etter's major responsibility in her home state, as member of the national board, will be to exercise leadership, interpret policies, and govern documents in NEA, she said.

Etter began her teaching career at the Aurora public schools in 1952. From there her teaching experiences carried her to Mounds View, St. Peter and Pipestone, before she began teaching at the Thief River Falls public schools where she has taught second grade since 1961.

Her philosophy on teaching portrays her concern for children. "My greatest satisfaction," she stated, "is that teaching gives me an opportunity to see young children learn. To assist in the learning process is extremely exciting. The enthusiasm and desire to learn is more often caught from the teacher than taught by a teacher." She was named teacher of the year at Mark Twain elementary school in Thief River Falls in 1973.

Etter's background experiences besides teaching, include involvement in professional activities, participation in community service organizations, and membership in several organizations, as well as being the recipient of several special honors.

Etter is a member of the Thief River Falls Education Association, acting chairperson of the Kramer-Brown UniServ (organizing 21 area workshops for teachers), MEA past vice president of the American Association of University Women (where she was awarded the centennial award in education), Thief River Falls concert association, past president of the Delta Kappa Gamma Society International, Women's Caucus — national and state; and Northwestern hospital auxiliary, among others.

She was also named one of the 11 honor roll teachers of the year in Minnesota and was selected one of the nine outstanding women educators through MEA. She was recently named to the Who's Who list in the Midwest.

A publication, "Motivational Ideas" comprised by Etter, along with other instructors in education in the Thief River Falls school district, including Deone Cerny, Washington school; Loreen Gibson, Knox; and Glenn Espe, Knox and Mark Twain, is in the process of being published.

"The book is intended to make children excited about coming to school," Etter explained. Organization of the publication began in 1977, and developed from an idea geared toward making a classroom more fun for students.

Etter has a deep concern for her community and has been involved in several community service organizations to illustrate the importance of close contact with persons on the local level, as well as on the state and national levels. She has been active in Trinity Lutheran church as Sunday school teacher and superintendent and as chairman and member of the youth board, as well as serving as member of the adult steering committee.

She has served as den mother for the Cub Scouts, has been a member and chairman of the youth board of the Thief River Falls conference, member of the human relations committee and the city planning commission.

Edith's husband, Wally, an industrial arts instructor at Plummer, attended the recent assembly as a delegate. "My husband," she proclaimed in her philosophy on teaching, "is a personality who should receive an abundance of credit for assisting in so many tasks. He is always present with his moral support."

The Etters' only son, David, is an electrical engineer with the Eastman Kodak company in Rochester.

The writer of one article on Edith Etter who stated that she bears "a list of organizational credentials as long as your arm," could not have summarized her life much better. The list is endless, and will no doubt continue as Etter's determination and ambition appear inexhaustible.

List of letters of recommendation and approval of Edith Etter and her work all bear supportive comments. A comment from a second grade student, however, seems to best express feelings toward a favorite teacher, and one who places high standards on the importance of education:

"I think Mrs. Etter is the best teacher cause everytime you come in the room and you're sad the room makes you feel happy cause it's decorated so pretty. She has pets that are fun to watch and she makes learning fun."

Frontage Road Scheduled For 1983 Contract

proximately 585 miles of the 12,200-mile state highway system will receive surface treatment yearly in order to slow its deterioration.

"That means," Braun said, "we will be able to resurface about 400 miles and recondition another 185 miles each year in an effort to protect and preserve our $17.7 billion highway network statewide."

Four major projects which were previously under construction and ready for completion because of previous investments are also included in the highway improvement program.

Sixty bridges also can be repaired and 45 bridges can be replaced yearly. Work will continue toward completing the interstate freeway system.

The two-year highway improvement program statewide will keep the highways open to traffic, will improve highway safety for users and will retain a tolerable driving surface. Major new highway improvements, four lane roadways and community bypasses cannot be afforded if Minnesota's existing roads are to be preserved, Braun said.

Funding for the limited two-year highway improvement program includes $439 million in federal funds. The 1981 Legislature appropriated $202 million in new state funds primarily through a two-cent per gallon increase in motor fuel taxes, 30 per cent increase in motor vehicle registration fees and $95 million in bonding authority. These funding sources also provide an additional $62 million for the maintenance and construction of county and city state-aid roads.

Dear Readers,

Parents should be encouraged to spend time with their seriously ill children — to touch them and hold them. This calms the child's fears. On every pediatric ward there is great anguish in children when Mommy must leave, or when a child wakes in the night to see only a strange nurse.

Newfolden Girl Shot By New Mexico Student

she worked for the Thief River Falls police department in tagging parking violations while a freshman at Northland community college. She worked about two years as the first woman officer on the Stillwater, OK, police force before moving to New Mexico. She served as a dispatcher with the Las Cruces police department before joining the campus police where she had served for several months at the time of the shooting.

After being treated in a Las Cruces hospital, she was transferred to Providence hospital in El Paso, TX, for further care. She told a reporter from the hospital, "My faith is in God and my doctors' ability. . . I am a religious person and I have total belief in God for 100 per cent healing for my face and my eyes." She had reportedly lost the feeling in her right eye after the shooting.

Mrs. Earl Waterworth told the Times it would likely be some time before Cindy was back on active duty.

Mrs. E. Dyrud Services Held In Newfolden

Mrs. Emil (Florence) Dyrud, 85, of Newfolden, died unexpectedly Tuesday evening, July 28, at her home in Newfolden, a month after her husband's death on June 28.

Funeral services for Mrs. Dyrud were held Saturday at 10:00 a.m., at the Bethlehem Lutheran church in Newfolden. Rev. David Liefeld officiated. Mrs. Vernon Nelson was the organist and Deland Elseth, soloist. Interment was in the Bethania cemetery with the Green Funeral home in charge of arrangements.

Honorary pallbearers were Otto Haarstad, Helmer Lind, Milfred Rokke, Marshall Myhrer, Raymond Tunheim, Arthur Haugen and Oscar Amundson.

Serving as active pallbearers were Rolland Amundson, Donald Holmstrom, Dean Holmstrom, Leonard Holmstrom, Leslie Maurstad and Arnie Maurstad.

Mrs. Dyrud, the former Florence Swedburgh, was born April 27, 1896 at Mayville, N.D., to Peter and Marie Anderson Swedburgh, now deceased. As a young girl, she moved with the family to Crookston. There she attended school and grew to womanhood.

On Dec. 30, 1920, she was united in marriage to Emil Dyrud at Warren. Following their marriage, the couple settled in West Valley township, Marshall county, where they farmed. In 1977, they retired from farming and moved into Newfolden.

While living in West Valley township, she served as organist for Bethesda Lutheran church; and after moving to Newfolden, she became a member of the Bethlehem Lutheran church, where she was active in the ALCW. She was also a member of the American Legion auxiliary.

She is survived by three grandchildren: Mrs. Kevin (Palma) Guy, Azusa, Calif.; Mrs. Russell (Sara) Velasquez, Gridley, Calif.; and Bruce Dyrud, Pleasant Grove, Calif.; several great-grandchildren, a sister, Mrs. Pearl Holmstrom, Karlstad, and several nieces and nephews.

In addition to her husband and parents, she was preceded in death by two sons and two brothers.

A. H. Anderson Dies July 18 In California

Albert H. Anderson, 83, who resided in Thief River Falls until moving to Santa Rosa, Calif., two years ago, died Saturday, July 18, at the Santa Rosa hospital, following a brief illness.

Funeral services for Albert Anderson were held July 21 at Santa Rosa. Interment was July 22 at Greenwood cemetery at Bemidji.

Albert H. Anderson was born in Minneapolis and lived in Thief River Falls for seven years before moving to California. Prior to his retirement, he was a conductor for 48 years for the Burlington Northern Railroad.

He was a veteran of World War I and II, serving in the Army and Navy. He was a member of the VFW post 2793, Thief River Falls.

Surviving are his wife, Catherine Reid Anderson, Santa Rosa; one daughter, Dorothy Samuelson, Fort Worth, Tex.; three grandchildren, three great-grandchildren, and five stepchildren: Clement Parent, Grand Forks, N.D.; Russell Parent, Folsom, Calif.; Arlene Reeck, White Bear Lake; Lucy Talvola, Santa Rosa, Calif.; and Evonne Dina, San Diego, Calif.

Rites Held In Montana For T. Thoreson, 79

Thomas Thoreson, Sr., 79, a former resident of Thief River Falls, died July 6 at St. John hospital in Libby, Mont.

Funeral services for Thomas Thoreson were held July 9 at Libby with Rev. Sheridan Erickson, pastor of the Christ Lutheran church as officiant. Interment was in the Libby city cemetery.

Thomas Thoreson, a son of the late Andrew and Sarah Thoreson, was born Oct. 29, 1901 in Ada. He was married in Thief River Falls to Pearl Mellem. The couple moved to Sommers, Mont., in 1929. Since 1950, they have resided at Libby, where he was employed for 16 years as a maintenance man at the Lincoln county courthouse. He retired in 1967.

He was a member of Christ Lutheran church, the Sons of Norway, and the Eagles lodge in Kalispell.

Surviving are his wife, one son, Tom Thoreson, Jr., Libby, Mont.; a daughter, Arloene Christianson, Albany, Ore.; four grandchildren, two great-grandchildren, and four sisters: Esther Peterson, Alma Berg, Clara Anderson and Helen Zimmerman, all of Waukegan, Ill.

Services Held For Myrtle "Susie" Hruby

Funeral services for Mrs. Myrtle (Susie) Hruby, 76, of this city were held Friday at 10:00 a.m., at Trinity Lutheran church. Mrs. Hruby died unexpectedly on Tuesday at her home.

Rev. Berton Hushagen officiated at the services. Anthony Ricci was the organist and Jodi Bergland, a granddaughter, was the piano soloist. Interment was in Greenwood cemetery with the Green Funeral home in charge of arrangements.

Pallbearers were Timothy Bergland, Todd Bergland, Scott Bergland, John Anderson, Steven Hess and Jeff Hess.

Mrs. Hruby, the former Myrtle (Susie) Tyndahl, was born April 18, 1905 in Thief River Falls to William and Julia Tharaldson Tyndahl, now deceased. She attended school and grew to womanhood here.

On Feb. 15, 1927, she was united in marriage to Lewis Hruby at Huron, S.D. The coupled lived at Huron for 12 years and then moved to Hastings, Neb. In 1947, they came to Thief River Falls and since then, she had made her home here.

She was a member of Trinity Lutheran church and was involved with youth activities.

Surviving are two daughters: Mrs. Wayne (Katherine) Langstraat of White Bear Lake, and Mrs. Richard (Gail) Bergland of Thief River Falls; six grandchildren, a half-brother, Gynther Gunderson, Milwaukee, Wis.; and a half-sister, Mrs. Erling (Sophie) Anderson of Plummer.

She was preceded in death by her husband, who died in June of 1973, a son and one sister.

Dog Trainer At Library Here Wed.

Don Stewart will introduce children to the world of dog care at the Northwest Regional library August 5 at 1:30 p.m.

Stewart and his family have been involved with breeding and training Springer Spaniels for the past nine years. The dogs have appeared in field trials and shows in Winnipeg, one taking third place in a Canadian championship in 1976.

Children will have a chance to learn about the responsibility of caring for a dog. This will include how to choose a dog with the right personality and size to fit the child; where to buy a dog, and what to look for in purchasing; how to care for a young puppy; basic training techniques; and what is involved in preparing dogs for shows.

Children will also be given a brief introduction to the library's book collection on dog care, for their future references.

Minnesotans Voice Traffic Safety Opinion

Questions on the 55-mile-per-hour speed limit, drunk driving, safety restraints and general traffic safety were asked of 2,700 Minnesotans in a survey conducted this spring by the Minnesota department of public safety.

Respondents generally supported the speed law, said not enough drunk drivers were being arrested, approved of a new law passed by the 1981 legislature which requires the use of child restraints for all young children and agreed with the need for extra precautions for state pedestrians.

The survey was distributed throughout the state by the department's driver license examiners. It covered both new license applicants and experienced drivers.

John P. Sopsic, DPS commissioner said he was encouraged to see that the majority of the state's licensed drivers support most of the efforts to make travel safer on roads. "Strict enforcement of the 55 speed limit was favored by more than half of those responding," Sopsic said.

Due to the nature of the survey's distribution, the numerical results are not necessarily reliable indicators of the knowledge and attitudes of the entire population of licensed drivers in Minnesota. The statistics are valid only for the sample of people actually surveyed. Nevertheless, the responses may be valuable in getting a "feel" for those opinions.

Among other survey results were:

—More than two-thirds (67.9 per cent) disagreed or strongly disagreed with the statement, "Law enforcement officials are stopping enough drivers."

—More than 71 per cent were against giving speeding motorists a 10-mile-per-hour leeway. They were against letting them drive 65 miles an hour before getting ticketed.

—Seventy per cent favored strict enforcement of the 55 limit. Almost as many (63.8 per cent) admitted they believed the actual chance of getting a speeding ticket was low.

—Nearly two-thirds of state drivers would wear safety restraints to save money on the cost of insurance.

—Nearly 89 per cent correctly knew or guessed that more people under the age of 35 die from traffic accidents than from heart attacks.

—More than 77 per cent felt less than totally safe when walking across a marked intersection despite a state law which requires drivers to yield to pedestrians in marked crosswalks.

—More than 53 per cent agreed that "Every driver should be required to pass a written test on the rules of the road every four years to get a license renewed."

—More than 60 per cent believe that high school driver education programs do adequately train young drivers despite recent publicity to the contrary.

Marching Band Competition Is Fair Feature

Minnesota state fair high school marching band competition will be a feature of the state fair mall parades during the 1981 state fair, August 27 through labor day, September 7.

For the first 10 days of the fair, August 27 through September 5, high school marching bands from throughout the state will compete in the 6 p.m. parades.

Bands will be intermingled with floats, farm machinery and novelty units including the Walt Disney world champion Percheron hitch and antique calliope (September 1-6) and the Budweiser Clydesdales (August 31 - September 6).

Marching band competition will be divided into two divisions — one for schools with enrollment of 500 and over, and the second for schools with enrollment of under 500. Forty bands have entered the competition. Entries are closed.

Bands will be reviewed by the All-American judging association and will be judged on general effects, music, marching and maneuvering. Trophies will be awarded to the nightly winners in each division and a championship trophy will be presented to each division's overall winner.

High school marching bands from the following communities will compete on the dates listed.

McBride Helps In Vietnamese Rescue Effort

Navy aviation antisubmarine warfare operator 2nd class Ricky A. McBride, son of Mr. and Mrs. Filmore D. McBride of Middle River, has been named as a member of the "search and rescue aircrew of the year" by the Navy helicopter association (NHA).

As a member of helicopter anti-submarine squadron light 35, naval air station North Island, San Diego, his crew was involved in the rescue of 55 Vietnamese refugees in the South China sea while deployed aboard the destroyer USS Oldendorf. Flying a SH-2F "Sea Sprite" helicopter, the crew airlifted 33 refugees to the ship, and the remaining 22 were rescued by the Oldendorf when it arrived at the scene.

The award was presented by Vice Admiral Robert F. Schoultz on behalf of the NHA, a professional organization for Navy helicopter pilots and others interested in helicopter aviation.

YOUNG RACERS waited patiently for their signal to make their way down the racetrack with their Hot Cycles during races conducted Thursday in the Kmart parking lot during Crazy Days. Age groups for the races were from four to five and six to seven. Money from the event (25 cents for each participant) will be donated to Police Explorer Post 200 and Northwestern Hospital Explorer Post 46, co-sponsors of the races with Kmart. Event was planned by the Retail Business association (RBA) of the Thief River Falls [illegible] rce.

DETERMINED TO WIN the race, is this serious driver who participated in Hot Wheels races at the Kmart parking lot Thursday as a special Crazy Days attraction arranged by the Retail Business Association (RBA) of the Thief River Falls chamber of commerce. Twenty-five cent registration charge for each participant was donated to Police Explorer Post 200 and Northwestern Hospital Explorer Post 46, co-sponsors of the races with Kmart.

July 1 Cattle Inventory Up Six Per Cent

Minnesota farms held 4.04 million cattle and calves on July 1, 1981, according to the Minnesota agricultural statistics service. This inventory which was six per cent above both Jan. 1, 1981 and July 1 a year ago, was the largest since July 1, 1977.

Minnesota cows and heifers that have calved numbered 1.51 million head, up four per cent from a year earlier. In this category, beef cows at 630,000 were up seven per cent while milk cows at 880,000 were up three per cent from July 1, 1980.

All heifers 500 pounds and over in the state on July 1 were estimated at 735,000 head, two per cent fewer than a year earlier. Included in this group were 95,000 beef replacement heifers, up four per cent, 350,000 milk replacement heifers, up one per cent, and 290,000 other heifers, down eight per cent from July 1, 1980.

Steers weighing 500 pounds and over totaled 700,000, an increase of 14 per cent from a year ago. Bulls weighing 500 pounds and over at 55,000 were down four per cent.

Heifers, steers and bulls under 500 pounds increased 12 per cent to 1,040,000 head. The 1981 Minnesota calf crop is expected to total 1.41 million head, up two per cent from last year's 1.38 million head.

All cattle and calves on hand in the United States on July 1, 1981 are estimated at 125 million head, two per cent above July 1 a year ago and six per cent above July 1, 1979.

All cows and heifers that have calved, at 51.1 million head, are up two per cent from a year ago and seven per cent above July 1, 1979.

Other classes on July 1 and the change from one and two years earlier, respectively, are as follows:

—Beef cows, 40.2 million, up two per cent and eight per cent.

— Milk cows, 10.9 million, up one per cent and two per cent.

—All heifers 500 pounds and over, 18.4 million up three per cent and four per cent.

— Beef replacement heifers, 6.24 million, up seven per cent and eight per cent.

— Milk replacement heifers, 4.64 million, up six per cent and 13 per cent.

— Bulls weighing 500 pounds and over, 2.64 million, up one per cent and seven per cent.

— Heifers, steers and bulls under 500 pounds, 36.6 million, up two per cent and eight per cent.

Rheumatoid Arthritis Is Most Painful

Rheumatoid arthritis is the number one crippling disease in Minnesota, with over 120,000 victims in the state, according to the Arthritis foundation. The disease is also one of the most painful and crippling known to mankind. Its favorite targets are women between the ages of 20 and 50, although it sometimes affects children as well.

Although rheumatoid arthritis primarily attacks the joints, it can also cause damage to the lungs, heart, liver and other organs. Because of this, it is known as a systemic disease, one affecting the entire body.

While the cause of rheumatoid arthritis is not yet known to medical science, and no cure has yet been found, the disease can be controlled, a foundation spokesman reported. Early diagnosis, good medical care and disciplined day-to-day compliance with physicians' and therapists' instructions can prevent or control crippling in the great majority of cases.

Arthritis foundation has a special message on rheumatoid arthritis that may be heard during August by calling the foundation's toll-free number, 1-800-552-1278. A booklet on the disease is available free to callers.

Energy Audit Grant Money Now Available

Grant money is now available to local governments and public care facilities in Minnesota for energy maxi-audits. The department of energy recently provided $207,196 to the state for competitive grants to finance 50 per cent of audit costs.

In addition, the Minnesota energy agency will conduct sessions throughout the state to assist these groups in preparing grant applications. Assistance session will be held Tuesday, August 4 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Bemidji city hall, council chambers, 401 Minnesota avenue in Bemidji.

Grant applications must be received by the energy agency Friday, August 21. Forms and further information may be obtained by calling (612) 297-2103.

This technical assistance maxi-audit grant program was established by the national energy conservation policy act, 1978. Previously, funding was available to and received by schools and hospitals. These groups, however, are not eligible for this current allocation.

Assistance On Energy Audits Now Available

Department of energy has announced that $207,196 is now available to Minnesota local governments and public care facilities for technical assistance maxi-audit (TA) programs. Grants will be awarded to eligible institutions on a competitive basis to provide 50 per cent of the costs of maxi-audits for heated and-or cooled buildings.

All grant applications must be received by the Minnesota energy agency no later than Friday, August 21. Maxi-audits conducted before or contracted for prior to the application is not eligible. Contact the institutional buildings grants program for application forms (612) 297-2103, or NWRDC 281-1396.

There is a possibility that implementation funds may be available this fall or at a later date . . . institutions that have not conducted a maxi-audit will not be eligible for implementation funds.

There will be application assistance sessions held in the Bemidji city hall council chambers, 401 Minnesota avenue, on August 4 from 10 a.m. to 12 noon, and in Brainerd city hall on August 6 during the same hours. If possible, obtain the application forms prior to attending the meeting so you can ask questions about your specific project.

855 Farmers Sign Up For Grain Program

Sign-up for the 1981 wheat and feed grain program ended on July 15. A total 855 farmers filed an acreage report at the county ASCS office indicating they have planted over 220,000 acres of grain, corn, beans and sunflowers. These totals are nearly the same as for 1980.

Debby Hillman joined Otis Syverson as a member of the air crew this year, and on June 9, 10 and 11 they took an aerial photograph of every section of land in Pennington county. These slides are used in a special projector to measure the fields on those farms which are checked, and a notice of measured acreage is mailed out This stage of the compliance program should be completed by early August.

Family Life Rally Set At Fertile Aug. 16

Family life will be celebrated at a rally and picnic on Sunday, August 16 at the Polk county fairgrounds in Fertile.

The rally will begin at 12 noon, with mass at 2 p.m. by Bishop Victor Balke as main celebrant and homilist. The rally will include music and other activities.

After the mass, a potluck picnic will be held. Each family or group is to bring its own picnic supplies, food, utensils and drinks. Everyone is invited to attend.

Purpose of the rally is to celebrate family life during the decade of the family. The decade of the family is a 10-year effort sponsored by the U.S. Catholic church to renew and strengthen family life.

Each Catholic parish in the diocese is encouraged to bring a banner from the parish.

The family life office of the diocese, located in Crookston, is coordinating arrangements for the rally. Tim Schmaltz of that office is the contact person for information.

Talking Books Reader Eligible For Quie Visit

If you either have been, or are presently, a reader of Talking Books for visually or physically handicapped persons, Gov. Al and Gretchen Quie invite you and your spouse to participate in a drawing for the 20th "Overnight at the Mansion" on August 25.

In addition to the reader for the handicapped, people who fall into the following categories are also eligible for an overnight stay at the mansion:

—A grandmother of three or more children who live outside of Minnesota.

—Someone who graduated from college at age 40 or over, and spouse.

—A couple who has provided a foster home for at least 10 children.

Mrs. Quie requests that qualifying participants send a postcard with their name, address and daytime phone number to 1006 Summit Ave., St. Paul 55105 before August 17 (only one postcard per category, please).

Winners will be selected by a random drawing and will receive a confirmation call. Further information and questions may be directed to the project chairwoman, Sue Dahl (612) 938-4779.

AFTER MEASURING dry ingredients for making chocolate pudding, students in Leona Cerkowniak's summer school class in "Cooking and Eating" add them to the other ingredients in the kettle. Purpose of the class, the teacher said, was to teach the importance of good nutrition to first, second and third graders by having them make nutritious snacks and breakfasts.

ANYTHING BUT SLOW was the pace of business during Crazy Days in Thief River Falls Thursday, but Debbie Swanson claimed a third place prize in the costume contest with this turtle outfit. Prizes were sponsored by the retail business association of the chamber of commerce. Debbie works in the children's department at Bostwick's.

Glen Thomas Participates In Fieldex 81

Marine Sgt. Glen H. Thomas Jr., son of Glen H. Thomas of Thief River Falls, recently participated in operation "Fieldex 81" at Camp LeJeune, NC.

He is a member of the 8th engineer support battalion, Camp Lejeune.

During the two-week exercise, his unit participated in a variety of training to enhance their combat readiness. They constructed numerous bridges and buildings, upgraded 230 miles of roadway, repaired an 1,800-foot airstrip, and established a complete amphibious field assault delivery system.

State's Lamb Crop Rises By 20 Per Cent

Minnesota's estimated 1981 lamb crop of 245,000 lambs was the largest since 1975 and 20 per cent above last year, according to the Minnesota agricultural statistics service.

On January 1, 1981, breeding ewes one year and older numbered 187,000, a 14 per cent increase from 1980.

The state's lambing rate (number saved per 100 ewes one year old and older on January 1) of 131 is six points above 1980 and the highest lambing rate on record dating back to 1924.

Shorn wool production, in 1981 is estimated at 2,256,000 pounds — a 16 per cent increase from last year. The fleece weight increased five per cent to 7.7 pounds and number of sheep and lambs shorn increased 11 per cent to 293,000 heads.

The 1981 United States lamb crop is estimated at 8.88 million head, eight per cent more than 1980 and 11 per cent more than 1979. On Jan. 1, 1981, the inventory of breeding ewes one year old and older totaled 8.80 million head, three per cent more than a year earlier. Ewe lambs under one year on January 1, 1981 totaled 1.79 million head; down one per cent from last year.

The 1981 lambing rate (lambs born in the native states, and lambs docked or branded in Western States) per 100 ewes one year old and older on hand January 1 was 101, compared with 97 in 1980 and 95 in 1979.

Wool shorn and to be shorn in the United States during 1981 is estimated at 109 million pounds (49.5 thousand metric tons), grease basis, four per cent more than in both 1980 and 1979. The number of sheep and lambs shorn and to be shorn is estimated at 13.4 million head, one per cent more than a year earlier. The average fleece weight for 1981 is estimated at 8.13 pounds compared with 7.96 pounds in 1980.

YOU CAN BEAT THE "BAD BACK" SYNDROME

Are you one of 7 million people suffering from back problems?

There are more than 7 million people in the United States who suffer with back problems. So if you get out of bed every morning holding your back, and are afraid to do anything strenuous even when your back is not in pain for fear of having a recurrence, you are not alone. But having partners in misery is really no consolation!

Surgery is not always the answer.

Surgery might even be appealing, if you knew for sure that it would correct your problem. But you have no guarantee, and the track record has not been outstanding.

It must be recognized that all operations, no matter whether they are called "major" or "minor", offer an element of risk. Actuaries can give you the percentage, but certainly death is a possibility with all surgery. Disability may be more frequent. And pain and hospitalization are certain.

Chiropractic treats back problems without drugs or surgery.

Many spinal and back problems that would require surgical procedure have been treated successfully with manipulation by doctors of chiropractic. Chiropractic's record has been excellent with cases of slipped disc and sacroiliac problems. Likewise, case histories have shown chiropractic to be an effective non-surgical method for the treatment of many other types of health problems.

Chiropractic specializes in treatment of structural and health problems related to the spine and nervous system.

Chiropractic utilizes the inherent recuperative powers of the body and the relationship between musculo-skeletal structures and functions of the body, particularly of the spinal column and nervous system, in the restoration and maintenance of health.

When all is said and done, in some cases, you may need surgery. And if you do, your doctor of chiropractic and every other conscientious member of the health team will refer you to a surgeon experienced in handling the problem. But on the other hand, you may not need surgery. Isn't it worth while to at least find out before you take the painful step?

As a member of the health team, the doctor of chiropractic diagnoses, treats and refers.

Neil Liedberg and Nathan were supper guests at the Charles Kiesow home Monday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Neil Liedberg, Nathan and Sheri and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Dahlen were among the many relatives who attended a family get together at the Robert Parnow home Sunday. They visited with Mr. and Mrs. John Schell (nee Marie Parnow) Johnie and Kevin of Clayton, Calif.

Those who came to wish Mrs. Clarence Dahlen a happy birthday Tuesday were Mrs. Joe Schlofer, Mrs. Palmer Lovly, Mrs. Marlin Sand, Mrs. Johnnie Kulseth, Mr. and Mrs. Justin Dahlen, Mr. and Mrs. Neil Liedberg, Nathan and Sheri. A birthday lunch was served featuring three birthday cakes. She received a long distance telephone call from her cousin, Mrs. Dave Ayler of Spokane, Wash. wishing her a happy birthday and also her aunt Mrs. Bella Kompelien of Thief River Falls.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Dahlen were brief callers at the Alfred Iverson home Sunday evening.

Home Security Expert Writes On Precautions

A proven expert on home security, Ira A. Lipman, claims we are making crime too easy for the criminal. Most of the responsibility for our own protection is ours.

The key to making your home more secure is good locks and the diligent use of them. Lipman outlines simple, inexpensive, common-sense security moves designed to help you burglar-proof your home.

"Protect yourself first," he advises. You do this by installing a lock on your bedroom door and a telephone beside your bed. Then if you hear an intruder, you can call the police from behind your locked door. "Never try to apprehend a burglar yourself," he cautions. "If you happen to surprise an intruder in your home, make every effort to cooperate. Your life is worth more than your property."

Some locks are more jimmy-proof than others. "Dollar for dollar, the dead-bolt lock is the most important purchase you can make to protect your home. Every outside door, without exception, should be equipped with one," he declares.

For those tempting sliding-glass patio doors, Lipman suggests three possible precautions: (1) Cut a broom handle to fit in the track to prevent the door from sliding; (2) fit the doors with vertical-bolt locks that engage in holes in the floor and ceiling; (3) if you can afford it, put in shatterproof glass or other impact-resistant material.

A simple way to secure windows is to drill a five-sixteenth-inch hole through the top of the lower sash and the bottom of the top sash where they come together when the window is closed. Then insert a casehardened pin to freeze the window in place.

Lighting is important. The security expert points out that by lighting your home and grounds adequately, you deprive a would-be burglar of one of his basic requirements — time.

Finally, when you cancel deliveries of mail and newspapers prior to going away, you could be tipping a thief off to your planned absence. It is better, Lipman suggests, to ask a trusted friend or neighbor to pick up your newspaper, mail or other normally delivered items.

REINER . . .

Odessie Vraa, Stanley Erickson and Marion Vraa were dinner guests on Tuesday at the Robert Miller (Clara Vraa) home in Grand Forks. Stanley also had a checkup at United hospital and is doing fine.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Miller attended a birthday party at the Kenney Coan home for Michelle on her sixth birthday. Happy birthday Michelle.

Susan Hoffman, Marilyn Vraa, Donna Vraa and Leah Dahlen spent several days visiting at the Gary Vraa home in Minneapolis and with other friends and relatives. Shane Vraa stayed at the Donnie Vraa and David Dahlen homes while his mother was gone.

Mr. and Mrs. James Wells visited on Monday at the Andy Wells home at Bemidji and celebrated Jim's birthday.

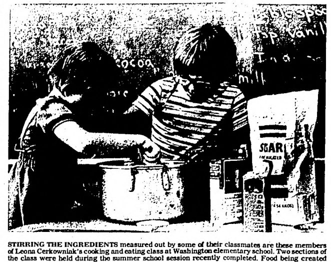
Yvonne Pederson was a supper guest Saturday evening at the James Wells home. She brought birthday greetings to her dad. Those who brought birthday greetings to Jim on Sunday and were supper guests that evening were Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Sjulestad, Andrew Wells, Mr. and Mrs. Kenney Parnham and girls, Mona Pederson, Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Wells, Mr. and Mrs. Otto Sigerud and Edwin Sigerud. Happy birthday Jim.

Shirley Verbout and Dorothy Miller visited and were supper guests at the Gary Anderson home at Grygla on Monday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Otto Sigerud visited at the Robert Halverson home on Wednesday evening.

Blanche Uglem and Margaret Uglem visited Thursday afternoon at the Otto Sigerud home.

Ida Wennberg of Clearbrook was an overnight guest at the home of her sister Ella Hanson in Thief River Falls on Saturday. Hulda Sigerud visited her mother and her aunt on Saturday evening.



STIRRING THE INGREDIENTS measured out by some of their classmates are these members of Leona Cerkowniak's cooking and eating class at Washington elementary school. Two sections of the class were held during the summer school session recently completed. Food being created above was chocolate pudding, but other foods created during the classes included Crazy Crackers, Applenutters, fruit and cheese kabobs, eggnog, ice cream, cheese balls, popcorn, stone soup, macaroni and cheese, blueberry and peanut butter muffins, Egg in a Nest, scrambled eggs, French toast, pancakes, Three Bear Porridge and granola.

CANDY THEME was followed at Phase II in Thief River Falls during Crazy Days Thursday. Peggy King, costumed as an peanut cluster, won one of four fifth place prizes with her unique costume. Judges commented that a number of business places had carried out store themes in their costuming, and cited the Hallmark store for honorable mention in its use of theme promotion.

THE VOICE of BUSINESS

by Richard L. Lesher, President
U.S. Chamber of Commerce

On November 10, 1975, Ambassador Daniel Patrick Moynihan took the floor of the United Nations General Assembly, and in one of his most eloquent statements there, condemned a U.N. resolution which equated Zionism with racism. "Today," he mourned, "we have drained the word racism of its meaning."

Of course, Ambassador Moynihan is Senator Moynihan now, and on July 7, 1981, he accused Health and Human Services Secretary Richard Schweiker of "conducting a campaign of political terrorism" by exaggerating the financial problems of the Social Security system. Though I usually refrain from singling out any one individual for criticism in this column, I have to say that on that day, the Senator from New York drained the word terrorism of its meaning. The challenges this nation faces — such as terrorism and Social Security — are too important and too complex to allow such violent twisting of our language by politicians to go unmentioned.

According to Sen. Moynihan and others who oppose the administration's assessment of Social Security, there is nothing wrong with the program that higher taxes or more deficit spending can't fix. The Senator claims that Social Security is basically a "sound system." The legislative director of the United Auto Workers pooh-poohs all this talk about a problem as "only a temporary event." And an AFL-CIO spokesman has asserted that all we have to do is finance half of Medicare with general revenues (what general revenues?) and the retirement fund would be financially sound "well into the next century."

These comments made me curious about what those same folks were saying and doing about Social Security during its last major financial crisis just a few short years ago. In a report to its members in the fall of 1975, the Executive Council of the AFL-CIO complained of a "tidal wave of groundless charges in the media that the Social Security system is in danger of collapse." The council's conclusion: "The Social Security tax should not go higher."

Yet, a year later, the AFL-CIO's candidate for president, Jimmy Carter, made Social Security's financial predicament a central theme of his attack on president Ford. Within two years, union-backed members of Congress, including Sen. Moynihan, joined with President Carter to enact the nation's largest peacetime tax increase in history — a Social Security payroll tax hike which the President claimed "would eliminate the Social Security deficit for the remainder of this century."

But with 19 years left in this century, the Social Security system is now losing money at the rate of over $12,300 per minute, and unless Congress acts, the fund will run out of money by the fall of 1982.

While it does not fully support all of the Administration's social security proposals, the U.S. Chamber commends the Reagan administration for waking up the nation to the fact that the retirement program is teetering on the edge of bankruptcy — and for recognizing that to simply increase the payroll tax on workers and employers is a cure that has been tried and has failed again and again. With Social Security's outlays almost doubling every five years, there is no choice but to trim back certain benefits.

For example, the current method of indexing benefits should be modified so that beneficiaries do not receive greater cost-of-living increases than those who are still working. Some reduction of early retirement benefits is needed too, though it should not take place as abruptly as the Administration has proposed. Also, the seven million federal, state and local government employees who are currently exempt from contributing to the system should be required to participate at once, just like the rest of us. This action alone would bring in over $100 billion in additional revenues to Social Security's coffers by 1987.

Controversial reforms such as these will have to be made in order to put Social Security back on sound financial footing. I am convinced that most Americans will support a responsible program to adjust certain benefits formulas in order to curb the enormous growth in expenditures which has characterized the system in recent years. What they will not tolerate are politicians who pretend there is no problem and berate those officials such as Secretary Schweiker who are courageous enough to tell it like it is.

Study Done On Marijuana User-Drivers

High school age marijuana users are driving under the influence of the drug even though they know that they are impaired, according to a study developed for the American Automobile Association (AAA) foundation for traffic safety. The Southern California research institute conducted the study and analyzed questionnaire responses from 5,500 students in 100 high schools in 16 states including Minnesota.

Approximately 225 students from three Minnesota high schools participated in the survey, according to Barbara Mittelstadt, traffic safety coordinator of Minnesota AAA.

AAA reports that the results of the study show a dramatic change in the location in which marijuana smoking occurs. Upon reaching licensing age, the user reportedly smokes marijuana less on the "street" and more in his-her car to allow for more privacy.

According to questionnaire responses, the attitude of adolescent marijuana user-drivers appears to be "Driving while high is OK for me." The user does recognize, however, that it is unsafe for others to drive while smoking pot and he or she will not ride with another driver who is "high."

"The AAA foundation for traffic safety distributes educational material about alcohol and driving to driver education and health classes in schools throughout the state," said Mittlestadt from Minnesota AAA.

The AAA foundation for traffic safety is funding the development at Columbia University of a high school program on marijuana and driving. "It is important to know what perceptions young people have about marijuana and its effects on the driving task before attempting to develop such a program," Mittelstadt said. "This study demonstrated that youngsters — both users and nonusers of marijuana — know pretty well about the negative effects of marijuana on the decision-making and attention processes in driving a car."

Other significant results of the questionnaire study released by the foundation included:

—More than half (55 per cent) of the students responding have used marijuana.

—About 37 per cent of the students were classified as current users. Of these, 10 per cent smoke marijuana daily and 18 per cent smoke several times a week.

—Marijuana users' first experience with the drug is occurring at younger ages than in the past with some individuals reporting their first use occurring during elementary grade school years.

—Use of marijuana is largely a social activity carried out in the company of friends. Very few smoke alone or with relatives.

—Marijuana smoking occurs in almost any location that provides the necessary privacy with the car, friends' homes, and the street as the most frequently mentioned sites.

—Youngsters believe marijuana to be less impairing than alcohol but seem to know that the combination of alcohol and marijuana produces more impairment than each drug alone.

Venus, Quasar Co-Star In Late July Sky

Venus has become an "evening star" and for the next few months can be seen above the western horizon soon after sunset near Regulus, a bright star in the constellation Leo.

Jupiter and Saturn continue to form a close, bright configuration fairly high in the southwestern sky in the Virgo constellation. But at the end of July they began to separate and won't be as close again until the year 2000.

About 10 degrees north of Jupiter and Saturn (or about the width of a fist held at arm's length) is a giant cluster of more than 2,000 galaxies, each composed to hundreds of billions of stars like our sun.

A few dozen of these galaxies are visible through a small telescope, provided the glare of city lights of moonlight doesn't interfere. These galaxies are so far away that by the time they are visible on Earth, their light has been traveling for about 50 million years at 186,000 miles per second.

Closer to Jupiter and Saturn is another more distant and mysterious object whose nature astronomers are just beginning to understand. It is a quasar known as 3C273.

Identified from a list of cosmic radio sources about 20 years, 3C273 has the distinction of being the first quasar discovered.

Light visible from a single quasar can, in some cases, exceed the combined light of a thousand bright galaxies. Accompanying that bright light is an abundance of radio waves and X-rays.

Although light from 3C273 travels for three billion years before it is visible on Earth, it is one of the brightest quasars and is faintly visible through a six-inch telescope.

It is now believed quasars are formed in the dense centers of some galaxies, but the exact mechanism that produces their light is still unknown.

There is a growing belief among astronomers that a relationship exists between quasars and black holes which may have formed in the centers of the associated galaxies.

Black holes are the densest possible state of matter and their gravity is so strong that even light cannot escape. However, if matter from stars falls into the black hole, a great deal of energy may be released as light before the matter vanishes inside.

Textile Expert At Embroidery Workshop Aug.

On Wednesday, August 5 from 9 a.m. to 12 noon the Thief River Falls community arts council and Northern state bank will sponsor a workshop on historical embroidery. Otto Thieme, a textile expert and teaching associate in design at the University of Minnesota, will lead the workshop.

The session will be held in the meeting room of the Thief River Falls regional library. Registration fee of $3 will be charged to cover cost of supplies and each participant is requested to bring a pair of scissors to the workshop.

A short slide lecture, surveying historical American needlework found in museums, antique shops and many attics, will begin the session. Thieme will provide guidance to participants in several kinds of embroidery techniques as seen in the slides. These include such projects as embroidering initials for a sampler, executing a piece of a crazy quilt, or stitching a rose in the refined style of turn-of-the-century art needle work. Workshop participants may also bring embroidered family heirlooms along to receive some commentary on their "attic treasures" from a textile expert.

Workshop is open to adults and children 12 years of age and above and is free to participants, but preregistration is required. Call 681-2116, county extension service, for more information and registration.

Embroidery workshop is offered to complement the touring exhibition, "A Stitch Here, A Stitch There: An International Sampling of Embroidery," being held at Northern state bank from July 9 to August 10, and sponsored locally by the Thief River Falls community arts council and Northern state bank. The touring exhibition was organized by the University of Minnesota gallery and is being circulated with the cooperation of agricultural extension service and continuing education in the arts, university of Minnesota.

'U' M Clinic Helps Cleft Palate Cases

by Ralph Heussner
'U' M News Service

The husky, sandy-haired boy, let's call him Tim, tapped his knuckles nervously against the table as he waited for the start of the examinations.

"Any problems with your speech?" asked Clark Starr, a speech pathologist at the University of Minnesota.

"No," Tim replied.

But at age 17, Tim struggled with a fourth-grade reading task. Many of the sounds were produced incorrectly, making his speech difficult to understand, and his speech was excessively nasal.

Tim was born with a cleft lip and palate. Despite several operations and years of speech therapy, a significant handicap remained. To many, Tim's situation might appear hopeless. But at the University of Minnesota school of dentistry's Ralph B. Kersten cleft palate maxillofacial clinic, no case is considered hopeless. This was Tim's first visit to the clinic, where an attempt would be made to diagnose his problems and plan the most appropriate treatment.

A cleft lip or palate or both is one of the most common congenital anomalies; it affects one in every 600 persons. Generally speaking, the lip is involved in 25 per cent, the palate in 25 per cent, and the lip and palate together in 50 per cent of persons born with the disorder. In cleft lip, the lip tissue fails to fuse during embryological development. A cleft palate is characterized by an opening in the roof of the mouth between the oral and nasal cavities.

Surgeons usually close a cleft lip within three months after birth and repair a cleft palate when a child is a year or two old. Cleft lip and palate can affect chewing, swallowing, speech, hearing and appearance.

"We are dealing with an unusual problem that can be seen, felt and heard and that threatens patients' most human characteristics — their appearance and their ability to communicate," wrote Ralph Kersten, founder of the clinic and its director until his death in 1977.

Since 1957, the clinic has served as a regional diagnostic and referral center. Originally located at the Sister Kenny institute in Minneapolis, the clinic moved to the school of dentistry in 1965. Besides providing interdisciplinary evaluation and treatment planning for persons with cleft lip and palate, the clinic is a referral source for individuals who have other maxillofacial or craniofacial disorders.

Care and planning for future treatment begin immediately after birth, and when treatment and long-term care are well planned and coordinated, few defects respond as well to therapy as cleft lip and palate, said Karlind Moller, who has directed the clinic since 1977. But treatment must begin early and may continue into adulthood.

Treatment must be adapted to growth and development, and that can be done most effectively by using a team of medical, dental and speech and hearing professionals, Moller said. There is no reason why a child born with a cleft lip or palate cannot lead a normal life, he said.

Tim's case presents the clinical team with a challenging situation. Most patients with cleft lip and palate at age 17 have acceptable appearance, dental function and communication skills. Tim still has dental problems, a severe jaw discrepency, and major communication problems.

The communication problem may be related to hearing loss, inadequate structues to produce acceptable speech, and possible learning problems. Moller reviews for the group — speech pathologist, audiologist, orthodontist, prosthodontist, otolaryngologist, oral surgeon, pediatric dentist and reconstructive surgeon — Tim's previous treatment, which includes several operations on his lip, palate and jaws. A hearing aid was prescribed several years ago, but Tim apparently refuses to wear it.

Discussion moves from specialist to specialist. Each sees the possibility of a procedure that can help improve Tim's appearance or dental and speech problems. Further surgery might help, but Moller cautions that the family may not agree to another operation at this time.

Walter Warpeha, a prosthodontic consultant with the clinic, suggests a prosthetic device that could improve Tim's occlusion and appearance. An extension on the prosthesis might reduce the nasal quality of Tim's voice.

To help answer the question "why me?" genetic counselors meet with patients and their families, typically on their first visit to the clinic. The geneticist explains what is known about the causes of clefting and can provide the family with information on the risk of the problem occurring in subsequent births.

Moller, a speech pathologist by training, sometimes finds himself taking on the role of a counselor. Following the team conference, he talks with the patient and family. "When the patient and family leave our clinic, we want them to understand our findings and our recommendations. Several treatments may be required, and we discuss priorities and a total plan. There must be a balance between function and appearance," he said.

The clinical team offers recommendations for treatment, but final decisions are left to the patients, their families, and the medical, dental and speech and hearing professionals who will be providing care. The clinic's mission is neither to replace nor to duplicate services provided by referring specialists, Moller said.

By the time patients are 15 or 16, they are usually nearing the end of treatment. Problems with chewing, swallowing, speech and hearing, and, to a great degree, appearance have been correceed and a surgeon may be making plans for a final nasal or lip revision, or a prosthodontist for permanent replacement of missing teeth.

In the case of Tim, Moller acknowledges the boy "has a long way to go, but there is much that can be done. His parents seem to be encouraged by our report," Moller said. "This is not a one-shot kind of treatment, but requires a long-term process in several steps. This case is atypical, but by no means hopeless."

DONALD DICKEN (right), a student at Moorhead state university, who has been studying karate since high school, demonstrated basic karate techniques during a performance Wednesday sponsored by the Northwest Regional library in Thief River Falls. Included in the demonstration was a history of the oriental art which dates back as early as the 400's B.C., and the demonstration of the three main parts in karate practice. Dicken was assisted in the demonstration by Jerry Smith (left) who has been studying karate for the past five years, and Dicken's brother Rick.

Hockey Change Proposed

A member of a committee that was instructed to make recommendations to the Region-Section 8 committee concerning changes to be instituted for the 1982 Section 8 hockey tournament, Detroit Lakes activities director Del Mollberg explained his proposal to Ralph Anderson of the Becker County Record, which would increase the number of seeded teams in the sectional tournament from four to six, with the remaining schools to vie for the two other tournament berths.

The six seeded teams by Mollberg's suggestion would be the top six place finishers during the sectional regular season games. The remaining two tournament berths would be decided in sub sectional playoffs, with one from the North Division of Section 8 and one from the South Division.

Mollberg's suggestion for the North-South split would be: North — East Grand Forks, Crookston, Red Lake Falls, Thief River Falls, Hallock, Roseau, Warroad, Indus, Lake of the Woods; South — Moorhead, Detroit Lakes, Fergus Falls, Alexandria, Bemidji, Brainerd, Crosby-Ironton, Little Falls.

The proposal, said Mollberg would: 1-Advance the six best teams during the season into the Section 8 tournament; 2-Promote intra-sectional play; 3-Reward teams which have good regular season records; 4-Reduce travel for fans and schools by placing teams in North-South sub sectionals; 5-Encourage better fan support on the local level because of the reduced travel.

Had the 1981 Section 8 tournament been conducted on the plan devised by Mollberg, explained Anderson, teams receiving seeded berths would have been Roseau, Thief River Falls, East Grand Forks, Crookston, Brainerd and Moorhead. That would have left Indus, Warroad, Red Lake Falls, Lake of the Woods and Hallock playing off for the North Sub Section berth, with Bemidji, Fergus Falls, Alexandria, Detroit Lakes, Crosby-Ironton and Little Falls playing off for the South Sub Section spot.

A meeting of the committee, chaired by Lincoln high school principal Frank Hamerlinck, will be held in August in Bemidji to draft a recommendation to be made to the Region-Section 8 committee at its September meeting in Detroit Lakes.

In addition to Hamerlinck and Mollberg, the hockey committee includes Larry Selk, East Grand Forks athletic director; Carson Hedlund, Roseau school board member; Don Johnson, Brainerd school board member; Terry Shercliffe, Moorhead hockey coach; Jon Bittner, Hallock hockey coach; and John Knowles, Alexandria high school principal.

Miscellaneous

+Tom Kelly, who earlier resigned his position as hockey coach at the University of Minnesota-Crookston, has now left his post as chairman of the hotel, restaurant and institutional management division at UMC to return to his alma mater, Cornell University in Ithaca, N.Y. as an assistant professor in the school of hotel administration.

+Bemidji successfully defended its Sub District American Legion baseball tournament Thursday by playing its finest baseball of the year, according to Jim Carrington of the Bemidji Pioneer in beating Wadena 5-0 in the semifinals and stopping top-seeded Staples 4-1 in the finals later that same night. Bryan Hickerson and Govind Nadesan combined on a perfect game in the opener, with Hickerson going the first five inning. The left-handed ace added a complete-game victory in the nightcap. Staples beat Sebeka 6-3 in the other semifinal on the BSU diamond. Bemidji will compete in the Sixth District tournament, a five-team, double-elimination event, beginning Thursday at Cold Spring.

+Thief River Falls' Scott Sabo carries a 3-2 pitching record and a team-leading 1.15 earned-run-average for the Crookston Blues amateur baseball team. The hard-throwing lefthander struck out 64 batters in 39 innings through July 27, walked 23 and giving up 20 hits.

+Final regular season statistics for the Crookston American Legion baseball team showed Kent Shafter with a .412 batting average, Mark Melby .363, Brian Bachmeier .337 and Brent Weiss .325. Dennis Ogaard was 5-0 on the mound with a .093 earned-run-average, while Melby went 8-2 with a 0.97 ERA and Bachmeier was 8-2 with a 1.73 ERA.

Slow Pitch Softball

Thief River Falls men's slow pitch softball association will complete its 1981 regular season schedule this week, but post-season league playoffs, district tournaments and state tournaments will keep some teams busy throughout the month of August.

Played under a single day tournament format, the league's Division I and Division IV playoffs will be held Sunday, August 9, while the Division II and Division III playoffs are scheduled to be held Sunday, August 16.

Eleven Thief River Falls teams will qualify for District 7 tournament play at Crookston, including all five Division I teams, who will play in the Class B District 7 tournament August 15-16; and the top three teams in both Divisions II and III, who will compete in the Class C District 7 tournament August 21-23.

In addition, the top two regular season finishers in Division IV will qualify for a berth in the new Class D state tournament August 21-23 at the University of Minnesota in Minneapolis.

Thief River Falls men's slow pitch softball association annual post-season banquet will be held Wednesday, August 19, at 6:30 p.m. at the American Legion. The banquet will feature a short business meeting, election of officers and trophy presentations. Tickets, priced at $5.50, are available from all team managers.

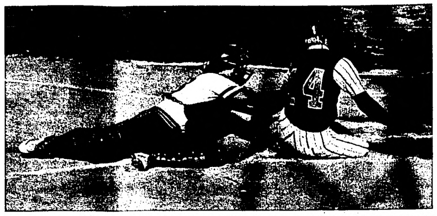
End of Regular Season



CROOKSTON CATCHER Ken Perreault put the tag on Newfolden base runner Dean Hjelle before he managed to slide across the plate during Friday's Northwest League American Legion Sub District baseball tournament semifinal game played in Thief River Falls. Hjelle tried to score from second base on a single to center by Brad Cook in the third inning. Crookston won the game 11-0 to reach Saturday's championship game opposite Thief River Falls, a 3-2 winner over East Grand Forks.

TRF, Crookston Earn Spots In Ninth District Tournament

Crookston handled Newfolden 11-0 while host Thief River Falls came from behind to nip defending champion East Grand Forks 3-2 Friday in the 1981 Northwest League American Legion Sub District baseball tournament semifinals.

The results matched regular season Northwest League pennant winner Crookston and runner-up Thief River Falls in Saturday's 7 p.m. championship game on the fairgrounds diamond, but more importantly the wins assured both teams of berths in the state tournament-qualifying Ninth District tournament August 7-9 in Moorhead.

While the Sub District champion and runner-up both advance, the title game is a factor in determining pairings for the eight-team, double elimination Ninth District tournament that will advance its winner to the state meet in Ely later this month.

Newfolden coach Ron Ueland acknowledged his team was the underdog, but felt that if Eugene Kaml pitched the kind of game he was capable of throwing and if Newfolden played solid defensively the regular season Northwest League cellar-dwellers could surprise Crookston in Friday's doubleheader opener.

Neither happened and Crookston won handily, 11-0. Kaml, while surrendering seven hits, hurt his own cause by issuing six walks and throwing seven wild pitches. And defensively Newfolden didn't come up with the plays needed to stay with Crookston, unbeaten in eight regular season Northwest League games.

Crookston scored in twos at the start, getting two runs in each of the first three innings. In the first, an error brought in the first run and a two-out, full-count walk issued to Brian Laliberte made it 2-0. Brian Bachmeier's high fly ball was lost in the sun for an RBI double in the second, and he scored on a single to right by Brent Weiss. Laliberte was hit by a pitch and Todd Ellingson walked to start the third, with Laliberte scoring on an infield ground-out and Ellingson coming home on a wild pitch.

The outcome was sealed in the fourth when Crookston scored four times as Newfolden bunched three of its four errors together.

A suicide squeeze bunt by Tony Amon completed the scoring in the top of the fifth.

Winning pitcher Mark Melby got the shutout on a four hitter, boosting Crookston's record to 26-7-1. Newfolden finished 2-9.

Behind 2-0 at the start, Thief River Falls came up with its third one-run win of the year over East Grand Forks in squeezing out a 3-2 decision in the second half of the tournament doubleheader.

In taking 4-3 and 2-1 regular season wins from East Grand Forks, Thief River Falls waited until the seventh inning to pull out the triumphs. Friday the victory came in the sixth when a pair of costly errors by East Grand Forks shortstop Rob Schneider opened the doors.

Trailing 2-1 going into the bottom of the sixth, Thief River Falls got started when Schneider misplayed a ground ball hit by Scott McKeever who then stole second. Kevin Sanders bounced a single over second base, moving McKeever to third. He scored the tying run on an out-out infield ground-out to short by Greg Harder that moved Sanders to third. What could have been an inning-ending

NEWFOLDEN PITCHER Eugene Kaml threw a wild pitch then tried to cover the plate on the play as Crookston's Todd Ellingson scored in the third inning of Friday's Northwest League American Legion Sub District baseball tournament semifinal game played on the Thief River Falls fairgrounds diamond. Crookston was an 11-0 winner.

Elks Defeat Host Chaska 6-5 In Opener

Thief River Falls Elks posted a 6-5 win over host Chaska Friday night in the opening round of the 1981 state Babe Ruth baseball tournament for 14-15-year-olds.

It was the first state tournament win ever for the Elks, who are making their third straight state meet appearance. Thief River Falls was scheduled to face Coon Rapids Saturday at 4 p.m. in a second round test.

Thief River Falls overcame four errors to beat Chaska, with the host team committing five errors themselves — three of which led directly to Elks runs. The two teams divided eight hits.

Todd Ortloff picked up the pitching decision with a route-going performance. Tim Bottem was scheduled to face Coon Rapids for coach Bruce Williams' Thief River Falls squad, 26-5 for the year.

The state Babe Ruth tournament is a 12-team, double-elimination affair.

Women's Slow Pitch Softball . . .

Two Teams After Title

Division II title is still at stake tonight (Monday) as the Thief River Falls women's slow pitch softball league closes out its 1981 regular season schedule.

EXALTED RULER of Thief River Falls Elks lodge 1308 Jack Petrillo presented a $100 check to Bruce Williams, coach of the Elks baseball team, to help cover expenses as the team competed in the 1981 state Babe Ruth baseball tournament for 14-15-year-olds that began Friday in Chaska. Williams is shown holding the Lake Agassiz District tournament championship trophy won by the Elks for the third straight year. The Elks club provided new uniforms for the team at the start of the year.

The Mush-a-rettes own a half-game lead over Pizza Hut going into tonight's final games when the Mush-a-rettes face a challenge from Walseth Construction while Pizza Hut goes against struggling Brodin.

St. Hilaire Saints wrapped up the Division I pennant earlier.

In Wednesday's games, Lisda Rux hit a bases-loaded triple to lift Northern Employers Agency past the Schmidt Stealers 9-8 and Dee Larson hit two home runs while Rose Erickson tripled as the Health Hustlers pounded Rusty Nail 27-3.

Sharon Harris, Cindy Bruggeman and Lori Waterworth all hit home runs, but in a losing effort as the Ridge Runners fell to Roseau Transport 12-11.

Deb Kazmierczak, Lynette Huot and Lonie Tollefson homered while Diane Drury, Bobbi Thompson and Patsy Huot all hit triples as the St. Hilaire Saints handled Ekeren Drug 15-3.

A three-run home run by Angie Sinn sparked Dwight's Hartz past American Legion 15-8. Nancy Zimple hit a two-run home run for the losers.

Mush-a-rettes defeated the Honeybees 15-3 and Walseth Construction topped Brodin 21-8.

Wildlife Group Defends USA Clean Air Act

National Wildlife Federation has called on members of two Congressional committees to reject outright changes proposed by the Reagan Administration which would, according to NWF, "gut major sections" of the 1970 clean air act, which is up for renewal this year.

Administration's proposals, a copy of which was obtained by the NWF, are an "alarming and unjustified step backward in our nation's effort to improve air quality," wrote Dr. Jay D. Hair, executive vice president of the NWF, to members of the House committee on energy and commerce and the Senate committee on environment and public works.

Hair noted in his letter that the administration proposals "ignore the critical air pollution problem of acid rain, which has killed hundreds of lakes in the northeastern U.S. and threatens to spread to other regions." Instead, the administration changes would end current requirements that all new coal-fired plants install "scrubbers" to reduce sulfur emissions. In addition, the nitrogen oxide emission standard for automobiles would be relaxed.

Acid rain is caused when emissions of sulfur oxides from coal-burning plants and nitrogen oxides from automobiles and power plants mix with water vapor in the air and are converted into acids. Increased emissions will "exacerbate the acid precipitation problem," Hair wrote, "needlessly destroying valuable fisheries and other natural and man-made resources for millions of Americans and further straining our relations with Canada."

Hair also emphasized that the proposals, sent to the White House by the U.S. environmental protection agency, would "delay regulation of additional air-borne toxic pollutants and would significantly reduce the degree of control for toxic emissions to an inadequate level."

KARL BJORKMAN, 17-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. David Bjorkman of Thief River Falls and a senior at Lincoln high school, was selected to participate in the trap shooting portion of the 1981 United States Olympic Training Center program at Colorado Springs, Colo.

Bjorkman Part Of Olympic Program

Karl Bjorkman, a 17-year-old Lincoln high school senior, was among the participants in the trap shooting portion of the 1981 United States Olympic Training Center program at Colorado Springs, Colo.

The United States Olympic Committee's Olympic Training Center at Colorado Springs provides a backdrop for amateur sports operations and the training of the nation's Olympic hopefuls. The 34-acre site, dedicated to the pursuit of athletic excellence, is close to the city's center and is the former home of the North American Air Defense Command (NORAD) Headquarters.

More than 19,000 athletes of all ages and levels of ability have trained at the center during its first three years. Athletes chosen for USOC-financed training are selected by the national governing bodies of the respective Olympic and Pan American sports. These national governing bodies, which are responsible for the day-to-day management and development of their sports nationwide, tailor individual programs to satisfy their information retrieval needs and training requirements.

Six weeks of Junior Olympic shooting camps are being held from June 29-August 7 at the U.S. Olympic Committee training center.

Forty to 50 men and women from all areas of the U.S. are participating bi-weekly in the camps. The 14-20 year olds attending the camps were selected by the National Rifle Association on the basis of application forms submitted by all interested junior shooters.

Five international shooting disciplines — rifle, pistol, trap, skeet and running target — are incorporated into the camp's program. Head coaches for the camps include world champion Ruby Fox from Parker, Arizona; Bill Krilling, Fort Benning, Georgia, who also coaches the U.S. Army marksmanship unit's international rifle team; Ken Hamill, U.S. Military Academy coach; Bob Partridge, a member of the U.S. Marine's international shooting team from Quantico, Virginia and a past member of several U.S. running target teams; and John Linn, cross country and trap coach from George Mason University, Fairfax, Virginia.

At the Olympic Training Center's indoor ten-meter range, air rifle, air pistol and running (boar) target are practiced. The Air Force Academy's indoor 50-foot range nearby handles the rifle and pistol disciples, as well as trap and skeet on their outdoor range.

In addition to five hours of daily shooting, the athletes enjoy team recreation sports such as volleyball and soccer. Other group activities include swimming, hiking and jogging. Since shooting requires good muscle tone, flexibility and stretching programs are part of the athletes' training regimen.

U.S. Olympic Committee's extensive sports medicine facilities were utilized by a select group of shooters to supplement information maintained by the NRA on some of its key junior shooters. The athletes were tested on flexibility, body fat composition, height and weight. The U.S. Olympic Committee's sports medicine program is designed to enable athletes training at the center to identify their full athletic potential and training techniques to help them achieve it.

"The training at the OTC has been really good for the kids," said Dick Floyd, the director of the Junior Olympic shooting camps. "In our program we stress mental training. In shooting you try to remain as relaxed and calm as possible. Instead of psyching up for competition, a shooter psychs himself down."

Accomplished shooters were invited to the camp to speak on different aspects of mental training, according to Floyd.

Lanny Bassham, the 1976 international rifle Olympic Gold Medalist; Lones Wigger, two-time Olympic Gold Medalist and current 300 meter international rifle world record holder, and Terry Anderson, a member of the 1980 U.S. Olympic pistol team, spoke at the training center on mental management, desire, motivation, improved self image and goal attaining.

"The training center serves a dual purpose; the shooters have a chance to intermingle with other athletes and they are also able to have concentrated training with knowledgeable people," said one coach.

According to the coaches at the camp, athletes showing promise in their events will continue training to vie for positions on the 1984 or 1988 Olympic Teams.

Karl is the son of Mr. and Mrs. David Bjorkman of Thief River Falls.

"Recent Olympic Games have brought into focus the need for dynamic new approaches in sports training and development if our athletes are to continue to compete on a par with other athletes of the world," reports F. Don Miller, executive director of the U.S. Olympic Committee.

"Responding to the challenge, the United States Olympic Committee opened the first U.S. Olympic Training Center in 1977. By mid-1980, more than 33,000 athletes from across America had come to train, compete

Mark CuChamp fired a one-hitter and Action Realty moved a half game ahead of North Star Transport with an 8-0 blanking of Coca-Cola.

Action Realty scored three times in the top of the first inning as Nick Drees led off with a walk and went to second on Tim Engelstad's sacrifice bunt. Wayne Smith slapped a single to lift, Drees taking third. Drees scored on a wild pitch with Smith advancing to second. Tom Goddard singled to center with an error on the play scoring Smith. Goddard scored on a ground out.

Action Realty added a single run in the second and two each in the sixth and seventh.

Melvies 1

Doug Martell's fourth inning bunt single proved to be the only hit Jeff Hendrickson allowed as Popplers thrashed Melvies 7-1.

Popplers used three Melvies errors and two base hits to record three runs in the bottom of the first inning. The score moved to 4-0 when Joel Carlson reached on an error in the second and eventually scored on a wild pitch.

Successive bunt singles by Henrickson and Rocky Ammerman in the fifth, a passed ball and two errors plated the final three runs.

Rick Kofstad tossed a three hitter, but two of those came in a three-run fifth inning as Action Realty whips Melvies 4-1.

Melvies had taken a fourth inning 1-0 lead as Erv Melvie led off with a single to right and advanced to second on Joe Klosterman's ground-out. Kjell Melvie then singled to right center for the run.

In the fifth, Wayne Liden drew a free pass, Keith Charbonneau slapped a single to left with Liden taking third. Mark DuChamp's bunt single tied the score with Bob Lundbohm's sacrefice fly giving Action Realty a 2-1 lead. DuChamp scored the third run on a wild pitch.

Black Market Animal Poaching Ring Broken By FWS Officials

A massive illegal trade in protected and endangered U.S. reptiles has been uncovered by a live animal "sting" operation that was concluded July 16 by federal wildlife agents. G. Ray Arnett, Assistant Secretary of the Interior for fish and wildlife and parks, announced that the 18-month investigation involved suspected illegal trafficking in thousands of snakes, turtles, lizards and migratory birds by more than 175 individuals.

"What is surprising," Arnett said, "is that this investigation revealed that hundreds of thousands of U.S. reptiles are illegally taken from the wild each year for a thriving black market with a very large portion smuggled to Europe and Japan. These are specimens that cannot be taken from the wild or sold under federal and state laws."

U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service also estimates that at least 100,000 venomous and nonvenomous snakes are shipped secretly through the U.S. mails annually. Arnett said masking tape is commonly placed over the rattles of rattlesnakes so they won't be heard. Postal law forbids the shipment of snakes.

A large number of reptiles was expected to be seized in the largest wildlife enforcement operation ever conducted with some 200 federal and state wildlife conservation officers participating in the action.

Arnett announced that the Justice Department had filed criminal charges in Atlanta, Georgia; Pittsburgh and Scranton, Pennsylvania; and Tallahassee, Florida; against individuals for violating various federal wildlife laws.

Arrest warrants were issued for 27 individuals. Federal and state search warrants were issued for 45 locations in 14 states. Most of the remaining suspects were interviewed.

Fish and Wildlife Service law enforcement officers initiated the investigation based on intelligence from past cases. Additionally, several state wildlife agencies requested assistance in controlling the interstate illegal traffic. A number of zoos also cooperated.

To infiltrate the illegal trafficking in wildlife, undercover agents established the Atlanta Wildlife Exchange, a wholesale reptile business in suburban Atlanta where they bought and sold almost 10,000 animals that had been caught in the wild illegally, all the while tape recording transactions. Price lists were prepared with a statement noting that the Exchange bought as well as sold native species. Over 1,000 federal and state listed endangered animals of 15 species were eventually bought in the "sting" operation. Many of the protected species were released to the wild after being purchased by agents.

"This was not a large, organized conspiracy, but rather many small groups of two to five individuals working independently," said Clark R. Bavin, chief of the service's division of law enforcement. "An extensive informal grapevine made sources and buyers of the animals easy to find."

Reptile collecting is usually done at night along isolated roads which retain the day's heat. Poachers use chisels, shovels and other equipment to get into the boulder crevices where many of the animals seek shelter. In some areas severe damage is inflicted to the habitat of rare species.

Although the reptiles were taken from a number of states, most of the poaching was done in California, Florida, Pennsylvania, Texas, New York, Wisconsin, Kansas, New Mexico, Idaho and Arizona. About 5 per cent of the "sting" operation's business consisted of foreign species from Australia, Central and South America and Mexico, some of which were smuggled into the U.S. "Most of the trade is based on demand from private collectors," said Bavin, "and the varied backgrounds and occupations of those who were arrested or apprehended was also surprising." Included were zoo employees, police officers, a sheriff, teachers, an attorney, bankers, a mortician, businessmen and officials and employees in the wild animal trade.

"People are attracted to these animals for a variety of reasons," Bavin said. "Their rarity and inaccessibility is a major consideration. Some of the snakes are prized for their intense coloration or intricate patterns. The California mountain kingsnake, a very docile, 2-foot reptile with repeated bands of white, reddish-orange, and black was particularly valued and would usually sell in the $150 range. The Texas gray-banded kingsnake, another favorite, could bring $200. The rarer the animal, the higher the price."

Other species are sought for their bizarre appearance or for the status or image they bring the owner. Many of the species sold to the Atlanta Wildlife Exchange were extremely dangerous. Among them were copperheads, water moccasins and 15 species of rattlesnakes. Other dangerous animals included a pair of rare 13-foot Indian pythons, American alligators and Gila monsters, the nation's only venomous lizards.

John Behler, the Bronx Zoo's curator of Herpetology, cautions would-be snake fanciers to think twice before they decide to keep venomous pets. "In New York City over the last several years we've been consultants for dozens of bites from exotic reptiles including pet puff adders, king cobras, Asiatic cobras, saw-scaled vipers and a host of rattlesnakes. Most of the owners are totally unfamiliar with the hazard potential they are dealing with."

Most of the animals sold for between $25 and $200 and although some cost as much as $500. A Texas Trans-pecos rat snake would sell for $75; alligator snapping turtles brought $35; Gila monsters $200. Prices would double or triple for animals sold overseas.

Illegal collecting from the wild has already been a major cause for several reptile species becoming endangered or threatened.

Migratory birds, including both live and stuffed hawks, owls and songbirds, were also purchased in the operation.

Individuals apprehended were sought for various violations of the endangered species act, the Lacey act, the migratory bird treaty act, postal statutes and conspiracy and false statement statutes.

ground ball to Schneider off the bat of Steve Bengtson ended up scoring Sanders when the shortstop threw the ball into the dirt and first baseman Jim Stallmo couldn't find the handle.

It wasn't quite that easy, though, as East Grand Forks put the tying and winning runs on base in the top of the seventh. A 3-0 count on lead-off batter Brad Buck prompted Thief River Falls coach Nick Drees to replace the left-handed Kevin Sanders with right-hander Delray Ness. Buck walked, but Ness truck out Jeff Smith on a called third strike before Dave Swanberg's intended sacrifice bunt down the first base line went for a base hit instead when Thief River Falls was slow to react to the well-placed ball.

Neww got out of the jam, however, by getting Schneider, the No. 3 hitter, and Stallmo, the clean-up batter, on fly balls.

"An excellent ball game," described Drees afterwards. "They played well except for the one inning, and we played well. If every game was played like that. . ."

Drees had no second thoughts about replacing Sanders, who looked strong for most of the game, with Ness.

"He (Sanders) gets tired and he gets the ball high," explained Drees. "I have confidence in Delray; he can do the job for us."

East Grand Forks scored single runs in the second and third innings. A two-out walk issued to Tim Roche in the second was followed by a misplayed fly ball that fell between leftfielder Jeff Cwikla and Ness in center, scoring Roche from first base. Buck, the No. 9 hitter, drew a full-count walk to lead off the third. He moved up on a sacrifice bunt by Jeff Smith and scored on a two-out line shot double into the left-center field gap by Schnieder.

Thief River Falls, after threatening to score in the first inning when Jim Hallamek was thrown out at the plate trying to score from first base on a double to center by Scott McKeever, went through three fruitless innings before collecting three base hits for a fifth inning run.

Bengtson snapped the punchless string with a one-out single to left field. He moved up on a passed ball, went to third on a single bounced into left by Cwikla and scored on a sacrifice fly to right by Dave Kays.

Two runners were left in scoring position that inning when Roche, the leftfielder, recovered from a first-step slip to make a running one-handed catch on a hard-hit ball by Hallamek. But Hallamek returned the favor when the Thief River Falls third baseman went high in the air to stab Swanberg's high-bouncer with runners on first and second and nobody out in the fifth. He stepped on third for the force out, taking the steam out of a potential big East Grand Forks inning.

Thief River Falls' record climbed to 20-12-1 with the win. Frustrated East Grand Forks finished 18-13.

and grow at the Colorado Springs, Colorado and Squaw Valley, California, Olympic Training Centers.

Through the facilities and services provided to the nation's amateur athletes, these youngsters are being given the opportunity to identify their full potential and to participate in programs designed to help them reach it."

"No youngster with the drive, ambition and determination should be denied the opportunity to reach out for the Olympic dream. Here, at the Colorado Springs Olympic Training Center, athletes from all across the country are taking part in a wide variety of programs ranging from classroom instruction to sophisticated sports medicine analysis and evaluation," adds Bob Mathias, director of the Colorado Springs Olympic Training Center.

"Less than ten per cent of the thousands who pass through here are considered elite or world class. Most fall within the category of athletes with potential . . . on their way up. Thanks to the generosity of the American people, businesses, civic, social and professional groups, which support us financially, the future holds great promise."

FWS Conducting Programs For Released Cranes

First captive-reared whooping crane to be released into the wild is adjusting to her new environment — which includes a prospective mate — with apparent success, making U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service scientists optimistic that another innovative means of propagating the endangered species has been found.

Like many a mail-order bride in the heyday of the frontier, the three-year-old female has travelled a long distance to begin a new life — from the captive flock at the Patuxnt wildlife research center near Washington, D.C. to the remote Grays Lake national wildlife refuge in Idaho.

Scientists hope she will mate with a male wbooper hatched at Grays Lake in 1975, the first year of a continuing cross-fostering program in which sandhill cranes serve as surrogate parents. The young whoopers learn a migration route from the sandhills, a critical step in establishing a second wild flock of whooping cranes. The female crane's successful adaptation to the wild would encourage sceintists who seek solutions to the shortage of females at Grays Lake, a problem that has slowed population growth. For unknown reasons, female cranes suffer a higher mortality rate than males in the first months of life.

Each step in the female whooper's progress from her Patuxent pen to the Idaho wilderness has been carefully monitored by researchers since this is the first attempt to release a captive-reared whooping crane into the wild.

"Whooping cranes mate for life, and they're very selective," said Dr. Scott Derrickson, who heads Patuxent's crane propagation program. "The disappearance during the last migration of two lone males and the failure of another to stake out a breeding territory left just one possible mate for the female."

Behavior of the two young cranes so far has been encouraging to FWS scientists at both Patuxent and the Cooperative wildlife research unit at the University of Idaho. When the female arrived at Grays Lake, she was placed in a pen next to the male's territory, so the two could become accustomed to each other without risking her safety. After retreating from her handlers, the female began to forage for food. The male immediately flew near the pen, and the two appraised each other. Within several days, he was spending considerable time close by, and the two were showing signs of bonding by synchronizing their everyday behavior, foraging and preening at the same time. Then the eager female began practicing the species' spectacular premating ritual dance, and the male responded with graceful leaps and swirls.

"There's no question of their mutual attraction," said Derrickson, though he cautioned that the real proof of the birds' pair bond is yet to come. A sturdy bond is shown by the distinctice dual calls for which the cranes are named, a duet composed of one note sounded by the male, followed by two stacatto notes by the female. The two have begun calling to each other, but have not yet united in a duet. Meanwhile, the female has been released from her pen, since the male appeared disturbed by the barrier.

"We might have heard their 'unison call' by now if the male hadn't gotten sidetracked from courtship," said Derrickson. "Suddenly, for an unaccountable reason, he began to try to expand his territory in two directions at once. However, he keeps returning to the female's roost, and we think that when his wing feathers molt and he can't fly, he won't be this aggressive.

"If these whoopers form a bond, it's possible they could produce a chick as early as next spring," added Derrickson, who explained that females may become sexually mature at four years of age. The transplanted female is too young to breed this year, but old enough to establish a lifetime pair bond. The male has shown his readiness for several years by his territorial behavior.

Should the whoopers fail to establish a bond before the fall migration, the female will be sent back to Patuxent, since she could not survive without an experienced mate to guide her to wintering grounds at Bosque del Apache national wildlife refuge in New Mexico. This 870-mile migration route was imprinted on the male by his foster sandhill parents.

"We learned from an experiement last year that captive-reared sandhill cranes transplanted to the wild must integrate with the other birds to know when and where to migrate," emphasized Derrickson.

REACTIONS VARIED at the Thief River Falls regional library Wednesday as youngsters gathered to watch a karate performance by Donald Dicken, who has been studying the oriental art since 1972. Dicken received his black belt in Los Angeles, CA after studying karate in high school under Don Koury. Assisting Dicken in his performance, was Jerry Smith, and Dicken's brother Rick. Show was sponsored by the library as part of a summer program for youngsters.

PUBLIC NOTICE

The Thief River Falls water utility announced today that the State maximum allowable limit for turbidity in drinking water is being exceeded.

Turbidity is caused by the presence of finely suspended particles such as clay, sand or organic matter in the water. Turbidity can be a problem if it interferes with chlorine disinfection. However, the high turbidity levels, do not create any health hazard because the water utility is able to maintain effective levels of chlorine for disinfection.

The Thief River Falls water utility staff is working closely with State Health Department officials to reduce the turbidity to acceptable levels.

Any citizen seeking addition information should contact Allen Lamm at the Water Plant, phone number 681-3809.

RIVER LOTS FOR SALE

Beautiful heavily wooded river lots for sale in a peaceful, secluded area 2½ miles south on 32 H. We still have several choice 2½ to 5 acre plots left. 3 have walkout basement sites with private riverside parks; one has 920 ft. of river frontage. We also have 4 left in our Oak grove overlooking Aubol's Dam and rapids with huge old oaks and a scenic view. We have 40 acres of river property and will sell only the 7 homesites on the river frontage mentioned above. We don't want to disturb the quality of life on our homestead by overbuilding or commercial development. A few 1 to 2 acre lots are also available farther back from the river at considerably lower prices. Reasonable interest and terms available. We invite you to share with us the enjoyment of country living.

Movie Monday Schedule Is Announced

Northwest regional library is offering a "Movie Monday" program for children from 1 to 2 p.m., August 10, at the library.

Movies to be shown at the next program include: Paddington Bear Films: "Paddington and the Cold Snap," "Paddington Makes a Clean Sweep," "Mr. Gruber's Mystery Tour," "An Unexpected Party";

"Abbott & Costello Meet Frankenstein" — Dracula, the Wolfman and even the Invisible Man join forces in this comedy "shocker". Watch the chain reaction of fun as somebody dreams up the idea of using Costello's mind for the monster.

Also, "A Day in Nature's Community" — Presents a fascinating study of survival and ecological relationships among mountain animals on Beatle Rock in the highlands of the Sierra Nevada mountains; and "Charlie Needs a Cloak" — The process of making cloth from wool into clothing as conveyed through the charm and humor of Tomie de Paola's book.

Indonesian Wheat Team Visits State

A four-man Indonesian government and industry wheat trade team visited Minnesota recently as one stop of a six state tour. Purpose of the visit was to allow members of the Indonesian flour milling industry and government officials to get a better understanding of U.S. wheat classes, their usage, and the U.S. marketing systems.

According to Einer Satter, Norcross, chairman of the Minnesota Wheat research and promotion council, "trade team activities in Indonesia have been a major step toward solidifying U.S. - Indonesian trade relations." Current estimates put import needs for 1981 at 56 million bushels, of which 33 million will be of U.S. origin. Australia is the major competitor in Indonesia.

Satter notes that, "transportation costs to Indonesia are $12-$15 per metric ton higher from the U.S., that from Australia, which makes a great challenge to hold our share of this market."

While in Minnesota, the team visited the Minneapolis grain exchange and the Betty Crocker Kitchens.

The Indonesian trade team was hosted in Minnesota by the Minnesota research and promotion council and its Washington affiliate, U.S. Wheat associates.

Loan Rate For 1981 Grain Crops Are Set

Pennington county loan rates for the 1981 crop have been set as follows: wheat, $3.28; barley, $1.87; corn, $2.30; oats, $1.14.

The interest rate is 14½ per cent and the loans are for a nine-month period of time. These loans are available on either farm stored or warehouse stored grain produced in 1981. For elevator stored grain, the county ASCS office must have the warehouse receipt. If the grain is on the farm, a loan may be taken on 90 per cent of the grain by providing the dimensions of the bin. For a measurement fee farmers would be entitled to a loan on 100 per cent of the grain in the bin.

The 1981 wheat will be eligible for immediate entry into the three-year reserve program. A premium of 30 cents per bushel is offered for this program, which would mean a loan of $3.58 per bushel. Interest at 14½ per cent continues for the first year that the wheat is in the reserve, after which it is interest free. Advance storage payments at the rate of 26½ cents per year will be paid when national market prices are less than the $4.65 release level.

Call Lucille at the county ASCS office for further information.

Teleconference Class Offered Through BSU

Teleconference classes will once again be offered to northern Minnesota residents this fall, through Bemidji state university's office of area services.

Three classes — industrial education, psychology, and education — will be available. Teleconference is a delivery system which combines techniques of the telephone and radio; classes are broadcast from Bemidji and transmitted to several sites simultaneously. Locations selected for inclusion in the system this fall are Bemidji, Brainerd, Grand Rapids, Hibbing, Virginia, Thief River Falls, International Falls, Ely and Wadena.

Courses to be offered include the following:

Special learning needs in vocational education (IE 463-563) Monday evenings, September 14 - November 16, 4-6:50 p.m., three credits;

Counseling procedures (ED 637), Wednesday evenings, September 2 - November 18, 7-10 p.m., three credits; and Principles of behavior modification (PSYCH 331-531), Monday evenings, September 14 - November 16, 7-10 p.m., three credits.

Pre-registration for the classes is required through the office of area services one week prior to the first class meeting. Upon receipt of payment for each class, the student will receive a packet of course materials, the text, and additional information regarding the teleconference system. For more information contact: Area Services, Bemidji State University, Bemidji, MN 56601; or phone 755-2851.

Conference On Aging Slated In Moorhead

A two-day conference on "Aging: Policy and Issues for the 80's," will be conducted August 13-14 at Moorhead state university.

The program runs from 9 a.m. to 4:45 p.m. each day in King hall auditorium, focusing on social policy and legislation affecting the elderly.

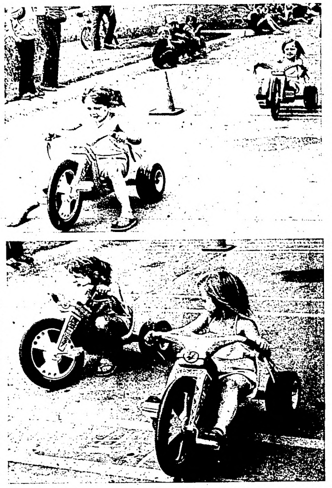
U.S. Sen. Dave Durenberger, a member of the senate's committee on aging, is scheduled to address the conference at 10:45 a.m. that Thursday. Also speaking during the first day of the conference are state demographer Thomas Gillaspy; Gerald Bloedow, executive director of the Minnesota board on aging; and a panel of respondents including U.S. Rep. Arlan Stangeland, Douglas county commissioner Edith Kelly, and Joyce Legler, project director of Clay county senior programs.

The second day will feature talks by LuVerne Molberg, a private consultant in planning, community development, policy and social systems change from Minneapolis; Jean Quam, a professor of social work at the University of Minnesota; and Barbara Caspers, executive director of the Min-Dak health systems agency.

Registration is free for senior citizens and students, $10 for others ($5 a day). One graduate or undergraduate credit is also available.

For more information or to register, contact Nancy Gilliland at the MSU department of sociology, 236-2632, or the university's continuing education office.

The Times—A Great Gift!



FOLLOWING THE LEADER instead of racing with her opponent is this youngster who participated in the Hot Wheels races conducted in the Kmart parking lot Thursday, an event planned by the Retail Business association (RBA) of the chamber of commerce for Crazy Days. Hot Wheels cycles were furnished for the race and were given away following the contest. Race winners are listed in today's issue of the Times.

Enough Soil Moisture Helps Mature Crops

Rains during the last two weeks have been very beneficial to most crops and enough moisture is now available in most of Minnesota to carry crops to maturity, according to the Minnesota agricultural statistics service.

However, crops are suffering in some areas because of too much rain while a few scattered local areas around the state still have a shortage of moisture. Topsoil as of Friday, July 24 is six per cent short, 73 per cent adequate, and 21 per cent surplus.

Row crops made very good progress last week but sunshine is needed for proper development. Many fields are turning yellow from excessive water. Field corn is 78 per cent tasseling which compares to the five-year average of 76 per cent and last year's 87 per cent. About four per cent of the crop is just beginning to enter the milk stage. Corn is rated three per cent poor, 20 per cent fair, 61 per cent good and 16 per cent excellent.

An estimated 74 per cent of the soybeans are blooming with 12 per cent setting pods. This compares to 84 per cent blooming and 20 per cent setting pods last year and 80 per cent and 23 per cent for the five-year average. Soybeans are rated five per cent poor, 26 per cent fair, 60 per cent good, and nine per cent excellent.

Sunflowers are also near normal development with 32 per cent blooming. This is well behind last year, though, when 63 per cent were in flower.

Most of the small grain crops are now ready for harvest, but the recent rains have kept fields too muddy. Lodging has become a problem with the heavy rains and rust is also showing up in many areas. Harvest is behind last year and the five-year average for all small grain crops.

Spring wheat is 76 per cent ripe which compares to 81 per cent last year and the 5-year average of 67 per cent. An estimated eight per cent of the crop has been swathed with two per cent combined. Oats are 85 per cent ripe, 21 per cent cut, and six per cent combined. Barley is 94 per cent ripe which compares to the five-year average of 77 per cent and last year's 93 per cent. Swathing has been completed on 29 per cent of the acreage but only four per cent has been combined. The five-year average as well as last year show 18 per cent combined at this time.

Winter wheat and rye are both 97 per cent ripe. Swathing of winter wheat stands at 46 per cent which compares to 76 per cent last year and the five-year average of 61 per cent. An estimated 13 per cent has been combined. Rye is 41 per cent cut and 12 per cent combined. Flax is now 79 per cent blooming which compares to the five-year average of 86 per cent and last year's 87 per cent. An estimated 41 per cent of the crop is setting bolls and five per cent is turning ripe.

Alfalfa hay is reported to be quite heavy in many areas of the state. Cutting has been nearly impossible with extremely wet fields and quality has been greatly reduced in many localities.

Sen. Boschwitz Bill Passes Senate 100-0

For only the second time in 20 years the Senate voted for a bill 100-0. The bill was sponsored by Senator Rudy Boschwitz who calls it his "Family Farm and Family-Owned Business Amendment".

The amendment to the tax bill is designed to assist young farm buyers, prospective home buyers, and parents who wish to pass on the family farm or business by changing the controversial imputed-interest regulations implemented by the IRS last July 1.

"The bottom line is that it keeps interest rates affordable," Boschwitz said.

The amendment allows family members to sell property to other family members at an interest rate of seven per cent. The IRS has wanted to use an imputed rate of 10 per cent.

"This amendment is a reasonable compromise to relieve the burdens the regulations impose on family farms and small business," Boschwitz said. "It will keep the maximum interest rate that the IRS can impute at seven per cent for sales of non-depreciable property of up to $2 million in any 12-month period. It will make no difference whether the sale is between family members or neighbors. Thus, the small businessman will be more able to sell the stock of his company, and the farmer can more readily sell his land, and it will make every house far more saleable."

Boschwitz, who rallied Republican support for the amendment, worked behind the scenes with members of the finance committee and the treasury department to work out a compromise that the treasury would accept.

"While we could have won on a contested vote if treasury and the finance committee leadership did not agree, we would surely lose the provision in the conference committee for there is no similar provision in the House bill," Boschwitz said.

"We may still lose in conference, but the chances for it surviving have certainly been improved."
